MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—(AP)—Stock prices turned decidedly reactionary today despite a market reduction in call money rates. In the absence of any adverse news developments the reaction which ran from 1 to 4 points in many issues, was generally attributed to short selling, based on the theory that the technical position of the market had been weakened by the rapidity of the Christmas advance, and by a disposition on the part of wealthy individuals to take profits on which taxes will not be due until March 1927. Trading was again in large volume, the day's sales running over two million shares.

Chief financial interest of the day centered in the heavy over subscription of the National Cash Register company common stock issue. The shares were admitted to trading on the "big board" as soon as the books were closed, selling as high as 54, as compared with the subscription price of 50 and then easing to around 52.

Commodity prices also pursued a downward course. May wheat fell nearly four cents a bushel on the receipt of better weather reports from the Argentine, and smaller recessions took place in the other options. The decline of 25 to 36 points in cotton followed the lowering of Liverpool quotations. Coffee futures sagged 4 to 20 points, raw sugar eased 1-16 of a cent.

Realizing sales halted the pre-auto show rally in the motor shares. Hudson broke 5 points to 127 3-4, and then rallied slightly, and Chrysler, General Motors and Mack trucks each fell over three points. American Bosch Magneto, Fisher Body, Pierce Arrow preferred, Stewart-Warner Speedometer, Stromberg Carburetor and White Motor closed 1 to nearly 3 1-2 points lower. Tire stocks also were heavy, United States Rubber breaking nearly four points to 81 1-8 and Goodrich showing a net loss of 1 1-2.

Heavy selling of the Pan-American issues was inspired by the adverse decision of the United States circuit court of appeals at San Francisco in the case involving naval reserve number 1 in California. The B stock of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company which recently disposed of its California properties to the Pan-American Western, showed a net loss of 2 1-2 to 75 3-4, and the latter broke about 5 points to 40 1-2 and then rallied to 42 3-4. Other oils reacted in sympathy despite private reports of a sharp reduction in crude output last week.

Weakness also developed in such issues as American Can, Dupont, Postum Cereal, California Packing, and National Tea, all of which closed three or more points lower. There were a few issues to move against the current trend. Pressed Steel Car soared nearly six points to 76 3-8, closing just below the top and General Railway Signal. International Harvester, Arnold Constable, new, Case Threshing Machine, Federal Mining and Smelting, common and preferred, National Lead, Pathe Exchange, and Yale and Town closed 2 to 7 points higher.

Chief interest in the railroad group centered in the heavy demand for the St. Paul issues, the common advancing nearly three points to 14 and the preferred showing a net gain of 2 1-2 at 22. Atchison also moved up over two points, but most of the other rails showed moderate recessions.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent., as against an opening rate of six yesterday, dropped to 4 1-2 before noon and thence to 4, the lowest rate since October 20. Brokers reported that loans were available in the outside market as low as 3 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Reactionary price tendencies also a cent to $4.84 1-2, and French francs fell below 3.80 cents for an overnight loss of about 3 points. Nominal recessions took place in the northern Europredominated in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling eased 1-4 of pean rates.

GREENEVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. James Butler, Jr., entertained about 30 of their friends recently in honor of their first wedding anniversary. During the evening games and songs were enjoyed, as were also selections on their new radio. Dancing was also enjoyed and a genuine Irish jig was danced by Katherine and James Redden. There were solos by Margaret Redden and Edward Maloney which were very pleasantly given. Mrs. Butler served dainty refreshments including chicken and egg sandwiches, cake, ice cream, fruit and coffee. She was assisted by Mrs. William Semple, Jr., Miss Josie Shea and Miss Jane Sullivan. Mr. and Mrs. Butler were the recipients of numerous beautiful gifts in honor of the event and the party broke up at a late hour, wishing them both many happy returns of the day. Mrs. Butler was formerly Miss Margaret Maloney of 326 Prospect street.

Mrs. William Kendall and grand daughter, Miss Helen Hooper of Hartford, are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cole of Thirteenth street.

Mr. and Mrs. James Ward of Eleventh street entertained a number of their friends at a turkey dinner with all the "fixings" a short time ago in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. They received a number of beautiful presents in silver, one coming from relatives in Scotland. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. James McDonigal and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Vallas of Weymouth, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. John McGurn of Pawtucket, R. I., and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McDonald of Elizabeth, N. J.

Rev. Patrick J. McCormick, dean of Washington university and Thomas McCormick, a student of the University of Pennsylvania, have left town after spending the holidays with their mother, Mrs. Margaret McCormick of Prospect street.

Miss Edith Haydon of Norwood, Mass., is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Haydon of Margerie street.

Mrs. William Grant of Boswell avenue is spending some time in Pawtucket, R. I., visiting relatives.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Furbush of Thamesville, formerly of Greeneville, were sorry to hear of the accident to their young son Russell. He had his leg broken just above the ankle in a sliding accident during the school vacation, but is getting along as well as can be expected at the present time.

William Crowe spent New Year's with his family on Boswell avenue. He is now employed in Newark, N. J.

TAFTVILLE

The monthly meeting of the Taftville Social and Football club was held Monday evening in the clubrooms in the Ponemah house building, with the president, Allan Bogle presiding.

Miss Signe Wennerberg of the Ponemah house has returned from New York where she has been spending the past week.

THIRD OFFENSE IN LIQUOR LAW BRINGS STATE PRISON SENTENCE

A state prison sentence of from 13 months to two years was the heaviest the lightest sentence given here the lightest sentences given here Tuesday in the opening session of the January term of the superior criminal court with Judge Allyn L. Brown presiding.

When court opened at 11 o'clock in the morning, about an hour behind the scheduled time, there were 15 prisoners in the pen, nine having been brought from the New London jail and six from the jail in this city. Two women prisoners had seats behind the clerk's desk. The court session attracted an unusually large attendance all day long, as all the spectators' seats were filled and the center aisle was filled to the rail with a standing crowd.

When Judge Brown took his seat on the bench he was accompanied there by Rev. E. C. Dunbar, of the First Baptist church, who opened the court session with prayer.

The business of the court opened with Sheriff Sidney A. Brown bringing in the grand jury of 18 men, to whom Judge Brown committed the case of Eugene J. Berry, of 324 Boswell avenue, who killed his two small sons by chloroforming them at their home on the night of Oct. 26. After Clerk George E. Parsons had sworn the grand jury in, Judge Brown gave them their instructions as to finding a true bill of murder in the first or second degree against Berry, and the grand jurors retired to the county commissioners' room, while the court proceeded to take pleas from the accused men and women who were presented before the court by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown. Attorney Charles L. Stewart acted as public defender in cases where the accused had no counsel.

The business of taking pleas proceeded as follows and was not concluded until about 4:45 in the afternoon:

State Prison Sentence

Not less than 13 months nor more than two years in state prison was the sentence given to Daniel Ziezunk (Big Dan) of this city on the charge of violation of the liquor law. Ziezunk whose attorneys were Thomas M. Shields and Thomas M. Dorsey, pleaded guilty to the sale on Nov. 27 to Patrick Cleary, of two soda bottles partly filled with liquor and also pleaded guilty to a third offense as he had previously been convicted in the Norwich city court of sale on Aug. 24, 1921 and convicted in the superior court on Sept. 13, 1923.

There was another case on the docket in which Ziezunk is charged with illegal sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors, but State Attorney Brown nolled this, declaring that on the evidence at hand it should never have been brought to court.

Five Days in Jail

Five days in jail without costs was the sentence passed upon William Alfred Sullivan, 55, after he pleaded guilty to wilful injury to private building in Waterford on Nov. 12. State Attorney Brown said that the case ought to have been disposed of in the lower court from which it had come up on the accusation of statutory burglary. He had changed the charge when he learned the circumstances, which were that Sullivan, while drunk, broke a window in a coal office, thinking to find a fire in the room and go to sleep there. But there was no fire so that he went along and was arrested by a railroad man on the tracks. Public Defender Stewart read letters commending Sullivan and also told of receiving $5 Tuesday morning from the man's wife at Barre, so as to pay his railroad fare home to her. Mr. Stewart stated that Sullivan had started out to look for work, had met a group of thugs in Boston who robbed him of his watch and his overcoat. Then he came to New London to look for work, had some drinks and went to Waterford, where he broke the window in looking for a place to sleep.

For Burglary

Joan Betancourt, 24, and Jose Reyes, 27, were each sentenced to 7 months in jail when they pleaded guilty to statutory burglary on Sept. 12 at the Brennan Clothing store in New London. It was stated to the court that two other men named Angelo and Joe Dias were the instigators of the burglary, but they escaped at the time the police caught the other two. The Dias brothers have never been apprehended. The party of four men had two canvass bags and suit cases packed with clothing when the police discovered them at work in the clothing store. Public Defender Stewart appeared for Betancourt and Reyes.

Burglary at Groton

Elmer Buddington, 17, and Ellis Perkins, 19, pleaded guilty to statutory burglary on the night of Dec. 4 at the George W. Daboll store in Groton. Buddington, who, it was stated, was on probation at the time of this burglary, was sentenced to the state reformatory by Judge Brown and is to be in the custody of Attorney Frank B. Hinckley of Stonington under $1,000 bonds until the sheriff can take him to the court on behalf of Buddington and Attorney Morris Lubchansky made a long plea for Perkins, at the close of which Judge Brown made the sentence six months in jail, suspended for a year under probation.

Jail Sentence for Two

Four months in jail for both John Grabowy and Mrs. Wilhelmina Ruley, both of Norwich, who pleaded guilty to adultery in this city on Dec. 11. The man is a taxi driver and the woman, who is white, is the wife of Benjamin Ruley, colored. Attorney G. C. Morgan represented Grabowy and the public defender appeared for Mrs. Ruley. In a statement made to the court, it was declared that the taxi driver had been solicited by the woman and had yielded to the temptation.

Burglary at Summer Places

Joseph Dodo, 45, of New London and Earl Smith, 23, of Groton were presented on the charge of statutory burglary on Nov. 4 at the summer shack owned at Gardner Point in the town of Groton, by Ralph Patrick of Norwich, Joseph Loomis and Ralph Miner, Public Defender Stewart appeared for both men and Dodo pleaded guilty, but Smith balked at doing that and his plea was passed over for the time being.

Later Smith pleaded guilty. Dodo was sentenced to 10 months in jail and Smith to seven months. The public defender appeared for both men. The state attorney told the court that articles from seven shacks that had been broken into were found in Dodo's house in East New London and that Dodo seemed to be the master mind in the thefts.

Hardware Store Burglar

Wilfred Porter, 21, of this city, was sentenced to the Connecticut reformatory, following his plea of guilty to statutory burglary on Nov. 19, at the store of the Eaton-Chase Co., where he secured some cash and some revolvers. Public Defender Stewart concurred with State Attorney Brown in the opinion that a reformatory sentence was the proper thing for Porter. It was stated that the authorities believe that others were implicated with Porter in the burglary, but have not been able to prove it through him.

Paul Wunch, 34, of Stonington, pleaded guilty to indecent assault on Sept. 12 upon a ten year old girl in his family, the child being known as his daughter. Wunch was sentenced to six months in jail. In the explanation of the case to the court by State Attorney Brown and Public Defender C. L. Stewart, it was brought out that the debased conditions in the home, which arose through the character of Wunch's wife, it was claimed, were largely responsible for what had happened in this case. Mrs. Wunch is now in Rhode Island and the child is under the supervision of Rhode Island authorities.

Bigamist's Sentence Deferred

Sentence was deferred till today (Wednesday) in the case of Daniel Weyant of New London after he had pleaded guilty to bigamy by marrying Iola E. Richards of Waterford on April 18, 1925. Attorney Clayton B. Smith represented the accused, who has a wife, Alice H. Weyant living in Cromwell, this state. Attorney G. C. Morgan who appeared for the first wife said that her attitude towards her husband was forgiving, as she said she had not communicated with him for several years and there had been a report that she was dead. She thought he might have married again in the belief that she was dead.

Emma Laviano and Abraham Scott of this city, both colored, were each fined $50 and costs on the charge of lascivious carriage and behavior on Dec. 17 to which they pleaded guilty. The state attorney said that their trouble grew out of intoxication and his recommendation of $50 fine for each was not opposed by Judge Thomas J. Kelly, counsel for the two accused.

Mrs. Grace E. McGinn of Hartford Clarence Maynard and James Chapman of Old Lyme were presented together to plead, to charges of adultery in Old Lyme. Mrs. McGinn and Chapman on Sept. 29 and Mrs. McGinn and Maynard on Sept. 1. Both of the men were sentenced to jail for three months, without costs, and the woman was sentenced to two months for each offense, a total of four months, without costs. The public defender and Attorney G. C. Morgan who appeared for the accused explained that these cases were the outcome of a condition of low moral standards.

Joseph Toczko of this city pleaded not guilty to the charge of sale of liquor on May 3, 1925 to Walter Kazuky. The accused man elected a jury trial. The charge is that he sold a half pint of whiskey. Attorneys V. P. A. Quinn and Thomas M. Shields are his counsel in the case.

Expects to Deport Simborski

State Attorney Brown brought to the attention of the court the case of Joseph Simborski of his city, charged with cruelty to animals on Nov. 14. This is the man who the police believe has been responsible for a number of cases of mutilation of animals in this vicinity. He has been in jail in default of furnishing bonds of $3,000 and there have been no cases of mutilations since he was arrested.

Puts Bonds at $10,000

State Attorney Brown said he should ask a continuance in this case as it is hoped that arrangements may be made to deport Simborski as an undesirable alien. In view of the belief of the authorities that the man ought not to be at large under any conditions, the state attorney asked that the bond be raised to $10,000 and this was ordered by the court.

For Liquor Transportation

Frank Broege and Carlo May, 28, of New London, were presented jointly on a complaint alleging illegal transportation of liquor on Dec. 11.

In regard to Broege, State Attorney Brown said he was satisfied that this man did not know there was alcohol in the coupe in which he was riding with May who was driving the car from New London to Westerly. Broege said he did not know about the liquor and May said Broege did not know about it. State policemen who were checking up automobiles that day found 25 gallons of alcohol in the rear of the coupe that May was driving and Broege said he had merely asked for a ride to Westerly.

For all these reasons, State Attorney Brown said he should recommend a nolle in the case of Broege, which was ordered by Judge Brown.

A plea for leniency for May was made by Attorney Thomas E. Troland, who said that the man was 28, was married, his wife being 19, and they had two young children. May had never been in trouble before.

In view of May's good record and the circumstances in this case, Judge Brown said he was not inclined to give as heavy a penalty as he felt should be given generally in this class of liquor law violations. He made the sentence seven months in jail.

SECOND DEGREE BILL FOUND AGAINST BERRY

The grand jury in the superior court here Tuesday failed to find a true bill for first degree murder against Eugene J. Berry but found against him for second degree murder for chloroforming his two little sons, Eugene, 6, and Roland Joseph, 5, in the Berry tenement at 324 Boswell avenue on Oct. 20, 1925. Berry will be put to plea on Thursday morning.

The grand jury was given the case at about 1:15 o'clock, after receiving instructions from Judge Allyn L. Brown and their finding was ready by 12:45 p. m. when the eighteen men returned to the court room and the foreman Attorney Thomas E. Troland, delivered the finding to the clerk of the court, Judge George E. Parsons. The clerk of the grand jury was Attorney J. James Floyd and its members included: Attorney Troland, Almarin T. WOMAN FUR COAT THIEF HAS SKIPPED BOND

Gladys Lorraine, alias Marie Boyd, who stole a $500 fur coat from the Caron Specialty shop but was detected and the coat recovered, has apparently skipped her $2,500 bond. She was not in the criminal superior court here Tuesday morning when her case was called and State Attorney Arthur M. Brown had the bond called after making an explanation to the court.

The state attorney told the court that Judge Turano of Westerly, counsel for the woman, said he could not locate his client and he (Turano) felt obligated to pay the bond himself if she could not be found as it was upon his representation that Charles H. Brown of Stonington had gone bonds for the woman. The state attorney said further that the Lorraine woman had a police record "as long as your arm" in half a dozen different cities. He asked to have the bond called and said he proposed to give Judge Turano two weeks in which to produce the woman. If he brought her into court in that time the bond would be opened.

NORWICH TOWN

The report of the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, as submitted at the annual meeting of the First Congregational church, was as follows: Financially the church is solvent. The ministers' salary has been paid promptly and between $60 and $700 spent in refinishing the interior of the meeting house and repairing the chapel. A legacy of $2,000 was gratefully received and later in the year another of $100 each expressive of an immortal love for the old church.

The men of the church have been especially active on the line of finance. A year ago they put out 150 holiday calendars into the homes of the parish. As their faith is 100 per cent., they expect a 100 per cent. return of the calendars, which if realized will net over $200. When we found the chapel must be shingled the men put on a mock trial to buy the shingles and then mounted the roof and nailed them on. They are just trying to keep in sight of the women who for some time have set them a good pace in money getting.

Two unusual events occurred. One was the Union Thanksgiving service at Grace Episcopal church, when all the Protestant churches of Norwich Town, Yantic and Fitchville, united in praising God for His goodness to the children of men. Every minister stood within the sanctum sanctorum and was reckoned for the time being as truly frocked. The other unusual event was the exchange of minister organist and choir, with the minister organist and choir, of the Church of the Good Shepherd. The penalty of hearing an old sermon was offset by having a new congregation to study and sing to.

Beautiful evenings and large gatherings marked the week of prayer services which were held in conjunction with our neighbors of the First Methodist Episcopal church. The attempt to hold neighborhood meetings at the homes of the people in the Eastertide did not materialize favorably so far as numbers in attendance was concerned. At the opening of the autumn season, the homes of the parish were visited by those delegated and an invitation extended to it daily day service, and to the general worship and fellowship of the church.

The young people have been markedly helpful in sustaining the Sunday evening service. In a red and white contest, the attendance quadrupled and the unchurched portion of the community interested, some portions in a permanent way. Thirteen infants have been baptized. The pastor has attended thirteen funerals six of them members of the church; performed ten marriage services, three of the twenty were members of our church. Accessions twelve on confession of faith and loyalty, seven by letters from other churches, making a net gain in membership of thirteen.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor society has had a most successful year, with the addition of both active and associate members. The society has united with Young People's society of the Church of the Good Shepherd on two occasions at Christmas, and the last mentioned society met with the Norwich Town society during the summer, at an open air meeting held on Meeting House rocks. Visits have been made to the C. E. societies in Versailles and Jewett City, and the local society has, on different occasions, entertained Norwich Christian Endeavor union, and Lebanon and Jewett City societies. During Christian Endeavor week two evenings were given over to special programmes. An attendance contest between the Red's and the White's increased the attendance. At the close of the contest, which was planned by the Lookout committee, an entertainment was given the victorious Red's. Speakers throughout the year that have made meetings of especial interest were: Herbert E. Hicks, of Hartford; Miss Gertrude Ladd, Hanover; Frederic H. Wyant, Norwich, and others. These included: Mrs. Harriet Hyde Zumbro, who spoke of her work in India; Miss Seabury, under the auspices of Norwich C. E. union; two members from the local society, Miss Ruth Beebe, of Athens, Alabama, and Miss Helen Smith, of China, who told of their work. This society, during the summer, sent two delegates to the C. E. Summer school, at Storrs, and three delegates to the Taftville Acorn institute.

Junior C. E. society—This society which was discontinued for some time, resumed its meetings the first Sunday in November, with a membership of twenty-one, two of which since joining, have left Norwich Town. The Sunday preceding Thanksgiving, a basket of good things was presented to a member of the parish who is a shut-in. At this time the singing of the Endeavorers, during their visit, was much appreciated.

Lathrop Memorial Foreign Missionary society—Seven meetings have been held during the year, all of which have opened with a devotional service, and later different phases of the work are brought up for discussion. Collections during the year from mite boxes, Home league, Lenten offerings, Jubilee, Eastern Connecticut branch and the Thank offering, have totaled $120.49. This amount, plus a check for $48.05 from the church treasurer, in all amounting to $168.54, was sent to the treasurer of the Eastern Connecticut branch, during the year.

Home Missionary society—The meetings of this society were not held as regularly as indicated on the church calendar; but members have come together a dozen times during the working year. The first meeting in the fall is in the form of a social gathering, when members bring their summer savings and make plans for the winter's work. Aside from the annual New Year's day supper, the only supper served during the past year was in April. This was followed by tableaux and songs of Auld Lang Syne. The Thank offering meeting was held in February at the parsonage. At other meetings, garments for Home missionary families, have been made and the sick

Recessed For Dinner at 8 P. M. After an Eight Hour Session—Spokesmen For Both Parties Denied Rumors That an Agreement Had Been Reached—Situation Practically as It Was When the Session Began—Adjourned Evening Session at 10:40 Until 11 A. M. Today.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—After an eight hour session anthracite miners and operators who are endeavoring to reach an agreement to end the hard coal strike were still deadlocked tonight. Announcement was made shortly after 8 p. m., that the conferees had recessed for dinner and would continue their meeting afterward.

Widely circulated reports that an agreement had been reached were positively denied. Many reports came into the Union League club where the conference is being held to the effect that broadcasting stations had spread word throughout the anthracite regions that there had been a settlement.

Assurance was given by spokesmen both for the miners and for the operators that there was no basis for the reports that the situation stood practically where it did when the joint conference began shortly before noon.

ADJOURNED AT 10.30 P. M. IN ABSOLUTE DEADLOCK

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—In an absolute deadlock, the anthracite joint wage conference adjourned at 10.30 tonight until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Both sides expressed their willingness to continue negotiations in an effort to end the long coal strike.

President Lewis stated that he would mess to continue negotiations in an without an agreement as a "public calamity." Various propositions offered by either side were voted upon and rejected by one side or the other.

It was announced the operators submitted a statement of their position. This was voted down by the miners after a long discussion in which the miners reiterated their opposition to arbitration.

The position of the operators was that they were willing to discuss the merits of any plan, but were convinced that, in order to restore confidence in the industry, regain lost markets and provide work for employes, an acceptable plan must provide for a long term agreement, provisions for wage adjustments if economic conditions require, and arbitration for avoiding deadlocks in case of disagreement.

The miners offered a proposal for the examination of the operators' books by the miners' negotiating committee. The answer of the operators to this was as follows:

"Our answer to your proposal regarding the submission of our books, records, etc., to the anthracite mine workers' negotiating committee in this conference is that such submission and examination would be a task requiring the services of many experts and covering weeks of labor. At the end of this labor nothing would have developed that anyone would be bound by.

"We have offered to supply this or any other data required by the board of arbitration as the basis for a decision.

"We accordingly offer an amendment::

"That the operators will submit such books, records and other information as may be considered pertinent to a board of arbitration."

The miners proposed a joint request for the passage of a bill by congress for federal regulation of the anthracite industry. The operators' reply was as follows:

"Your proposal as to congressional legislation, as we read it, involves the regulation of the industry as a whole, including the fixing by congress, or such body as it shall create, of the prices at which coal shall be sold and the wages for which the men shall work.

"After consulting counsel, we are advised that, regardless of other objections to this proposal, it is clearly beyond the constitutional power of either state or federal legislation to pass such a law. Counsel tells us that the decision of the supreme court of the United States, declaring the Kansas industrial court act unconstitutional, which decision was applauded by the miners' union, is but one of a number of decisions which leave no doubt on the point.

"We accordingly vote 'No' on this proposal."

The miners then offered the following resolution:

"Whereas the governor of Pennsylvania has outlined a plan for settlement of the present anthracite controversy: and

"Whereas this plan meets the requirements of the situation demanded by the operators in that it fully protects the interests of the public and;

"Whereas this plan has been endorsed by the public in the anthracite consuming territory, therefore,

"Be it resolved, by the joint conference that the plan of the governor of Pennsylvania be and is hereby adopted as the basis of settlement and a sub-committee is hereby created, both sides to appoint two members for the purpose of writing a contract upon the governor's proposal."

The operators voted "no."

The Markle plan was proposed by the operators. President Lewis made a long argument in opposition to this plan and the miners voted "no."

The following statement was then made by the operators:

"You have asked for our suggestion as to the next move. There is a difference of opinion between the two parties. It is the general custom and practice in all countries when differences arise between parties which cannot be settled among themselves to have such differences referred to others to settle. In the present situation we have proposed to do this by arbitration. You still object to arbitration. In such case we feel the public looks to us to compose our differences by continuance of negotiations."

Replying Mr. Lewis stated that the miners were willing to remain in the conference and that he would regard a break-up of the meeting without an agreement as a public calamity.

At the suggestion of Chairman Alvan Markle the conference adjourned at 10.30 p. m. to meet at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

THE BERLINS HAVE RETURNED TO NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—After a two day preliminary honeymoon at Atlantic City, and "tickled to death" with married life, Irving Berlin and his bride, the former Miss Ellin Mackay, came back to New York tonight.

A porter guarded the door of their drawing room from newspaper men from the time the song writer and former singing waiter and the daughter of the Postal Telegraph millions boarded the train. They slipped out at Newark, N. Y., climbed in Berlin's limousine, slid past a traffic light or two, shook off the squad of newspaper men following in taxis, and headed for New York as unheralded as they could have wished.

FIVE ROBBERS CAPTURED BY THE WARWICK POLICE

WARWICK, R. I., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Three hours after receiving a report that armed men had forced an entrance into an Oakland Beach cottage, held up the occupants and escaped with $140 in cash, cigars and some cigarettes, Warwick police surrounded another cottage and apprehended five men, three of whom they allege, were identified by the robbed men as their assailants.

Two revolvers and a double barrelled shotgun were taken by the officers. The men are in the Apponaug jail.

14-YEAR-OLD AMERICAN GIRL $4,000,000 HEIRESS

LONDON, Jan. 6—(AP)—Little Jean Ferris, the fourteen year old American school girl, who has become the heiress to $4,000,000 from the Spreckels fortune, chased the European flood, the reports of doings of royalties and news of high finance and politics out of the most prominent places in the London newspapers today.

Jean came into her legacy through the termination of a trust fund from the estate of Claus Spreckels, pioneer San Francisco sugar magnate, her grandfather. This trust fund was created twelve years ago in the name of Jean's mother, Mrs. Emma O. Ferris, since deceased.

The name of the Surrey village of Nutfield was wrongly given in early dispatches from San Francisco. And this surrounded with mystery for a time the whereabouts of this school girl heiress to millions. But when Arthur Hutton, who lives at Nutfield priory, was identified as her mother's third husband, the full story of the romance was revealed. The village was then found to contain many people who were proud to say they "knew Jean when she was just a little girl."

Jean returned a few days ago to school at Bournemouth after spending her Christmas holidays at Nutfield, where she lives during the summer with her step-father.

CONVICTED OF MAILING DEFAMATORY LITERATURE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—(AP)—William Wolfe, arrested a few weeks ago for sending defamatory literature through the mails, which indirectly threatened the president and other high Washington officials, was convicted in the federal court here today, after a trial lasting but a few minutes.

Baker Was Aware of Gilpatric's Looting

Knew That His Chief in Putnam Bank Was Hopelessly Involved.

HARTFORD, Jan. 6—(AP)—That G. Harold Gilpatric was looting the First National bank, of Putnam, was no secret to his friend and assistant, Guy L. Baker, according to Baker's admissions to Assistant U. S. Attorney George H. Cohen, to whom, last Saturday, he told his own part in the looting of the bank.

For many months, Baker told Mr Cohen, before the former state treasurer fired a bullet into his head on August 7, 1924, Baker knew that his chief was hopelessly involved in all manner of thefts and embezzlements from funds not only of the bank but also of many individuals.

Baker's admission that he knew of Gilpatric's peculations long before the fatal day in August, 1924, came after continued protests of his belief in Gilpatric's innocence until the very moment of the crash.

The admission explains, to a considerable extent, why Baker "became suspicious," when his chief failed to appear in the bank by ten o'clock on the morning of August 7, why he called him by telephone so often during the day, and why late that same afternoon he hastened to the Gilpatric house and forced his way in to find the former state treasurer's unconscious form upon a bed.

Gilpatric knew that Baker had found him out, the former assistant cashier told Mr. Cohen.

"On several occasions," he said, "I called Gilpatric's attention to these matters and objected to the manner in which Gilpatric had appropriated certain bonds to his own use."

But the assistant cashier's protests, so Mr. Cohen was told, seemed to have no more weight than did the objections of Gilpatric's assistant in the state treasury office who worried himself into a nervous collapse over his chief's Liberty bond manipulations.

"I'll take care of that," or some similar remark, was the only reply that Gilpatric made to him on these occasions, Baker declared.

But while he insisted that he was fully aware of Gilpatric's operations and that Gilpatric knew that he was, Baker was positive that Gilpatric knew nothing of his thefts. The former assistant cashier said that he believed Gilpatric was so occupied with his own financial interests, that he paid but little attention to what anybody else may have been doing.

To William B. Carrollson, a federal bank examiner sent to Hartford, by Chief Bank Examiner Norman S. Bean on request of Mr. Cohen, Baker today continued to deny any thefts other than those mentioned in the confession he signed last Saturday. He also persistently refused to admit that he ever had had any part in any of Gilpatric's manipulations, and said that he had played a lone game, nd that Gilpatric, so far as he knew, had done the same thing.

Unusual interest was added to Mr. Carrollson's questioning of Baker, as he was one of four examiners who went through the books of the First National bank, of Putnam, before it closed its doors about a year and a half ago.

Confronted with the fact that the value of bonds missing from the safe deposit box of the McDuffee estate was $9,500, $900 more than he admitted taking, Baker still denied that his thefts had been any greater than he had at first admitted.

"Why should I conceal anything now?" He asked his questioners. "I've made a clean breast of everything. My thefts do not exceed $16,500."

Baker is scheduled to face United States Commissioner Frederick J. Corbett for his first federal hearing tomorrow. So far as could be learned today, he has not yet engaged counsel

INVESTIGATING RESULTS OF BRITISH RUBBER MONOPOLY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—Investigation of the situation growing out of the British rubber monopoly was started today by the house commerce committee.

Opening the inquiry, Secretary Hoover assailed "intrusion" by any government into trading operation on a vast scale.

"This practice," he said, "raises a host of new dangers—the inevitable aftermath of any such effort by political agencies to interfere with the normal progress of supply and demand."

The foreign monopolistic controls of the crue rubber price, he added, threatens "not only the same progress of the world but contains in it great dangers to international good will."

In addition to the committee's hearing, the rubber situation was discussed in the house by Representative Frear, republican, Wisconsin, while in the senate a resolution was introduced by Senator King, democrat, Utah, to direct the judiciary committee to investigate alleged manipulations of rubber prices by foreign and democratic "monopolies."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—The American Railway association tonight announced that the railroads in 1925 handled "the greatest freight traffic on record," and the bureau of railway economics disclosed that for the first eleven months in the year, class one railroads earned, on the basis of their own property valuation figures, an annual return of 4.82 per cent. The bureau, which is maintained by the carriers, placed the net operating income for the eleventh month at $1,041,689,-000, against $899,666,000 during the corresponding 1924 period.

Returns filed by the railroads with its car service division of the Railway association, showed that car loadings in 1925 totalled 51,177,912 cars, an increase of 2,643,529 ovre 1924 and 1,365,-849 over 1923, as well as an advance of 683,392 over the division's estimates for the year, made last spring.

While the peak was reached in the week ending August 29, with 1,124,436 cars handled, "the greatest number for any one week on record," the association declared that for 20 separate weeks, beginning about mid-July, loadings exceeded the million mark.

Turning to loadings for the week ending December 26 the association declared that these totaled 701,079, an advance of 53,755 over the corresponding week last year. PERUVIANS ATTACKED BY CHILIANS AT TACNA

ARICA, Chile, Jan. 6—(AP)—Serious disturbances took place upon the arrival at Tacna yesterday, of 36 Peruvians from the steamer Pimac who were attacked by Chileans. In the battle which became general, many of the Peruvians were bruised or otherwise wounded.

One report has it that General Pizarro, former Peruvian minister of war, fired a revolver and wounded a Chilean.

The Peruvians, who arrived at Arica today aboard the Rimac, proceeded immediately to Tacna to assume various duties under General Pizarro. They were met at the Tacna station by a crow of Chileans, and immediately fighting ensued. Both police and troops were hastily called to the scene, and after a semblance of order was restored, the Peruvians marched under military protection, to General Pizarro's residence.

A still greater crowd had gathered there, and the demonstrations were renewed.

Chilean reports assert that General Pizarro appeared on the balcony of his house and fired into the crowd, the bullet hitting a Chilean. Police and troops again intervened and the rioters were dispersed.

FLOODS PLACE PARIS IN A CRITICAL SITUATION

PARIS, Jan. 6—(AP)—Paris is in an extremely critical situation; a further rise of thirty inches in the Seine would precipitate a catastrophe. Despite protective works hastily thrown up on both sides of the river, the waters are invading the city. The first effect of this is the closing of the Invalides Railroad station, directly across the street from the ministry of foreign affairs.

Traffic to Versailles, Rambouillet, Dearegaux and Granville has been suspended. The island of St. Denis was abandoned this evening by the residents who took refuge in the city barracks.

The Seine has risen from two to four feet in the last twenty-four hours, and weather officials who predicted yesterday that the peak of the flood would be reached tonight, say now that it will continue to swell until Friday. At Austerlitz Bridge, the Seine registers 5.20 metres (about 17 feet,) which is the highest since 1910, when the most disastrous floods in the history of the city occurred. The electric railway tracks between Paris and Versailles for several miles are under water.

While the people of Paris are not panicky, they are waiting for the worst.

HOUSE COMMITTEE FAVORS THE WAR DEBT AGREEMENTS

Representative Raney and Several Other Members, Opposed to the Italian Settlement, Have Announced They Will Fight the Agreement—In the Senate Reed Lost, 54 to 16, His Proposal to Investigate Alleged Would Court and Foreign Debt Propaganda.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Approval by the house ways and means committee today of war debt settlements negotiated since the last congress was coupled with an announcement by two democratic committee members that they would oppose acceptance of the Italian settlement on the house flour.

These two, Representatives Rainey, of Illinois, and Hull, of Tennessee, based their opposition to the Italian settlement on the ground that a dictatorship was not a sufficiently stable form of government to guarantee a contract extending over more than half a century.

Holding that this form of government existed in Italy at present, they argued that it was ill advised to accept a settlement calling for the major part of the payment in the later years of the contract period. Both favored postponement of an agreement for ten years, with Italy keeping up interest payments during that period at the rate specified in the pending settlement. At the end of ten years, they felt, the stability of the Italian government could be more definitely determined.

Besides the Italian settlement, other agreements approved were those with Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia, Latvia, Esthonia and Roumania. Chairman Green of the committee, said a resolution authorizing acceptance of all of these settlements would be placed up in the house Tuesday.

REED LOSES FIGHT AGAINST FOREIGN DEBT SETTLEMENTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The Senate refused today, 54 to 16, to order an investigation into propaganda in favor of approval of the world court adherence resolution and the Italian and other foreign debt settlements.

Such an inquiry was urged vigorously by Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, who after losing the preliminary skirmish in the foreign relations committee 8 to 3, carried his fight to the floor of the senate.

In some quarters the vote on the Reed resolution was regarded as a fair test of strength on the world court issue, he 54 votes cast against the resolution exceeded by seven a two third majority which must be mustered to put through the measure for American adherence to the court.

Proponents of adherence said the opposition had mustered maximum strength on the ballot. Opposition leaders denied this, saying that on the final test they would muster from eighteen to twenty votes, but they conceded that this would be short of the number necessary to block favorable action.

SPEEDY ENACTMENT OF LEGISLATION IN BAY STATE

BOSTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—All records for rapid enactment of legislation in Massachusetts were broken today when a bill to validate the city election in Chicopee last December was passed by both houses of the legislature and signed by Governor Fuller. The measure required forty minutes to pass through the various stages before it was laid on the desk of the governor.

The passage of the bill was the first formal act of the legislature at the opening of its annual session.

The Chicopee city election was held one week earlier than th charter provided because a copy of the documents in the hands of the city clerk contained a misprint. As a result the election was held on the first Tuesday in December instead of the first Tuesday after the first Monday, as prescribed.

The bill was started on its way in a conference between Chicopee representatives in the two branches of the legislature, the speaker of the house and the president of the senate.

SHEPHERD FIGHTING FOR M'CLINTOCK $1,000,000 ESTATE

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP)—William Darling Shepherd, acquitted of a charge of murdering his youthful millionaire ward, William Nelson McIintock, today began his fight to gain possession of McClintock's $1,000,000 estate willed by him to Shepherd.

The probate court refused to accept the will on the grounds that there was a presumption of undue influence on the testator by Shepherd who drew up the will.

Miss Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancee, who was given an $8,000 annuity and eight relatives of young McClintock are contesting the case.

Lawyers for Shepherd and the plaintiffs outlined their cases before Judge Kickham Scanlan A number of present and former servants in the Shepherd home were examined as to signatures on hte will.

SALE OF THE STATE GAME FARM AND FISH HATCHERY

HARTFORD, Jan. 6—(AP)—The sale of the state game farm and fish hatchery at Madison to Sturges G. Redfield, of Clinton, will be completed tomorrow by the transfer of a waranty deed to the property by State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers. The sale price is $21,000 and the property includes two dwellings as well as barns and sheds which have been used for breeding of game birds. In all there are about 140 acres of land on which is a pond and a low dam and fish hatchery tanks on the Hammonasset river. All breeding and other equipment has been removed to other state hatcheries.

The farm was operated by the state board of fisheries and game for several years as an experiment to supply, at low cost, young wild life for the forests and streams of the state. It was found, however, that the plan was too expensive and the 1925 general assembly authorized the sale of the farm.

SEIZURE OF LIQUOR IN DRUG STORE IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—Holding 15 customers behind locked doors while they raided the Hollis Drug company store in the South End today, members of the police headquarters liquor squad seized six gallons of assorted liquors and arrested four clerks for keeping and exposing liquor for sale. John J. Wellington, one of the clerks, also was charged with assault with intent to kill after he flourished a revolver at one of the raiders.

The officers said that as they entered one clerk pressed a button with his foot, ringing a warning bell in the store basement. An officer reached the foot of the basement stairs in time to prevent another clerk from emptying a container of alcohol.

A JUDGMENT OF $1,000,000 AGAINST GERALD CHAPMAN

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The U. S. government today was awarded a judgment of $1,000,000 against Gerald Chapman murderer and mail bandit, for recovery on property stolen by Chapman and others in a mail robbery in New York city, on August 24, 1921, in a decision filed by Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas. The action, begun when Chapman was transferred to Connecticut a year ago, was uncontested.

Chapman, whose appeal from an adverse decision by Judge Thomas who on Dec. 14, refused to grant Chapman a writ of haocas corpus and to order his return from the state prison to the Atlanta penitentiary to serve the remainder of his 25-year federal sentence for the robbery, will be heard in New York on Jan. 26, is under sentence to be hanged on March 3, for the murder of a New Britain policeman.

The decision in addition to the award of a million dollars allows the government interest on that amount from August 24, 1921, and requires Chapman to pay the costs of court which are to be determined later.

Personal service upon Chapman was made while he was being tried in Hartford for murdering James Skelly, the past office department as bailee for bonds which were being transferred at hte time of the New York robbery, benig the complainant.

"JOE" SHIPPEE OF PLAINFIELD IS THE CHAMPION FIDDLER OF ALL NEW ENGLAND

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 6—(AP)—A Connecticut Yankee came into his own once as "Joe" Shippee, 69 years old, overcame his shyness to win the all-New England fiddle title at the Albee theatre here tonight. When the contest was first announced, the Plainfield man said he was "afeard his fainting spells" miht make it impossible for him to participate but the bashfulness he exhibited on the opening night vanished tonight as he played reel after reel, jig after jig, to the delight of the huge audience.

At the conclusion, when he stalked back to his chair, his wrinkled coat carrying the gold medal emblematical of his victory, he exhibited the only enthusiasm he had shown all evening. As the applause rolled out and "Jim" Gaffney, Providence's own, who was runner-up, offered his hand in congratulation, Joe waved the other hand over his head to the audience and a broad smile spread over his furrowed face. Seven of his children helped swell the applause.

During the competition tonight Shippee paid strict attention to his fiddling. Body erect, and straight, only one foot tapping out the time, his eyes boring into the fiddle, he was apparently oblivious of the crowds watching. Of the merit of his music there is no doubt. He knows more of music and rythym than does the Providence man, but the latter got into the swing of the whole affair with more spontaneity. Gaffney tapped first one foot, then the other and then both. His body swayed and his head tossed. Good music came from his fiddle but not as good as from Shippee's in the opinion of the judges.

The rules for the selection of the champion were that each man should first play all four numbers of a quadrille and then two pieces of their own selection. Among those played by "Jim" Gaffney were "Wield Me the Keel Row" a version of "The Campbells Are Coming," in square time, a Scotch tune and an Irish one, something on the order of "Derrydown."

Shippee's quadrill was a medley, in the first number was included the famous line "That's where the laugh comes in," and in the second he inserted "We Won't Get Home Until Morning." Others he played were a Scotch hornpipe air, "Johnny Get Your Gun," and the "Arkansas Traveler."

CHAPLIN'S GRAND LIST SHOWS BIG INCREASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 6.—An increase of about $115,000 in the grand list of 1925 over the previous year has been effected through the revalution of property in the town of Chaplin and officials of the town are looking forward to disturbances from some of the taxpayers whose property has been been doubled in value by the revision. The increase of fifty per cent. has prevailed in many cases. In number the added value made taxable is regarded as nominal and but few holdings in the town escaped the revision work. It was voted to revise real estate and taxable property values at a regular town meeting held last year. The board of assessors elected last October and consisting of Charles B. Russ, Charles S. Turner and Walter S. Vaill have now completed their work. Town Clerk Burt M. Welch now holds the figures and is having the Abstract list compiled for use by the collector of taxes. In 1924 the total grand list was $285,000 and the revision has brought the 1925 figure to over $400,000. Objections to the tax value are expected to come up for consideration by the board of relief which will meet in February and which comprises Samuel Chappell, Winslow B. Gallup and Frank W. Landon. Figuring on the basis of the present 1925 grand list total it is believed that the expenses of the town can be met this year with an 18 mill tax. The 1925 tax rate was 25 mills.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON'S CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IS ACTIVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 6—Representations are to be made at once through the Danielson Chamber of Commerce to the Connecticut company relative to the extension of motor coach service to East Killingly and Goodyear and relative to having the coaches now operating through here go down into Wauregan for the convenience of the people of that community.

This activity follows immediately after the annual meeting of the chamber at the Attawaugan hotel Tuesday evening, when there was a dinner, election of officers and a discussion of various ways and means of making the organization an alert, active and valuable force for Danielson's good.

Transportation received very considerable attention, as did also the matter of having an emergency airport developed here. Then, too, there was a suggestion of a program likely to result in bringing new industries to Danielson.

William Sangster, president, presided at the meeting, which was addressed at length by Warden Walter Anderson. Warden Anderson said many things about transportation matters, airport development, including an arrangement under which Governor John H. Trumbull, as president of an airways organization, will come to Danielson in the near future, through the invitation of the Chamber of Commerce, to speak relative to airways development.

The meeting authorized the issuing of a pamphlet that will show Killingly's textile plants, power plants, state highway routes and motor coach lines, its attractiveness from many viewpoints as a favorable place for locating new industries and much information tending to bring new industries here. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that a silk concern may be obtained from the many that are located in New Jersey and some of which would be pleased of an opportunity ot re-locate in New England.

Immediate stress is being placed by the Chamber on getting extensions of motor coach service to East Killingly and to Goodyear and into Wauregan Center. These extensions are of vital interest to Danielson mercantile concerns as well as important to the communities that would be benefited by the proposed additional service.

Another matter claiming the attention of the chamber is that of improving the route to Goodyear by North and Maple streets. Putting this route into good condition would almost certainly make the relations of Goodyear and Danielson much closer even than they are at present and serve the general public welfare.

There was much enthusiasm among the 28 men who attended the dinner over the program to be carried out in 1926, and good results are to be anticipated.

William Sangster was elected president, Henry Johnson vice president, Clifford H. Starkweather treasurer and Gordon J. Hale, secretary.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gallup at one o'clock Wednesday afternoon funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Burton were conducted by Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church, assisted by Rev. H. H. Conklin of Baltic, formerly pastor of the Danielson Methodist-Episcopal church. Many relatives and friends attended the service. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were six grand sons of Mrs. Burton, Henry Gallup, Elmer Gallup, Denton Gallup, Lindner Gallup, Ellsworth Burton, Bridgeport and Roscoe Burton. There were many beautiful floral pieces. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

From the home in Dayville Wednesday the funeral of Mrs. Armand Henault was held, with services at St. Joseph's church, Rev. Ignatius Kost being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. There was a large funeral congregation. The bearers were William Gilhooley, Frank McGorty, Andrew Berthe, Joseph Miller, H. T. Gagnon and A. J. Cavanaugh. There was a wealth of floral remembrances. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

From the officers and members of the executive committee of the Killingly High School Alumni association there has come to the members an announcement of an Alumni Hop to be held of next week in the assembly hall of the high school. The announcement reads that a series of such dances, in response to a number of requests, are to be held during the coming months. The announcements bear the names of Miss Marjorie I. Gaffney, president, Arthur F. Hughes, vice president, J. Leo Bodo, secretary-treasurer, Norman A. Reeves, C. Clinton Cleveland and Florence Hargraves members of the executive committee.

Planned activities of the Alumni association for 1926 center about things to be done in making more attractive the assembly hall in the enlarged school—as it will be when the additions to be made this year are completed. The association has a fund of about $500 in its treasury. From this and other revenue the association expects to have during the year, a drop curtain and other stage appointments in the assembly hall likely will be purchased. The Killingly High school fund also amounts to the considerable sum of $3,000, from which, it is understood, it is planned to buy gymnasium equipment, effecting a material saving to the town.

The decision of the town to expend $150,000 for the enlargement of the high school building has aroused the enthusiasm of the Alumni association, so greater interest in the school and its affairs is to be anticipated from the organization in the future.

Of Windham county interest is the following, from a Providence paper:

Jazz may be all right for the young things of today but if you want real dancing, graceful and beautiful, you will have to go back to the days of yore when the scrape of fiddle on string and the tap of a leather-boot accompaniment whirled couples with the intricate steppings of Money Must and Portland Fancy, the hop polka, the "reel" and the slow-moving waltz.

That, at least, is the opinion of a visitor in town, Mrs. Jonathan F. Whitford of Eastford, Conn., who had the distinction of being the only woman with the 15 fiddlers from this state and Connecticut who assembled yesterday for the fiddlers' contest.

She is known to be one of the best "square" dancers of the section in which she lives and though she did not come to Providence to advertise her skill, but merely to aid her husband whose poor eyesight made the journey to the city too hazardous alone she danced a measure or two of "Miss McLeod's Reel" for the Town Criers, while her husband drew his expert bow with all the sangfroid of a Kreisler and the other fiddlers stopped an accompaniment to the demonstration that the art of the old-fashion dance has not passed. Her appearance was an impromptu number on the programme that featured the Criers' luncheon in honor of the old violinists.

"Do young people still dance those old-fashioned steps Indeed they do, and like them too. Their partners jazz 'em up a bit some times but down our way where the young folks have little amusement and are hungry for it, they still fall in with plenty of go when my husband tunes up for one of the old dances. Jazz is all right, if you know how to dance it, I suppose. I don't, so I can't see much to commend in it. Certainly it isn't pretty."

Mrs. Whitford admitted that she met Mr. Whitford at a country dance and their romance dated from that time, 15 years ago. For 50 years, he has fiddled for the occasions in the section where they live and only last week appeared as the "orchestra" at an Eastford "affair."

Mrs. Whitford's interest in dancing, she says, is secondary to the great hobby of her life now—the collection of antique furniture. "My antiques may not be any better than Henry Ford's but I have some very choice pieces that I warrant will match anything he has." She was particularly jubilant over the possession of a rare old bed recently acquired and several new pieces she has added to her collection. When she returns to Eastford in a few days, she expects to start out right away on a trip through for a certain piece she has heard of and very much wants. 'Henry Ford'd be welcome to have it if he could get there first!" she twinkled.

Fog, rain and high temperatures have served the past three days to remove practically all of the ice from highway surfaces in this territory.

In observance of the feast of the Epiphany there were special masses at St. James' church Wednesday morning.

Thomas J. Aylward left early Wednesday on a business trip to New York and Newark.

Indisputable evidence that people read Bulletin advertising carefully is found in the number of times the attention of officials of the Danielson Trust company has been called to the bank's New Year's announcement in this paper. In the advertisement the assets were shown as $200,000. It should have read $2,000,000. Here is indication that there are many keen observers of such detail and that advertising is read by an endless number of people.

Continued thawing weather during Wednesday seemed to remove any possibility of ice on Quinebaug lake becoming heavy enough to allow cutting to begin during the present week. Probably next week will see the harvesting underway.

Having completed repairs to the dam and other work about the plant, the mill of the Acme Products company at East Killingly has resumed operations.

The Forty and Eight of the American Legion in Windham county and sections of Windham county has selected Danielson for its headquarters for 1926. Meetings are to be held here regularly. The organization has representation in Moosup, Plainfield, Putnam, North Grosvenordale, Willimantic and other places within this county and in several places in Tolland county. It is now concerned with recruiting its membership, arouse enthusiasm for its plans and projects and will arrange a promenade to be held here in the spring.

The following are the newly elected officers of the Nazarene Sunday school. Superintendent, John Dolff; assistant superintendent, George Richardson; treasurer, George E. Miner; secretary, Amelia Jessup; organist, Marion Gallup; pianist, Esther Ware.

Due to the fact that cold weather came in early October and to the fact that while only brief periods of zero cold have been experienced it has been steadily cold more fuel has been consumed here by many householders up to this date than had been burned at this time last year.

PUTNAM

NEEDS OF WATER DEPT. UP FOR DISCUSSION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 6—The greater part of last night's session of the new city council was taken up in hearing the needs of the Water department as outlined by Alexander Gilman, chairman of the board of water commissioners, and Henry S. Symonds, of Boston, a well known hydraulic engineer, who has been familiar with local conditions for several years.

A reservoir to supplement or take the place of the nearly obsolete standpipe was said to be an absolute necessity. This proposed water basin would be 122 feet in diameter, of an inclosed type, and with a capacity of 2,000,000 gallons, which would supply the city for two days without the use of the pumps. The average daily consumption is slightly under 1,000,000 gallons.

The present tank, holds but 143,000 gallons, the floor of it has been worn to half its original thickness. The reservoir that the commissioners favor would be built on land owned by the city which was purchased several years ago for this purpose through G. Harold Gilpatric, who was then chairman of the water board. The elevation of the land would make the reservoir fifty feet higher than the present standpipe. The estimated cost is $117,000.

Other recommendations that Mr. Gilman made were the replacing of the six inch main on Main street which was laid forty years ago, and the replacing of the mains on Mechanics street with larger pipe. The cost of the first would be about $22,500, but it is not as urgently needed as the other which would be about $11,000. All of these proposed improvements were indorsed by Mr. Symonds who said that it would be carrying out the recommendation that he made in 1915. He said that the source of the water supply is adequate for very many years to come, even if the city doubled or trebled in size.

The council will seek further information before taking any action in the matter.

Standing committees of the council were named as follows: Finance, Richard, Rogers; highways, Richard, Rogers, Dubois; fire, Labby, Ames, Delisle; city property, Carroll, Ames, Pigeon; rules and ordinances, Pigeon, Ames, Caroll; police, Labby, Dubois, Delisle; street lighting, Ames, Ryan, Rogers.

The report of the city treasurer shows the debt of the city to be $146,425, as compared with $161,179 on Jan. 1, 1925.

ANNUAL MESSAGE OF MAYOR CHAPDELAINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 6—The annual message to the council of Mayor Victor Chapdelaine was as follows:

Gentlemen of the Common Council:

One of the first things expected of a mayor is a message outlining what, in his opinion, should be done for the best interests of the city and its citizens, and in doing this I first want to say that I appreciate very fully the responsibilities connected with this office and the fact that my usefulness as mayor depends largely upon your co-operation and support. It is my most earnest desire that this administration should go on record as one which casts aside all political and personal feelings, considering and deciding all questions on strictly business principles only.

Police Department

Our police department has been a credit to our city; I would dislike to see any change. The entire department has a reputation throughout the state and I have been often complimented upon its efficiency. I think it is a calamity for any city to change the police every two years.

Highways

In the matter of highways, Putnam is exceptionally fortunate, in having all main avenue leading into the city under state control and repair, and with this burden of upkeep removed from our city department, connecting streets can be given more attention, and I urge a liberal continuance of improvements in 1926. We have laid 2240 feet of curbing, 650 feet of surface drain and 3280 feet of paved gutters.

Water Department

The Board of Water Commissioners informs me that it has now a full and thorough report, both as to the condition of the plant and the necessary things to be done to put the plant in proper condition. I believe the members of this department from commissioners to engineers should be given sincere praise for their efforts to obtain the maximum output from an overloaded equipment, and a word of encouragement to continue doing their best until conditions can be bettered.

Fire Department

We are to be congratulated that there has been so little damage by fire during the past year. I can simply say that I have had the full co-operation of the whole department from the Chief down, I would dislike to see any change in its officials. We have during the past year purchased 1,000 feet of fire hose, and No 1 has ben overhauled and been put in first class condition.

Fire Alarms

I recommend that careful and continued attention be given our fire alarm system, that any faulty or defective parts be immediately repaired or replaced and that every box on the circuit be tested to insure its being in perfect order.

I believe that the city of Putnam needs more complete and practical rules and regulations regarding the erection, moving and repairing of buildings, and I recommend the enacting of suitable ordinances and the appointment of a building committee to whom requests for building permits and all matters connected therewith could be referred for investigation and adjustment. Buildings of all descriptions are now erected without regard to fire hazards, damage to neighboring property or uniformity of lines, and it seems to me the present and future welfare of the city demands proper regulations covering this.

To my mind we are more than ever before confronted with the problem of economical yet progressive management, economical in so far as the elimination of wasteful methods and unnecessary expenditures are concerned, and progressive as to the adoption of ways and means which will reduce our expenses or add to the safety and welfare of our citizens, and it is to that end that my recommendations are made.

I believe more attention should be given to reckless and fast driving of automobiles through our city streets which is becoming a daily habit, and I recommend that suitable signs be erected prohibiting reckless driving, and that the police department see that our traffic ordinances be enforced.

I earnestly advise all our citizens who wish to come and listen to the deliberations of this council, and should any wish to be heard on matters pertaining to the city's welfare, I will guarantee them a hearing insofar as the powers vested in my offices will allow.

To you, gentlemen of the council, I am deeply grateful for your loyal support and assistance and the spirit of harmony and co-operation which has made my association with you a most pleasant experience, long to be remembered.

Respectfully submitted,
VICTOR CHAPDELAINE, Mayor.

WESTERLY

WESTERLY BAND HOLDS ITS ANNUAL ELECTION

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 6—The Westerly band held its 63rd annual meeting for the hearing of reports and the election of officers at the band rooms in the Porter and Loveland block on Wednesday evening.

Officers elected were:

Long, faithful and earnest service has characterized the work of a number of these re-elected officers. Treasurer William A. Burke, the custodian of the exchequer for nearly a half century, received his 48th term of re-election. In keeping with his long service, a surprise was sprung by the landsmen on their unsuspecting treasurer when as was explained, to have him ever with them, an enlargement of his likeness was unveiled with most appropriate remarks, the picture to be placed on the band room walls.

Charles O. Gavitt, who was elected for his 26th term as leader, followed Thomas Warmington as band leader.

The Westerly band was organized in 1863, with A. J. Foster as leader and a charter was secured in the same year. Previous to this time, a Westerly band was organized in 1852, with Stephen Phalas as leader and W. B. Lowry as instructor. Also in the year 1852, a Citizens' band was organized, but both organizations suspended in 1861, that their members might go into the army at the time of the Civil war. In the World war, Westerly band members, Donald Kenneth, John Draycott, Raymond Hiscox, Joseph McGuiness, Frank Hill, Stanley Livingtone, Joseph Sylvia, Omar Lebracque and J. H. McCaffrey, Jr., were participants in the great struggle. On Aug. 28, 1913, the 50th anniversary of the band was celebrated with an outing at Narnes' Point, Brightman's pond.

At 7:30 o'clock, about 30 bandsmen enjoyed the following repast before the business session was held in the band rooms:

Fruit Cocktail
Tomato Soup aux Crutons
Mixed Pickles Stuffed Olives
Boston Celery Escalloped Corn
Roast Young Turkey, Giblet Gravy
Mashed Potatoes Mashed Turnips
Baltimore Onions Cranberry Jelly

SAFER RAILROAD TRAVEL

For the purpose of providing accurate timepieces that trains may be operated according to schedules there are official inspectors of watches in different cities and railroad men are always taking advantage of such service.

For the purpose of determining whether they are color blind or deficient in hearing the railroads have periodical examinations for their employes, for the purpose of finding out whether they can correctly see and hear in determining signals.

For the location of any defect in the running gear of trains, inspections are made at stations where sufficient stops are made.

In the furtherance of such protective measures the Boston & Albany railroad has recognized the advisability of having the men in their train service undergo complete physical examinations at frequent periods for the purpose of determining if there are any defects which make them unfit for the responsible work which they are relied upon to perform.

That the employes of the road should have agreed to this step is not surprising. It is a protective measure which they should be anxious to have. It is in fact no more than the individual in any line of activity should do for his own good, but with railroad employes, especially the engineers, carrying such responsibilities on their shoulders it is of the utmost importance that it should be known whether they are really fit to drive or not.

This added safeguard for the traveling public is of no slight importance, but when it has been augmented by the equipment of the system with the automatic train control device, as a guard against misinterpreted orders, orders which were forgotten, or the chance taking for one reason or another, there will be furnished a degree of safety for the railroad passenger which should greatly reduce the accidents which continue to occur even though the claim is put forth and backed up by statistics that the railroads of the country are safer than the highways.

RESTRICTIONS FOR BUSES

Because there was an entirely new situation presented which it was not believed to be covered by legislation it has been impossible to deal with the bus lines in some states, which have been started in competition with existing lines of transportation, and especially when such lines were operated so as to do business in at least two states. Then the claim was put forward that an interstate business was being done and state regulations did not govern, while it was also evident that the interstate commerce commission had no authority to deal with bus lines.

In order to meet this situation and to bring the busses under control quite the same as steam and electric lines various suggestions have been made and at the present time a measure has been presented in congress giving the interstate commerce commission authority to handle the matter. Whether this will be done directly by the commission or by the delegation of authority to the public utility commissions of the various states depends upon the legislation enacted.

But while the bus lines have figured that there was no control over them and they could do as they pleased in some states, the contrary has been decided to be the case in Massachusetts where the supreme court of that state has upheld the decision of the superior court judge that bus lines must obtain licenses in each municipality through which they operate, regardless as to whether it is interstate or intrastate business that is being done.

Thus the independence which has been shown by certain bus lines in that state disappears. Unless they can obtain the licenses required they must go out of business, or turn their attention to the rendition of bus service in such direction as they can get the privilege. Bus lines have been running wild in the transportation field and laughing at the powerless position in which they believed the state to be, but that situation, so far as Massachusetts is concerned, ceases to be from now on. The bus finds itself subjected to similar restrictions as other transportation lines.

PROTECTING THE CROWDS

Invariably a great hue and cry is made after it has been demonstrated to a community that conditions surrounding public assemblage places are not as safe as they should be. Similar conditions in other communities get slight attention and it is not until the particular situation is actually brought home that an effort to correct conditions is considered.

A few days ago in Woonsocket a fire in an adjoining building caused a panic in a theatre with the result that two children were trampled under foot and seriously injured. Woonsocket is now recognizing the need of a new building code and numerous expressions have been made against the building of theatres which are not safe, and it looks as if the panic, and the conditions which it disclosed, is going to bring about much the same kind of a change in Woonsocket as followed throughout the country after the fire in the schoolhouse at Collinwood, Ohio, with doors which opened inward.

In places where large numbers are gathered the fireproof building is of inestimable value. Where such is not provided there is need for plenty of exits, fire scapes and outlets in all directions. There cannot be too many safeguards against fire in such places for it takes but little to get a crowd started and once it loses its head and rushes for the doors there's no telling what will happen to those who happen to stumble and get underfoot.

The public buildings that can quickly be emptied of capacity crowds by distributing them in all directions through wide aisles are necessary. Crowding hundreds and thousands into boxlike arrangements, which may be menaced from without if not within is highly dangerous. Woonsocket has apparently been giving no thought to the situation that prevailed there in the past, but sentiment that is being expressed indicates that it is unwilling to invite a repetition through a failure to do something.

OWNING OUR OWN

When Chairman Porter of the house foreign relations committee introduced a bill giving authority to the secretary of state to acquire sites and erect buildings for the purpose of housing all government agencies in foreign countries it is in keeping with what has been advocated many times before.

In view of the fact that there are but 13 of the 51 diplomatic missions housed in government owned buildings and only four of the 29f consulates, it can be appreciated that a building plan extending over a considerable term of years can be expected before all the government agencies could be provided for in this manner. But with a half million being spent yearly in rent and with the prospects of our agencies being ousted from time to time the desirability of doing as other nations do and own our own is not by any means a bad one.

It is not to be supposed that money would be squandered for such purposes but with a commission authorized to use a certain sum each year for the acquisition of property that could be utilized it would be a good business move on the part of this government and would overcome the necessity of changing headquarters from time to time because of jumps in rent or the desire of the owner to use the property for something else.

There are many occasions when such purchases can be made to excellent advantage if authority and funds were provided to make the most of them, and Uncle Sam would be a big gainer in the long run. There is no reason why good business in connection with such a proposition should not be expected as in expenditures at home.

QUEEN MARGHERITA

Queen Margherita, whose death occurred in Italy this week lived through years that marked important events in Italian history and she was much beloved by the people of that country.

She was young in years when Victor Emmanuel II was made king of Italy by the first parliament but in less than a decade she had become the wife of Crown Prince Humbert and it was only another decade when the death of the king brought her to the high station of queen. That was during the period when such strenuous and successful efforts were made in behalf of the unification of Italy. When Humbert was assassinated in 1900 at the hand of an anarchist it was her son Emmanuel III who became king and who has since reigned.

In her more than three score years and ten she has been in close touch with Italian affairs and watched the various steps from a point of vantage as daughter in law of one king, wife of another and the mother of still another. She was of a temperament and personality that endeared her to the people of that country. She was not of the domineering type, but thoroughly understood by the Italians and was a type of queen and queen mother that they appreciated.

In all its wars and changes she has seen Italy go from one development to another, from one alliance to another, from one form of governmental leadership to another. Italian revolution has not all taken place during her life time and from present indications it is not now at a standstill.

THE SEWING CIRCLE

"I've walked a million miles today," said the fluffy-haired blond, sinking into a chair and drawing off her gloves with a weary sigh.

"That's quite a long walk," commented the young matron with the auburn wave, placidly.

"Yes, isn't it?" agreed the fluffy-haired blond, "but I refuse to retract a mile, if that's what you're hinting at. My feelings at the present moment would register a conservative estimate of a million and a half, but I'm making allowances for personal prejudice on account of my pumps being patent leather and brand new. My back aches in every separate vertebra and I think my legs are ruined from the strain."

"Why the mad necessity?" demanded the sewing circle, with disapproval.

"A sacrifice on the altar of duty," said the fluffy-haired blond mildly. "In the first mail this morning I got a letter from a young cousin out in Missouri, second cousin twice removed or something like that. Anyway, they tell me she was named after me."

The voice of the speaker trailed off into horrified silence as she regarded the heel of one white silk stocking, which showed a hole the size of a thimble.

"I knew it," murmured the fluffy-haired blond, in hollow tones. "I just knew that was happening an hour ago but I hadn't the courage to look and see. You can suspect that there are holes in your stockings without losing your morale as long as you're not absolutely sure of it, but once you ascertain it to be a fact, you're lost. No woman can really hold her head up with her mind on her heels."

The sewing circle agreed to this.

"What about the removed cousin?" demanded the young matron.

"Oh, didn't I tell you?" said the fluffy-haired blond, absently. "Why, she wrote that she was going to get married next week—very hurried arrangement, she explained, because the boy she was going to marry had a nice job offered to him down in Central America. So would I please buy her three dresses and two hats for her trousseau—specifications inclosed—because I, out of the things they had in the shops out in her home town were simply too impossible. Dad would send me a check later and she remained ever my most devoted cousin and namesake. A very innocent letter but by no means unsophisticated. She went to boarding school in Baltimore, I think. You know the type," gesturing weakly, "what could I do?

The sewing circle nodded.

"Well," said the fluffy-haired blond, "I'm a busy woman and had a full day, including an important committee meeting. But of course I had to cancel everything and spend the morning in the shops with the drafted specifications aforementioned."

She sighed again and reached for a piece of chocolate cake.

"Me of all people!" she complained bitterly. "This is awfully good cake. Who made it?"

"I did," affirmed the young matron with the auburn wave. "Those specifications were simple and reasonable, I suppose?"

"You don't suppose anything of the kind," said the fluffy-haired blond, firmly. "They were a nightmare. The chit inclosed samples of the shades she preferred, mentioned the length of sleeves desired, the quality of material required and limited me on the dresses to $25 apiece."

The sewing circle gasped.

"What did you do?" inquired the young matron in an awed tone.

"Did the best I could and charged up the difference to myself, of course," said the fluffy-haired blond aggrievedly. "And I certainly hope I haven't got any more nameakes parked around in the outlying districts. It's too expensive."

"Oh, well," said the young matron kindly, "I suppose the dear child will appreciate it."

"You do, do you?" said the fluffy-haired blond, wrathfully. "When I went home to lunch after my weary work I found a telegram from the dear child, saying: 'Have decided not to marry at all. Do not make purchases.'"

The fluffy-haired blond glared, at the assembled group, who were laughing delightedly.

"The next time I get a letter with a Missouri postmark," she told them, "I shall return it unopened, with the words No such fool at this address' written across the envelope. That girl might decide to get married again, you know."—Chicago News.

CHILD TRAINING

THE LOOKING GLASS
C. L. Beattie

"What is wrong, Mary Ellen?" I asked, as I heard angry screams and the stamp of heels on the pavement which ran between our home and the Denton's.

"It's only Harry, again," she answered calmly, looking out of the window. "His mother wants him to put on his overcoat, and he doesn't want to. I wonder why Mrs. Denton doesn't let him go as he wants to at first, for she always gives in."

I had wondered the same thing myself, many a time.

A couple of weeks later, Mary Ellen came home and announced that Harry Denton had started to school.

"He was as good as good could be. Miss Smythe thinks he's an awful nice little boy. He didn't frown nor snap once. You'd never have thought he was the Harry we know."

This satisfactory state of affairs lasted for nearly a week. On Friday my small daughter rushed into the kitchen, where I was preparing lunch.

"Mother, you should have heard that Harry Denton, today!" she exclaimed. "It was just dreadful. Look at him, now, he is just going into the house."

I glanced out of the window. Poor little Harry! His face was tear-stained, and his clothes were dusty.

I had to go down cellar. As I was coming up there was a tap on the door. Mary Ellen answered it, and there stood Mrs. Denton, all excitement.

"Mary Ellen, what did Miss Smythe do to Harry?" she asked. "He is a sight! The idea of letting him come through the streets like that! It's disgraceful. I can't get a word out of him. I suppose she said she'd punish him, if he told. I know what teachers did when I went to school. It is just awful the way little children are abused," and Harry's mother began to cry.

I asked Mrs. Denton to come in, and told my daughter to tell her exactly what had happened. I did not know what might be said, but I did know Miss Smythe could be relied on to do the kindest and wisest thing for any child.

"Harry wanted Edward Strong's ball, and Edward wouldn't let him have it," Mary Ellen began. "At first Miss Smythe tried to show Harry why he couldn't have it, and then Harry began to scream, and kick."

"How foolish of him," said Mrs. Denton, "Harry knew very well I would buy him a better ball than Edward Strong's."

Miss Smythe brought us all up to the front," my little girl continued, "and left Harry kicking and screaming on the floor. After a while he asked Teacher if she didn't mind his screaming, and she said she didn't like it very well. He said you hated it, because it made everybody look. Then he screamed some more, and after a while he stopped again and asked Teacher if it didn't make her head ache. He said it made your head ache, and then you gave him what he wanted. Miss Smythe said it didn't make her head ache, and anyway if it did he would never get anything by acting like that. Then Harry got up and came to the front with the rest, but Miss Smythe sent him back again to learn his lesson."

"What lesson?" asked Mrs. Denton.

"Why," in surprise, "that you don't get anything by being bad. Whenever we make anything or learn a new song or anything, we have to sit still for a minute or two, and think it over so that we shall be sure to know it better next time. Miss Smythe always tells us to do that."

"Why didn't she have him wash his face, and brush his clothes before he came home?"

"He could have, if he had wanted to," Mary Ellen replied. "Miss Smythe took him to the big looking-glass, and told him to look at himself well, and to tell her what he saw. She says whatever wrong we do shows on the outside as plain as blots on our clean pages. Harry told her what he saw in the looking-glass, and he told her what he felt like, when he got wful mad, and when Miss Smythe told him he might go and wash, and fix up, he said he wasn't going to wash off the marks. If God saw what was inside of him, he might as well see what was outside, but that neither God nor people were going to see that kind of a boy again."

Mrs. Denton was still so long, I wondered how she had taken my daughter's recital. At last she rose to go.

"Thank you, Mary Ellen," she said, and turning to me she continued. "I wonder if I looked into the looking glass what I should see. I have been thinking Harry was a hard child to manage, and today I thought Miss Smythe was cruel. Last year I wished for a kindergarten for Harry's sake—it is a pity there is not one here—but it was I who needed its influence more than he. If there had been a kindergarten there would have been mothers' meetings. At mothers' meetings women who do not know anything about children can learn from those who do."

From Small Beginnings

Linus Parker, Who Went to See the World.

"A rolling stone gathers no moss," is one proverb and "a stone that stands still becomes a moss-back," is another. The making of America has been in the willingness of its people to move to change their place of living, and their occupations. There is shift, movement, change, so that the generation that produced nothing but farmers leads to the generation that produces intellectual and spiritual leaders.

Thus, it was quite in the American way of doing things that young Linus Parker, up in the central part of the state of New York about 1845, said to his people, "I guess I'll take a trip and see the world!" His people protested. "Are you crazy, Linus? Ain't home good enough for you? Can't you get along here? This place is good enough for your father and mother; it ought to be good enough for you." "It ain't that," said Linus. "I want to see the world. I want to do something else. I want to go somewhere, and see how folks do." The boy was a well-informed, strong, healthy lad of 16, intelligent and quick and full of boyish energy. He packed up his queer, old-fashioned carpet bag, took what little money he had, and set off for the really long trip from New York to Orleans, then, because of slow travel, much farther away from New York than it is today. Arrived in the southern city the New York boy had to set to work to make a living.

The good thing was that he also set to study. He had made his mind up that he would see the world, make a living, and learn something. The Mexican war interrupted his work and his study, and he went to fight for his country, for the spirit of adventure was strong in him. Then he came back and studied more. From studying law he turned to theology, and added to that the work of an editor. He became a bishop of his church, and the editor of a great paper. He died in 1885 at the age of 66. The whole secret of his success was that same restless energy that had sent him out as a boy "to see the world."

Stories That Recall Others

Nothing the Matter Now.

Evidently this four year old had been reproved at times for his fussing and fuming when his mother was busy, so when she noticed him busy with his playthings and spoke about it he looked up and said: "I'm not bellyaching now, am I mama?"

An Intelligent Cat.

It was during the vacation period and the housewife of this particular home decided on a vacation in the country at the same time that hubby spent his vacation at home, thus leaving the aforesaid hubby and brother-in-law, who made his home, there, and Tige, a large cat of the male sex as the sole occupants of the home.

Now this hubby had an idea that he was a master of the culinary art and decided to act as chef for his brother-in-law and himself in his wife's absence, and thereby acquire some additional experience.

So on the first Sunday morning after the wife's departure he decided to have steak for dinner and proceeded accordingly. On being seated at the table he placed a generous portion on the plate of the brother-in-law, who, after taking one bite, suddenly decided he was not hungry and made his escape to the nearest drug store to get rid of the unpleasant taste.

Hubby in the meantime decided he was not hungery after tasting the steak and decided to give it to Tige. The steak was put on a plate on the kitchen floor and Tige proceeded to eat his dinner but after several bits he stopped, stretched himself and looked up with a puzzling look. At the first opportunity he bolted for the door and that was the last seen of him that day and all the other days until the housewife returned. Probably he had a fixed opinion of what could be expected in the way of eats until the regular cook returned.

There is nothing a woman enjoys more than telling how much better her husband's digestive apparatus works since she married him.

ALL UNIVERSITIES IN ECUADOR CLOSED

All universities in Ecuador were closed "temporarily" by a governmental decree dated August 11, 1925, reports R. M. de Lambert at Quito. The universities were located at Quito, Guayaquil, Cuenca, and Loja.

For many years past there has been discontent with the so-called superior education. It has been most respectable to study for the degree of doctor of law or doctor of medicine, Mr. de Lambert states, and although many efforts have been made by congress and otherwise to make the courses more difficult and have the candidates for degrees still have remained too easy of attainment. The result is that the country is flooded with doctors, the majority of whom are unable to earn a living at their profession.—School Life.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Another Snow-Walker

o each doth Mother Nature give
The thing that fits it best to live.
—Old Mother West Wind.

The quarrel between Hooty the Owl and Reddy Fox, the silly quarrel over something that neither had although both claimed it, lasted for some time, but at last hunger got the better of both and each went his way to hunt for a meal, each a little the worse for the quarrel. Reddy had a torn coat and Hooty had a damaged wing. When Peter Rabbit was quite sure neither was about, he once more came out of the hollow log and climbed up on it to look about eagerly for his big cousin, Jumper the Hare. Almost at once Jumper came out from under some snow-covered hemlock boughs where he had been hiding all the time Hooty and Reddy were quarreling.

"Thank you, Cousin Peter," said he. "What for?" demanded Peter, looking very much surprised.

"For giving me that timely warning. But for you Hooty certainly would have caught me that time," replied Jumper.

Then Peter remembered. He had waited so long for Hooty and Reddy to leave that he had quite forgotten that it was his warning that had enabled Jumper to escape. And so had brought about the quarrel between the two hunters. Peter chuckled. "I thought for a minute that Hooty had you, and then I thought that Reddy had you," said he. "Wasn't it funny to hear both claiming you when neither had caught you? I wish I could get about on soft snow the way you can. It must be very nice."

"It is," replied Jumper. "Just ask Mrs. Grouse if it isn't."

"I wonder where she is," said Peter. "I haven't seen her lately."

"I have an idea she is asleep under the snow somewhere near here," replied Jumper. "Anyway, I saw her near here just before the storm."

Jumper and Peter gossiped until at last the moonlight disappeared and daylight took its place. "Look, Peter!" exclaimed Jumper. "Here comes Reddy back!"

Sure enough there was Reddy Fox plodding along in their direction. The fact is he was on his way back to see if by any chance Peter had left the safety of that hollow log. As Peter and Jumper watched they saw Reddy stop abruptly and look long and intently at a certain spot. Then, while they wondered what he saw there, he suddenly sprang and plunged with his forefeet stretched out. Just beyond those two reaching black paws there was what seemed like an explosion in the snow. A cloud of snow flew in all directions and away sailed—who? Why Mrs. Grouse. Yes, sir, it was Mrs. Grouse. Reddy had found the place where she had plunged in the night before. He had guessed where she might be and had sprung. But he hadn't guessed right.

He watched her out of sight. Then he turned toward Peter and Jumper. Peter waited as long as he dared and then dived down into the hollow log. Reddy came over to make sure that there was no way of getting at Peter and then went on about his business. He didn't make any attempt to catch Jumper. He knew that that was useless.

When Reddy was out of sight Jumper thumped on the old log and Peter at once came out. In a few minutes they saw Mrs. Grouse heading their way. She wasn't flying. She was walking on the snow and walking easily. Peter sighed as he watched her. How he did wish he could walk on the snow that way. It would be so handy at a time like this.

Mrs. Grouse came straight over to where Peter and Jumper were sitting. "Isn't this a fine snow?" said she.

Peter and Jumper nodded. Anyway Jumper did. "I like a snow like this," continued Mrs. Grouse. "It is so comfortable to sleep under. And it is so easy to get into and out of. I was sorry to disappoint Reddy Fox, but it seemed rather necessary."

Peter grinned. "It was his second disappointment," said he. "He thought he was going to dine on Jumper, but he didn't. I guess he doesn't like this snow any too well."

"I fear he doesn't," replied Mrs. Grouse.

GETTING UP NIGHTS

Is One of Nature's Danger Signals. A Healthy Bladder Does Not Act at Night.

Irritation, excessive acidity or abnormal deposits may be the cause. It needs cleansing. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) acts on the kidneys and bladder as Epsom Salts on the bowels. R. D. Neblett, 10 Oak St., Battle Creek, Mich., says: "For three years had to get up three times at night. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) helped me in two days. I now do heavy work." It isn't a patent medicine. The formula is on the label. Sold by leading drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Locally at the Geo. Engler Drug Store.

STRUCK BY TROLLEY ON MONTVILLE ROAD

Possibly having been hit by an automobile and thrown onto the trolley track, Joseph Forsyth, 40, was struck by a trolley Wednesday night on the Montville line, near Perry's garage, sustaining a fractured skull and other injuries which will probably be fatal. He is at the Backus hospital in a critical condition.

The trolley car that hit him was the trip out of Norwich at 9:45, with Conductor Albert Vetter and Motorman Winthrop Abel. When the motorman first caught sight of Forsyth, it was reported that the man was lying across the trolley rail and seemed to be propped up on his elbows as if making an effort to rise. The car could not be stopped in time to avoid hitting the man.

The ambulance from the Backus hospital was summoned and a call was sent for Dr. John J. Donohue, of Uncasville, who responded and gave the man attention until the ambulance arrived.

Forsyth, who is employed by the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., and lives with his brother-in-law, Albert Bonfoy, in Uncasville, had left New London on the trolley at 9:45 and had got off the car at Perry's garage, from where he started to walk home. CHARGE BERKER LINKED WITH FINN'S FINAL EMBEZZLEMENT

The last defalcation committed at the Bankers Trust Co., by George E. Finn, its secretary and treasurer, is the item with which the state links the name of Gabriel C. Berker who was put to plea in the superior court here Wednesday morning on the charge of embezzlement.

Berker pleaded not guilty to the embezzlement of $49,934.69 on Sept. 15, 1924, his previous bond of $20,000 was directed by Judge Allyn L. Brown to be renewed in the same amount, for which Lawrence E. Dwyer of Torrington qualified before Clerk George E. Parsons, and the trial of the case was set down for next Wednesday morning. Berber having elected to be tried by jury. His counsel is Attorney Earl Mathewson of this city and Attorney Mark Riordan of New York city.

The information drawn by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown upon which Berker was put to plea states in effect that on the 15th day of Sept. 1924, Gabriel C. Berker then of the town of Norwich did wrongfully abet, counsel and command one George A. Finn, who was then and there an officer, to wit, the treasurer of The Bankers Trust Co., to wrongfully appropriate and convert to his own use the funds of said corporation, and the said Finn did then and there of said funds wrongfully appropriate and convert to his own use the sum of $49,934.69, and the said Berker by so abetting, counselling and commanding the said Finn to wrongfully appropriate and convert said funds to his own use as aforesaid, did then and there and thereby commit the crime of embezzlement.

Finn will be brought from Wethersfield to testify in the case and another witness will be one of the state bank examiners who was here at the time when Finn's embezzlements were discovered.

It is understood that the sum of $49,934.69 which is mentioned in the information against Berker refers to a single deposit in the bank which Finn embezzled by withdrawing the deposit card and crediting the amount in several different ways, about $19,000 to the account of Berker, $500 to himself and the balance in other ways.

For a long time it has been generally known that Finn's embezzlements started long before he had any acquaintance with Berker.

JAIL SENTENCES GIVEN IN SUPERIOR COURT

In the second day of the January term of the criminal superior court in this city Wednesday morning, with Judge Allyn L. Brown presiding, a number of jail sentences were given in cases brought before the court by State's Attorney Arthur L. Brown.

The court session lasted from about 10 o'clock to 12:30, when it adjourned to this (Thursday) morning, when Eugene J. Berry, of this city, will be put to plea on the charge of second degree murder for chloroforming his two small sons on Oct. 20.

Theron Morgan, son of Griswold Morgan, of Bozrah, pleaded guilty to two counts of statutory burglary on Aug. 3 and 13, at the Shorten home in Salem. He was sentenced to three months in jail on the first count and one month on the second. State's Attorney Brown referred to Morgan as the "black sheep" of the family and that the accused had been suspected of various crimes or petty thieving but this could not be proven.

Griswold Morgan stated to the court in his son's behalf, that the Shortens had promised his son, Theron, that they would not prosecute him if he returned the goods stolen, which he did. However, the state police informed the Shortens that if they did not testify against Morgan that they would prosecute them, so the Shortens testified.

Former Policeman Sentenced

Howard Sloan, formerly a New London policeman, was sentenced to one year in jail when he pleaded guilty to indecent assault upon Ruth Storey, of Waterford.

State's Attorney Brown told the court that it was familiar with the details of the case, it having been discussed thoroughly in chambers. Attorney George Curtis Morgan appeared for Sloan.

Sloan's arrest followed complaints by Richard Storey, father of the girl, to the New London police, City Manager William A. Holt and Prosecuting Attorney J. James Floyd of Waterford. Mr. Storey in his complaint alleged that Sloan had entered the railroad station between the hours of 1 and 2 a. m., Monday, Sept. 21, and finding his daughter, Ruth, there with a sailor named Hubbell, ordered them both from the station and into an automobile, which he was driving. Sloan was alleged to have driven the sailor to the state pier and then to have driven the car with the girl in it, into Waterford, where the alleged assault took place several hours later. It also was alleged that Sloan, who had been drinking, drove the car off of a bank and struck a stonewall. The girl was found some time later by a New London insurance man lying in the highway near Quaker Hill, not far from the wrecked car, suffering bad cuts about the shoulders.

Sloan was charged by City Manager Holt with conduct unbecoming an officer. Sloan at that time was on his vacation from the police force and the city manager was to hold a hearing.

Detective Sergt. John J. Cavanaugh and Sergt. Nelson Smith were detailed by the city manager to conduct an investigation. They questioned a large number of witnesses and obtained signed statements from them all. The results were turned over to the city manager. On Oct. 1, Sloan resigned from the police force and the next day was bound over to the superior court from the police force and the next day bonds of $2,500, which he furnished. At that same session of the court he was also fined $100 and costs, on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

10 Months For Bigamy

Daniel Weyant, of New London, was given 10 months in the county jail following his plea of guilty to a charge of bigamy. His first wife, Alive Wallstead, of North Cromwell, made a plea for Weyant in court, stating that she was willing to take him back. On April 18, last, Weyant went through a marriage ceremony with a woman in Waterford, by the name of Iola Richards.

Jail Sentences For Two

John Grabowry, who was given a four months' sentence on Tuesday, for adultery with Wilhelmina Ruley, was sentenced to two more months on the charge of attempting to commit rape on Gertrude Savage, a 14 years old Norwich girl. She has been committed to the House of the Good Shepherd.

Charles Hedge, 18, was given a sentence of two months in jail with costs, on the charge of the assault with intent to carnally know a female child, Gertrude Savage. Both these men have been taxi drivers. In passing sentence Judge Brown stated the reason why he had given such a light sentence was that the Savage girl had solicited Hedge and also that he had taken into consideration the good character of the youths.

State's Attorney Brown with Attorney Charles L. Stewart, both stated that the Savage girl, 14 years old, was a girl of loose morals, and at the time in question she was in the company of the Ruley woman. The Ruley woman was given four months in jail Tuesday.

The cases of Harry Mather and Mrs. Anna M. Chapman, of Old Lyme, charged with adultery, were put over until the next term, as Mrs. Chapman is sick in the hospital in New London.

SCHAEFER REGAINS 18.2 BILLIARD TITLE BY BEATING HOREMANS BADLY

Chicago, Jan. 6—(AP)—Young Jake Schaefer, twice former champion, today regained the worlds title at 18.2 balk line billiards to the United States, when he defeated Edouard Horemans, Belgian title holder, 1,500 to 890 after three 500-point blocks of play.

Schaefer compiled a phenomenal average of 88 12-26 for his 16 innings during the two nights and afternoon of play. It has not been long, however, since the loser's average of 85 10-16 would have been considered excellent.

From the opening inning Monday night, Horemans was forced to fight a 70-hill battle, and virtually no one credited him with a chance after Schaefer took the first block 500 to 378.

When the little champion emerged from last night's play with a deficit of 428 points his chance to retain the title virtually was nullified.

Despite Horemans' extremely poor showing when his total is compared with Schaefer's, he twice scored runs higher than the American. Horemans' 243 in the final inning of the opening block was the high run of the match, and his 231 scored today in his dying effort to retain the championship, was better than anything Schaefer could do. The winner's best was a run of 210 scored last night.

It was with consistency and grim determination that Schaefer prevailed over Horemans, who defeated Schaefer for the title only a month ago by a measure five points after Schaefer scored 433 points in a final effort.

In eight of his sixteen turns at the table Schaefer counted more than 100 points, while in only two efforts did Horemans reach triple figures.

The contest was forced upon Horemans by Schaefer who threatened to quit in the middle of their last contest unless the little Belgian would agree, winner or loser, to meet him again inside a month.

Schaefer became enraged over a decision by the referee, John Herbert Levis, of Chicago. He would not agree to Levis for the match completed this afternoon, and Charles Peterson, of St. Louis, the trick shot expert, was the third man at the table.

Turns in challenging were decided by the order of the finish in the Round-Robin tournament for the championship last winter, and, reverting to that order, Erich Hagenlacher, the German champion, who finished second, will meet Schaefer next month.

The score by innings for the three blocks:

Horemans—17, 15, 8, 0, 1, 2, 89, 243, 17, 89, 91, 24, 44, 1, 15, 231—890; high run, 243; average, 55 10-16.

Schaefer—37, 135, 1, 0, 35, 138, 82, 170, 19, 210, 125, 140, 124, 7, 190, 33—1,500; high run, 210; average 93 13-16.

BALTIC AND TAFTVILLE TO CLASH IN FIRST SERIES GAME

Taftville and Baltic are to stage the first game of the home and home series Friday evening at the St. Jean's hall court in Baltic. This game promises to be the biggest drawing card in basketball circles in the eastern part of the state so far this season as both teams have an impressive record. Baltic has not been defeated while Taftville has held the highest score against such teams as the Stafford Springs Kaceys and the Hartford Crescents.

One added feature, not seen locally this season, will be a game in which only home players will participate. Both teams are equally handicapped by the inability of the star guard men to perform. H. Coleman is out of the Taftville lineup because of an injured knee and R. Swanson is lost to the Baltic five because of his returning to Long Island. Taftville will be represented by such stars as Gauthier, J. Murphy, Francis Murphy, Tom Coleman, Eddie Murphy and Eccleston. A shake-up of the Baltic aggregation will be necessary and the lineup will probably be: R. Robertaille and W. Robertaille, guards; Charron, center; Condy and Provencher, forwards, with Chic Andrews in reserve. There is also a rumor that Ellison, formerly Windham High star, will play with Baltic. A fast preliminary can be expected between the Baltic Bantams and the Taftville Celtics.

MID-WINTER TERM AT Y. M. C. A. HAS STARTED

The mid-winter term began in the Y. M. C. A. physical department this week and an attractive programme of all-round physical activities has been scheduled for the coming months including gymnastics, athletics, games, swimming and the like. Basketball will occupy an important place, and each gym class will be represented by a team, while various leagues will be organized so that each gym member may have the opportunity to play and develop his ability in this popular sport.

Teams were organized in the junior boys gym class yesterday afternoon and are as follows: Triangles, Percy Babbitt, captain; Henry Bamber, John Gillis, Roche, William Finlayson, W. Perkins.

Circles—George Lambert, captain; George Ranger, Jabez West, Franklyn Graff, Thomas Baker, Robert Graham.

Crescent—Millard Mulkins, captain; Edward Hastings, Whelden, Henry Thiel, Dominic Denicola, Samuel Barlin.

Volleyball teams will be organized in the business mens' group this afternoon.

ROCKNE SAYS COACHES CAN'T HELP PROFESSIONALISM

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, who sailed today on the steamer DeGrasse for a tour of Europe, declared: The present development of individual stars and their subsequent acquisition by professional teams was "something we coaches can't help."

"After a player gets through school, what he does is more or less his own business," said Rockne. "I don't believe in individualism but sometimes it can't be avoided."

Taking up the case of Red Grange, who entered professional ranks immediately after his last game for Illinois, Rockne defended Coach Robert Zuppke's handling of the famous back.

"Grange is essentially a ball carrier and it was wise on Zuppke's part to keep him fresh for that purpose," he said.

MISS WILLS IN DOUBT ABOUT BEATING MLLE. LENGLEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—Reiterating her hope that the trip would bring forth a match with Suzanne Lenglen but expressing doubt that she would be able to conquer the European titleholder, Helen Wills, national women's tennis champion, today, embarked with her mother on the steamer DeGrasse for France.

"I am looking forward to a match with Mlle. Lenglen, but I don't know whether or not I can defeat her," said Miss Wills.

"I saw her play two years ago and she seemed terribly good. But, then, you never can tell in tennis."

Miss Wills took with her 20 racquets for her European invasion, which will extend from the mid-winter season in the south of France, through the English championships at Wimbledon, next summer.

KILLINGLY BEATS WOODSTOCK IN OVERTIME ENCOUNTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WOODSTOCK, Jan. 6—Killingly High school basketball team won a hard fought game that went into an overtime period here tonight 24 to 23. The game was fast and cleanly played, Woodstock leading by one point at the end of the first quarter. Killingly led by a basket at half time, the score being 13 to 10 but at the end of the third period Woodstock held the lead 18 to 17. The last quarter furnished the thrills for in the last few seconds of play, Fulton shot a foul basket for the tying point at 20 all. Woodstock missed a chance to win a few seconds later. Johnson missed a free try just as the final whistle blew In the overtime period two baskets gave Killingly 24 points while a foul and a field goal was the best that the Woodstock team could do. This is the first time in three years that the Woodstock team has been beaten by Killingly on the home floor. In the preliminary game the Woodstock girls beat the girls team of Killingly 18 to 13. ATHLETIC HEROES TO BE HONORED IN NEW CATHEDRAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—The memories of such notable figures in athletics as Christy Mathewson, Walter Camp, Robey Baker, of hockey fame, and Robert D. Wren, former tennis champion, will be preserved in the "sports bay" of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine if plans outlined today are carried out in connection with the contribution of the sports world to the construction of the edifice.

The suggestion was put forward at a conference of leaders in athletics and newspapermen with Bishop William T. Manning and Julian S. Myrick, head of the sports committee seeking to raise $150,000 to build the "bay" or window.

As explained by Mr. Myrick, the entire bay will be symbolic of sports in general with tributes to such famous figures he mentions, occupying appropriate places. In addition it is possible that the inclusion of such living performers as Paavo Nurmi, William T. Tilden, Bobby Jones or Man O'War will be considered.

Bishop Manning, emphasizing the close relationship of sports and religion, reiterated his assertion that he sees no harm in Sunday sports, such as baseball, golf and tennis, so long as they do not interfere with Sabbath worship or church attendance.

The impression that "religion is suspicious of sports or that it frowns on athletic activities, particularly on Sunday," is erroneous, the bishop declared, and serves only "to give the religion a black-eye."

JEWETT CITY PROS HOOK UP WITH NEW LONDON TONIGHT

The Jewett City Pros have a hard battle before them this evening when they stack up against the fast New London Stars tonight at Bijou hall in Jewett City. The Whaling City boys come to Jewett City with a mighty fine record as a fast aggregation of hoopsters and it is expected that the Jewett City team will have a busy evening holding the Whalers.

Jewett City will be somewhat handicapped by the loss of Harry Mills, who injured his ankle in a recent game and this fact makes their work even more difficult. Either Faber or LeClaire will jump center in place of the trusty Mills. The forward berth duties will fall to Bub Benjamin and Mondi Normandin, while Blake or Barry will take up the guard positions.

George Moller, one of the best professional referees in the eastern part of the state, will be on hand to handle the game. Visiting teams have complained of the refereeing at Jewett City in the past and Mgr. Faber has engaged Mr. Moller to run the games in the future.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 6—(AP)—In an unpaced time trial held under A. A. U. rules, Walter Spense of the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., established tonight a record of 31 1-5 seconds for the 50-yard breast stroke in the 75-foot pool of the Jersey City Y. M. C. A. There was no previous record for this distance over the long course.

The national A. A. U. record for the short course for the distance is 31 2-5 seconds.

NUTMEGS TO PLAY NORDICS FRIDAY NIGHT

The Nutmeg basketball team, after their encouraging victory over the C. F. C. five last Friday, have put in a stiff week's practice and will clash with the Taftville Nordics this coming Friday evening at the armory. This game will be the second meeting between these fives, the Nordics administering the only defeat of the current season to the Nutmegs Christmas evening in Taftville by the score of 40 to 22. However in this game but one of the Nutmeg regulars was in the lineup and therefore the local team was handicapped considerably.

For Friday's game the following men will go onto the floor for the Nutmegs: Segal, Kelly, J. Burns, Tombari, Brauman, Carden, Bergeron and W. Burns.

The Battery B outfit of this city have a game in the offing with the fast Battery A quintet of New London for Friday night. Further particulars will be announced through this paper.

Incidentally, the Nutmegs again challenge any team to play for the city championship in basketball. Answer through this paper or call 1914.

CARPENTIER GIVEN POPULAR SEND-OFF BY FRENCH

CHERBOURGY, France, Jan. 6—(AP)—Georges Carpentier, the French pugilist and M. Stoyadinovitch, the Jugoslav, minister of finance, divided the interest of the passengers boarding the steamship Majestic bound for New York today. But the French boxer apparently scored heavily in the public favor over the minister plenipotentiary.

A majority of the crowds at the pier seemed much more impressed with the pugilist's personal business trip to the United States than with the Jugoslav minister's mission to arrange a settlement of the Jugoslavian debt to America.

"I may fight, and I may not," said Carpentier. "If I do not fight myself, I will probably arrange a fight for someone else." This was interpreted to mean Paolino, the Spanish heavyweight.

PHILLY BIDS FOR BOUTS FOR CHAMPIONSHIP TITLE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6—(AP)—Several world's champions of the ring, including Jack Dempsey, the heavyweight king, have been asked by the Pennsylvania state athletic commission to defend their titles in Philadelphia's new municipal stadium during the sesqui-centennial exposition this year.

The commission today telegraphed Dempsey urging him as "a patriotic duty" to meet either Harry Wills or Gene Tunney in connection with the sesqui-centennial sporting program. The message assured the champion that a responsible promoter would be obtained and that the financial returns would be "big".

Later, William H. Rocap, chairman of the athletic commission, said that Mickey Walker, welterweight champion and Harry Greb, holder of the middleweight title virtually had consented to appear here during the exposition.

BARBER POSTS MONEY FOR MATCH WITH DUGAS

Frankie Barber of Danielson on Wednesday afternoon posted $100 with The Bulletin for a match with Chip Dugas the latter part of the month provided Mr. Dugas will consent to bowl. Barber puts up the money for a week and if it is not covered within that time by Mr. Dugas any bowler in Eastern Connecticut is entitled to cover it for a match.

Mr. Barber also stated that he would give anyone $25 who would fix up a match between he and Dugas for a purse of $500. Barber is extremely anxious to get a match with Dugas and if of the opinion that Dugas is not so anxious to meet him as he would have people believe.

AGGIE BASKETBALL TEAM STARTS SEASON ON FRIDAY

STORRS, Jan. 6—(AP)—After four weeks of intensive drill Coach Sumner Doles, Connecticut Aggies basketball team has rounded into shape and is now ready for the opening game of the season with Norwich university here, Friday night.

Prospects for a strong team here seem good this year though there is a lack of experienced reserve material. Connecticut's probable starting lineup against the visitors will include Captain Makofski, '26, of Schenectady, at center; Schofield, '27; of Waterbury and Eddy, '28, Simsbury, forwards; Allard, 26, Putnam and Bitgood '26, Danielson, guards.

Another knockout occurred in the 8-round semi-final when Johnnie Saxon, also of Bridgeport dropped "Sailor" Besiula of the coast guard in the third round. They are welterweights.

Scotty Carroll of the United States recruiting station here and Young Cross, U. S. N., lightweights, fought six rounds to a draw.

BOSTON BRAVES TO APPLY FOR FRANCHISE IN PRO FOOTBALL LEAGUE

BOSTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—The Boston Braves have applied for a franchise in the National Professional Football league and plans, if successful, to place a salaried eleven in the field for the next two seasons, Secretary Edwin Riley announced today.

The project was planned partly as an economic addition to the Braves field baseball park, Riley said, as the leaders of the National league club hoped to make up for many months of baseball idleness by filling the stands in the fall and winter months. Should the franchise be granted some well known football man, probably a college coach, would be selected to choose professional eleven.

The Braves are the first major league club to throw its lot in with professional football, although the New York Giants, last season, lent their name and grounds to a club promoted by outside interests. Much debated, it was explained, on whether a law now pending to permit Sunday sports in this state is passed.

It was said that the present arrangements with Boston college, which uses Braves Field for football games would not be interferred with as Saturday football games would be held on days when the college eleven was away from this city or after the college season.

DENIES ENGLISH BODY REJECTS AMERICAN RECOMMENDATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—Denying that a larger and lighter golf ball recommended by the United States Golf association has been rejected by English officials, W. Norman Boase, chairman of the championship committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf club of St. Andrews, today asserted that there was "no difference of opinion" on the subject between the ruling links organizations of America and England.

Mr. Boase, in this country on a business trip, declared, however, that the Royal and Ancient club had not approved the suggestion that the new ball be played exclusively in 1926 championship events in both countries. It was deemed unfair, he said, to use the championship tournaments for experimental purposes.

He said he feels "quite certain that if and when the two bodies decide that it is necessary for the good of the game that the ball shall be limited, any change that is made will be made by both bodies simultaneously."

The proposal of the U. S. G. A. would increase the diameter of the present ball from 1.62 inches to 1.68 inches, while its weight would be reduced from 1.62 ounces to 1.55. The general impression had prevailed in this country that English golfers objected to the change, because it was believed atmospheric conditions abroad would greatly affect so light a ball.

Agreement between the two bodies is expected to be finally reached next summer at an international conference in England, at which W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, nominee for president of the U. S. G. A., will represent this country.

NO INDICATION THAT TILDEN WILL GO TO EUROPE

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—While the United States Lawn Tennis association is preparing to send the strongest available teams of men and women stars to compete in England's championships at Wimbledon this year, there is no indication yet that the men's delegation will include the national champion, William T. Tilden, nor his closest two rivals, William M. Johnston and Vincent Richards.

Tilden could not be reached here today to comment on London dispatches giving the impression that his entry at Wimbledon already had been made but friends of the six-time national titleholder denied he had done so, adding that while he was considering the matter, he did not expect to reach a decision for several months.

Tilden, Johnston, Richards and R. Norris Williams, America's "big four", will be the first invited to represent the U. S. L. T. A., which already has authorized sending two men and four women players. Julian S. Myrick, chairman of the Davis cup committee of the association, has as yet received no assurances, however, that any of these four will accept.

Tilden carried off the Wimbleden singles title in the only two bids he made for it, in 1920 and 1921. Johnston won the tournament in 1923, the last which carried with it the so-called "world's championship." Richards' attempt in 1924, to lift England's premier honor, was checked by Rene Lacoste, young Frenchman, and the tournament victor.

The entry of Miss Helen Wills, national champion, already is assured of her trip abroad while the U. S. L. T. A., is expected to consider Mrs. Molla Mallory, Miss Elisabeth Ryan, Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Marion Jessup for other places on the team.

TALK ON SUBMARINES GIVEN BEFORE ROTARIANS

Submarine Construction and Operation, topic of an interesting talk by William C. Burgy, of eight years in the submarine service of the U. S. Navy, and an interesting program by the business methods committee featured the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. The meeting was well attended and the recently elected president, Edwin A. Harris, presided, E. LaRue Bliven acting as song leader.

President Harris announced that Judge Nelson J. Ayling had been elected vice president of the club to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Harris's election to the presidency following the resignation of J. Nelson Weymouth. This announcement was enthusiastically greeted by the Rotarians.

Mr. Burgy in his talk on submarine construction said in part:

The subject concerning which I will speak is one that has been much "cussed" as well as discussed in the more or less recent past,—the submarine.

Prior to my becoming affiliated with the Aling Rubber Co., I spent seven consecutive years in submarines, principally in command of various types of the undersea craft. During those seven years, I made nearly twelve hundred dives, and in those twelve hundred dives I experienced practically every thrill known to the game of submarine save possibly one and the fact that I am here today enjoying good health is evidence in itself that I am not sorry to have missed that one.

In designing a submersible the naval architect must constantly keep in mind the stability of the boat. To this end that much referred to theoretical point, the center of gravity, becomes almost a night mare. That point with its running mate, the center of buoyancy, are the architects' principal bugbears.

In operation, a submarine may easily be likened by a beam scale with the boat's center of gravity corresponding to the fulcrum point of the beam. Any weight placed forward of the center of gravity in a submarine must be compensated by placing another weight aft of the center of gravity at such a distance that its moment (the weight multiplied by the distance) will equal the moment placed forward. This is known as compensation and is the watchword which means safety in the actual operation of submarines. The commanding officer, through his assistant, the diving officer, must be absolutely certain that his boat is properly compensated before every dive. This means that every weight taken aboard or removed such as fuel, water, food or personnel since the last dive must be compensated for by the addition or removal of a similar weight of water ballast and this ballast must in turn be distributed with reference to the center of gravity of the boat so as to keep it in the same relative fore and aft trim.

Submarines in the U. S. Navy are required to stand a test pressure by the contraction of 85 lbs. per square inch, which means a submerged depth of 200 feet. The hulks are designed with a 50 per cent. margin of safety, thereby making the boat capable of withstanding a depth of 300 feet.

The operation of submarines submerged is hazardous. While on the surface, the vessel is the same as any surface craft, as far as rules of the road are concerned, except that due to its peculiar shape above water it is not possible to place lights at the same relative positions as is possible with other types of surface craft. But upon submerging, the submarine dives into a realm all its own with but one exception. It assumes the responsibility for keeping clear of all surface craft.

The progress made in the design of submarines during and since the World War has not reduced the hazards of the game to any great extent. Prior to the war, it took the average submarine about five minutes to submerge. Operations in the war zone proved such a diving period to be almost certain suicide. Therefore, certain precautions which were formerly thought essential to safety, were discarded until the present day boat can dive in less than one minute. And that means from the time the boat is cruising on the surface full speed ahead until she is completely submerged with periscope out of sight. To be able to obtain such speed in diving forestalls the giving of any orders. Diving is now done by the use of a gong. Absolutely no orders are given verbally. When the gong rings, every officers and man on board has a definite duty to perform and he jumps to his station. Main engines are disengaged, motors connected and started, main ballast tanks flooded, rudders set at dive, the men on the bridge drop down the conning tower, the last man closing the hatch behind him and usually by this time the vessel is more than half submerged.

According to the laws of gravity what goes up must come down. However, no one has ever ventured to prove that what goes down must come up. Only those attached to the submarines can know and respect the laws of gravitation to their fullest extent for gravity is always there with outstretched arms beckoning you downward a few feet more. In most walks of life one has either one of two decisions to make on any question. He is either right or he is wrong. In either case, he probably will profit by his decision and do better the next time. The same two decisions, right and wrong, are always present to every man aboard a submarine every time the vessel dives. He can make either one, but if one man makes the wrong decision the chances are that none on board will ever live to do better the next time. Thus it can be readily understood, why the government is so thorough in its training of both officers and men attached to submarines before they are qualified to take charge of a diving station. The exceptionally low casualty list of American submarines is proof in itself that the present policy is the best obtainable.

Talks on Business Methods

Following Mr. Burgy's talk he meeting was turned over to the Business Methods committee with Dr. Alfred Richards presiding as chairman in the absence of Charles M. Taylor. Dr. Richards called upon Willis Austin who spoke on the subject of Commercial Bribery.

Commercial bribery, said Mr. Austin, is a thing that was considered proper and "quite the thing" a number of years ago but this custom has gradually become less and less looked upon as good business and has practically disappeared. About all the lumber buyers get today are a few villainous cigars wrapped up in tinfoil and flowers in the form of a good luck horseshoe when he "hops the twig." Some times tickets to ball games, fountain pens and other things have been used to cement a friendship. Years ago when a wholesaler found a buyer who was "soft," as the drummers called them, the wholesaler would deliver a car of lumber that was one grade below what it was billed and then divide the difference with the buyer.

The various lumber manufacturing associations have stamped out this and other evils and are co-operating with Mr. Hoover in the standardization of measurements. The standard for dressed lumber is 13-16 of an inch. If 13-16 or even 11-16 could be delivered to the ultimate consumer he would be none the wiser and this would save materially in freight and lumber. But the houseowner would wonder why he had to use so much coal to keep his house warm. I am a great believer in grade and mill-markings on lumber and believe that it will be only a short time when all lumber will be so marked.

Stealing the Other Fellow's Help was the topic of L. M. Carpenter, the speaker on Business Methods. Mr. Carpenter said that the habit of some manufacturers in holding out some trivial inducement to the employes of a competitor's plant was another bad business practice that was fast becoming obsolete and consid red poor business during the war Mr. Carpenter said that this practice was resorted by nearly everyone but since then it has been shown that it is neither profits to the employer or the employe.

This practice in practically all cases gives the employe an inflated idea of his own importance. It tends to make him believe that the employer cannot get along without him and eventually he becomes careless and inefficient. Then the employer who has stolen him from his competitor suffers through loss of production. "Know Thy Employe" is a good slogan in the manufacturing business. See that they are satisfied by giving them a living wage, a few attentions that cost you but little and keep them in a happy frame of mind. This will save the manufacturer the bother of shifting help and avoid a large amount of labor troubles.

Secretary Edward Jewett read an interesting paper prepared by James Roantree of the American Thermos Bottle Co., relative to Piracy in Business. In his paper Mr. Roantree brought out the fact that there is more or less copying of a product that is widely advertised. Either the pirate concern gets a name that is almost like the nationally known product or constructs an article that to all appearances is exactly the same but which in reality is made of poor material. The pirate concern, of course, cuts the price down and for a time the public is deceived and the legitimate concern suffers in a falling off of sales. We have seen hundreds of cases where some commodity is known simply by its trade nome by which the purchaser asks for it. The merchant will bring forth an inferior article that looks the same and has almost the same name and sell it for the genuine. This comes about largely through national advertising until the name of the article becomes a household name for all types of the same nature. This piracy is not good business and steps are being taken to stamp it out as bad business practice.

The reading of the paper concluded the program of the Business Methods committee. James L. Case, president of the Chamber of Commerce, urged that the people of eastern Connecticut support the meeting of the state chamber which is to be held at the Griswold hotel at Eastern Point on June 22 and 23.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

SUDDEN DEATH OF CHARLES B. LINICUS AT MONTAUK AVENUE HOME, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 6.—Charles B. Linicus died suddenly this evening about 6:30 o'clock at his home on Montauk avenue. He suffered an attack of the heart about 5 o'clock this morning, another at noon, which was followed by the fatal shock at 6:30 o'clock. He was about 63 years old and was the son of the late Jacob Linicus. He was in the tobacco and cigar business for a great many years on State street opposite Green. When he sold out that business he entered the employ of the Thames shipyard as bookkeeper. He is survived by his wife, two brothers, Jacob and Benjamin, the latter inspector of buildings in this city, two sisters, Mrs. Rudolph Siebler, and Miss Bertha Linicus. He had no children.

Philip Adel, a wholesale fruit dealer on Bank street, resisted conviction as a careless operator of a motor vehicle when he was arraigned in the police court this morning, but he did not convince the court he was innocent. Adel ran his car, a Hudson coach, into the machine operated by Louis C. Tilton, a chief petty officer residing at Groton Park, in the town of Groton, last Monday afternoon. The collision occurred at the junction of Federal and Main streets, when the Adel car attempted to speed past the Tilton car as the latter was turning to go north. Adel evidently misjudged distance for when he tried to put his car between the Tilton machine and the curbing there was a crash that sent the Adel car upon the walk. The testimony of Lucille Smith, a pedestrian, passing at the time, did a great deal to decide the case. She was absolutely disinterested and told what happened very clearly. Emil Blandall, a chief petty officer, also in the Tilton car, was a competent witness, while two friends of Adel sided with him in declaring that Tilton was the offender and that he drove his car against Adel's machine. The court found against Adel and imposed a fine of $25.

Holman S. Bell was married to Sophie Bishop about three months ago, but since that time relations have been strained and yesterday, when Bell went home intoxicated, there was a row during which he struck her. Mrs. Bell is a very attractive young girl, and was in court to testify as to what had occurred. The prosecutor rendered her story unnecessary when Bell pleaded guilty, and it was revealed that Mrs. Bell's father, Matthew Bishop, heard the row in progress and interfered. Then Bell was indeed pugnacious and attacked the father, striking him a severe blow. Judge Prince expressed his desire to punch Bell severely, but in the belief that there would be changed relations between the husband and wife he refrained from doing what he wanted to do. He suspended judgment and cautioned Bell as to what was coming if there was more trouble at his home.

Charles F. Thomas, formerly employed at the Manhattan restaurant as a dishwasher, was charged with intoxication. He fell in with a friend, low who can drink a pint of the booze and the pair drank all of it. The fellow who can drink a pinto of the booze that is sold nowadays is a rare bird. Thirstie is not of that class, for he was found down and out on North Plank street. But he has made a good record during a couple of years and has not appeared in the court in that time. His good behavior won for him a suspended judgment.

Mrs. Thomas F. Dorsey is confined to her home, 82 Neptune avenue, because of illness.

Israel Goldstein has sold to the Mohegan Dairy company a building and lot on Jefferson avenue. The price paid was $16,000.

William R. Pollock, administrator of the estate of James Lewis, has sold a house and lot on Rosemary street to Elmer E. and Annie M. Kenneson.

Henry R. Tisdale has sold a tract of land, corner of Broad and Georgianna streets to George F. Kramer.

Salvatore LaRocca has sold a house and lot on Crystal avenue to Luigi Gigliotti.

David Belgrad has sold a house and lot on Denison avenue to James H. and Lena Schapero.

The commissioner of motor vehicles today caused the operator's license of John Chesbisk, 31 Winthrop street, to be suspended.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Devine, widow of James Devine, formerly of New London, whose death occurred last Saturday at her late home in New York, was held at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by many relatives and friends. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan, assisted by Rev. Timothy M. Crowley as deacon and Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger as sub-deacon. The bearers were Mrs. Devine's grandsons, Donald and James Delmore, and Edward, James, Charles and Walter Boyle. Interment was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Gordon Esterbrock, 512 Bank street, Miss Beulah Woodworth, 55 Norwood avenue, and Miss Phyllis Gagnon, 367 Ocean avenue, patients at Lawrence hospital, were dismissed today.

John T. Sullivan, 63, a former employe of the New London Ship & Engine company, died suddenly of heart disease this morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Silva, 96 Main street. Besides Mrs. Silva, Mr. Sullivan is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. Gordon F. B. Furrell and Miss Catherine Sullivan, both of this city, and a son, Michael Sullivan, South Norwalk. Four sisters, Mrs. Patrick McCarthy, Mrs. B. O'Connor and Miss Annie Sullivan, all of this city, and Mrs. J. McDonald, Greenwich, this state, also survive.

Mr. Sullivan had been in poor health for some time but until a day or two ago his condition was no more serious apparently than had been the case for several weeks. This morning while about his home Mr. Sullivan was stricken with a heart attack and died almost immediately.

Mrs. Laura G. Stockwell, 83, widow of Albert Stockwell, Niantic, died last night at Lawrence hospital where she had been under treatment but a few days for bronchial pneumonia. She is survived by a brother, Alvah Smith, Deep River.

Herbert D. Chapman, 26 Cedar St., is confined to his home as a result of injuries he sustained Monday night when a truck laden with freight passed over his left foot. It was at first believed that Mr. Chapman had suffered a fractured bone, but it now develops that torn ligaments only resulted.

The recently elected officers of Konomoc Grange, 41, P. of H, were installed this evening, the installing officer being Theophilus H. Haney who was assisted by Miss Margaret Wright. The officers installed were as follows: Master, LeRoy Forsythe; overseer, Donald MacKenzie; lecturer, Agnes E. Edwards; treasurer, George Forsythe; secretary, May C. Leland; chaplain, Hugh MacKenzie; steward, Arthur Davis; doorkeeper, Charles MacDonald; Flora, Josephine Maxson; Pomona, Helen Maxson; Ceres, Ethel Thorpe; assistant steward, Ernest Barrett; Lady Assistant Steward, Margaret Wright; Pianist, Nettie E. MacKenzie.

David Adams Uebelacker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Uebelacker, Hackensack, N. J., and Miss Helen D. Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus W. Brown, 73 Broad street, were married this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Second Congregational church in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends of the contracting couple. The nuptial ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the church. Arlin Uebelacker, Hackensack, brother of the groom, was best man, while the bride was attended by Mrs. Cornelius W. Middleton, Greenwich, as matron of honor and by Mrs. John Wilbur and Miss Mary Sheffield, this city, and Mrs. Douglas McGough and Mrs. Cora Paul Messenger, Hartford, as bridesmaids. Mr. and Mrs. Uebelacker received the congratulations of their relatives and friends immediately after the ceremony at a reception held at the residence of the bride's parents, after which they departed upon their wedding tour. Mr. and Mrs. Uebelacker will make their future residence in New York.

The annual meetings of Niagara Engine company, No. 1, and Konomoc Hose company, No. 2, were held this evening at the respective quarters of the companies, Bank and Union Sts. The principal business of the evening was the election of officers, the companies re-electing the former board of officers. Following the meeting a collation was served.

Automobile traffic has slowed down very perceptibly during the past ten days. The rainy weather and the fog have led many to put their machines into the garages where they will remain till next March or April.

No particular changes are anticipated in the management of the interests of the late Frank A. Munsey in this city, indeed Mr. Munsey had little oversight of the properties he was the owner of here, so the same management that looked after them in recent years still has the management of them.

The early closing of stores inaugurated here last fall seems to be extending, for many of the fruit stores and the smaller places of business are concluding their days a few hours earlier than they formerly did.

The extensive manufacturers and banks are beginning a campaign to enlighten the people as to the Community Chest, so called, and are imparting information that would otherwise not be in the possession of the people in general. As the Chest is understood there will be a quite general acceptance of it as the business way of transacting affairs of the city in a financial way. Of course there must be a close supervision given to all its details and that is what is intended to do when once the plan is in operation.

Attorney and Mrs. John C. Geary departed yesterday for Florida where they will spend the remainder of the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Geary are making the trip by automobile.

Miss Harriet Justine, Waller street, is spending a few days in New York.

Mrs. Mary McGarry, 42 Tilley St., complained to the police tonight that an automobile was operated to the sidewalk and crashed against an iron fence in front of her residence, the fence being considerably damaged. Mr. McGarry stated that she was unable to ascertain the registration of the car, the driver speeding away immediately following the crash.

TWO CIVIL SUITS BROUGHT AGAINST CONSTABLE PECK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 6.—Two sets of attachment papers were served on Constable Joseph Peck of this city, Wednesday night by Constable William D. Kelley, in satisfaction of civil suits brought respectively by Richard Haddad and the Willimantic Lumber and Coal company. The first suit is to recover damages of $30, the suit arising over an alleged overcharge of Constable fees in a recent attachment suit in which Haddad was the defendant. The writ charges that Constable Peck charged $13.86 as his fee and that the law only allows him $3.54 leaving an illegal balance of $10.02. The second suit brought against Peck is for the recovery of an alleged balance of the proceeds of a judgment given recently in favor of a lumber concern in a suit against Frank J. Watson, former proprietor of the Hotel Hooker of this city. The allegation is that the proceeds of the judgment were in the custody of Constable Peck who had attached Watson's property on behalf of the company and that he failed to make restitution for the full amount given through judgment. The amount of damages to be recovered in this case was not made known although it is understood that the plaintiff alleged a shortage of about $40 in the returns made to them.

Both cases are returnable for, before Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean about the middle of this month. It was said that the search for one constable by the other, in order that the papers might be served, lasted throughout three consecutive evenings.

A. C. STEARNS INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 6—Augustus C. Stearns, Quaker Hill, an insurance agent with office in the Plant building, is a patient at Lawrence hospital tonight as the result of injuries he sustained late this afternoon by being struck by an automobile owned and operated by Maurice H. Peck, Grassy Hill road, Lyme. Mr. Stearns most serious injury is a fractured left leg, although he is suffering from contusions and bruises of the body.

Mr. Stearns was leaving the Plant building, State street, shortly before 6 o'clock and as he reached the edge of the sidewalk, he hastily stepped between two parked automobiles and into the middle of the highway. At the same time the car driven by Peck was descending the grade, approaching Meridian street. Mr. Stearns walked directly in front of the Peck automobile and although the autoist applied his brakes, Mr. Stearns was struck with considerable force and hurled to the pavements. Patrolman Frank Linehan was near at hand at the time and going to Mr. Stearns assistance observed that the victim was seriously hurt. Mr. Stearns was assisted to Peck's automobile and then taken to the hospital where the extent of the injuries was revealed. Mr. Stearns did not attach any responsibility for the accident upon Peck.

STEAMER NEW HAMPSHIRE FOG BOUND OUT IN SOUND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 6—The steamer New Hampshire of the New London-New York line did not reach her pier here until 8 o'clock this evening. The boat was due to leave New York at midnight Tuesday, but the fog was so dense that she anchored just after she left her pier at New York and remained there until the fog lifted about 11.30 this forenoon, when she weighed anchor and started down the sound. Her passenger list was not a large one, and those who arrived on the steamer found quick connection with trains leaving for the east. The boat started back up sound at 12 o'clock tonight after she had discharged the freight she brought and took on what was going to New York and the west. The fog has prevailed in the sound the past five days, making navigation somewhat hazardous.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Coming to The Breed:

Read what New York's critics, acknowledged to be the most severe in the country, have to say about the Merry Widow.

Dorothy Herzog, in the Daily Mirror said: "The Merry Widow is a gem. Mae Murray and John Gilbert cover themselves with glory as hero and heroine of this rich romance. Mae Murray looks young and lucious and vivacious. The fame that came to Valentino as the result of the 'Four Horsemen' will come two-fold to Jack Gilbert as the result of 'The Merry Widow.' That's our prophecy. Jack makes a fiery lover, a thrilling, devil-may-care prince, an appealing real he-man. You'll go wild over him in his ravishing uniforms, girls. Here's one picture you don't want to miss seeing. It is Erich Stroheim at his best. It is throbbing love, enchanting action and superb suspense."

Quinn Martin in the New York World said: "No young man in the films today would have stood up so bravely and so snappily and so romantically as did John Gilbert to the part of the soldier Prince. And who could have been expected to dance into the camera as Miss Murray would dance? Miss Murray was elegance indeed, and so, it ought to be said, were her gowns. By all means go and see this motion picture:

Rose Pelswick in the Evening Journal wrote: "One could almost leave one happy home for John Gilbert, who gives to his part an understanding that is absolutely arresting. How that boy can make love! The typical von Stroheim directorial touches are fascinatingly deft, and the settings, the costumes and the royal customs are splendid."

The Merry Widow is coming to the Breed theatre Sunday for a limited engagement of five days only, accompanied by a symphony orchestra.

MRS. HEWITT REACHES TERMS WITH BUCK HEIRS-AT-LAW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 6—A hearing on the admission of the will of Rev. Walter P. Buck occurred this afternoon at 3 o'clock before Judge of Probate Arthur B. Calkins. Because of the provisions of the will in which numerous bequests were made and one of them a bequest of $5,000 to Mrs. Albert Hewitt, this city, was intended to be opposed by heirs-at-law of the dead clergyman, an array of legal talent was present to represent various interests. Attorney Philip Z. Hankey represented the executor of the will, Alton T. Miner, while Judge Charles B. Waller and G. Curtis Morgan, and Arthur L. Shipman, Hartford, represented others interested in the instrument.

After considerable testimony had been introduced a compromise was effected between the heirs-at-law and Mrs. Hewitt, the compromise being that Mrs. Hewitt would accept $3,000 or $2,000 less than was bequeathed her by the clergyman. Mrs. Hewitt agreeing to the compromise solely on the understanding that there would be no further contesting of the admission of the instrument. This was speedily agreed to by the heirs-at-law and the document admitted.

Rev. Mr. Buck, a retired Methodist minister and who held a pastorate here a number of years, died suddenly of heart trouble about three months ago. His estate, it is understood, will inventory at a figure considered conservative at $45,000.

The bare announcement that Mary Pickford in Little Annie Rooney will start at the Palace Sunday is enough for the picture wise fan. The fact that the newspapers all over the country say that this is the best thing Mary Pickford has ever done ought to be enough for those who are only mildly interested in her coming. The fact the usual vaudeville bill will be given starting Monday is enough to make every one plan to be there to see such a tremendous programme. Great attractions at the Palace these days and if you miss one show you are missing something you won't be able to see again.

Breed Theater

"Funny men, fat men, little men, big men, freaks of fate and a thousand wonders!

"Step this way, ladies and gentlemen. See them all—here, now—right inside—all for the price of a single dime!"

The typical cry of the circus barker, known to countless millions, will be "seen but not heard" when Johnny Hines' First National picture, "The Live Wire," comes to the Breed theater Friday and Saturday.

It is in this whirlwind comedy that Johnny Hines has incorporated the world-famous freaks in the circus sequences of his production, and how effective these scenes have proven is well in evidence from the many excellent reports that The Live Wire has received.

In The Live Wire Johnny is cast as a daredevil wire artist, who after suffering an injury, becomes a "knight of the road" and eventually puts over a large amusement park project.

Scene upon scene of humorous content and thrills are reported to be the rule in this First National production, with the circus sequences playing an important part in the fun-provoking activities of the picture.

Broadway Theater

A new show starts at the Broadway theater today. There are five acts of Keith-Albee vaudeville on the bill and a splendid program is assured.

The feature film attraction at the Broadway theater is called Where the Worst Begins which will be seen for the first time today. It is a highly entertaining picture and has a story that holds one interested until the finish.

It tells in brief of a girl who has spent her entire life on a ranch who longs to go east, discard her western raiment, and dress herself in silks and satins. There arrives on the scene a party of eastern millionaires on vacation bent. In the party is a young man who is very much bored with the west until he meets the girl in a very unusual way. The girl sees in the man a means to gratify her ambitions to go east and kidnaps and holds him for ransom.

The girl is portrayed by Ruth Roland while the tenderfoot from the east is excellently acted by Matt Moore. Others in the cast are Alec B. Frances, Roy Stewart, Grace Darmond and Dereyls Perdue.

Where the Worst Begins will be at the Broadway theater for three days.

Palace Theatre.

The circus is here at the Palace today. The Knight Bros. have everything in readiness to give their biggest show on the earth for the money. Lucy is all primed up and rearing to go. She has had the time of her young life in Norwich the past few days meeting all the school children and she personally informed us that she is going to hand them a surprise by doing the Charleston when she gets out there to do her dance that delights everybody. Can you imagine Lucy doing the Charleston? I hope she isn't joshing us and we don't think she is, she looks too serious. Today Lucy went to Taftville and she liked the looks of the youngsters up that way so well that she gave one of them a ride all around the town on her back. Lucy says he would make a good boy to go with the circus. If Lucy is ready she is not any more so than the rest of the troupe. Jerry and Maggy, the two monks, are holding something back we can tell by the way they have been whispering to one another all week. Then there is Bobby, the pony, who knows how to count and skip rope, tell the different colors and a number of other tricks. Jargo, the giraffe who can understand French and does any number of funny stunts. Cyclone, the bucking mule, who says he will give anybody twenty five dollars for staying on his back for two minutes. He doesn't look so very dangerous and we think if we had any use for twenty-five dollars we would not be afraid to try it. Then there is Cuban and Maud, another pair of smart ponies, who are wise in the ways of the world, that are going to do their stuff. And then here comes the lions, Bob, one of the largest male lions in captivity, and Kitty, also Babe, who their trainer, Mr. Newmeyer, who for a number of years has been the animal trainer at the motion picture studios and who regards Bob, Kitty and Babe as his special pets. The stunts he makes them perform are thrilling and daring. Considering that Mr. Newmeyer goes into the steel cage with these ferocious animals with only a small whip we must say that he knows them pretty well, or has a lot of courage. Mr. Newmeyer traveled for years in vaudeville playing of course only the largest cities and has played here with Ringling show in the summer. Probably one of the most sensational acts in the circus world today is the 1,000 revolutions per minute hanging by her teeth stunt, as done by Miss Lamaleer, and equally sensational is Mr. De Marlos' seven can balancing trick and trapeze work. There are so many attractions that might be named that nearly this whole page would be taken up in describing them and we think The Knight Bros. circus sums it all up in a nutshell. The greatest show on earth for the money. Don't miss it and be sure and bring the kiddies.

The picture, "On Thin Ice," starts at 2.30 and the circus starts at quarter to four, Thursday and Friday. Saturday four shows will be given, 3, 5, 7 and 9.

POETRY

The Fate of the Fur Folk.

Early, while the east is pale,
The trapper is out on the frozen trail;
Cruel traps are on his back,
Snares to line the woodland track;
Day by day he toils the chain
Of these grim machines of pain—
In whose merciless iron jaws
Little fur folk die, because
Men must fight on fortune's tide,
Woman have an hour of pride.

Squirrel, ermine, sable, mink,
Out for food fever stiff and cold;
Muskrat, silver-fox and mink
At the stream for evening drink—
All lie tempted to his toil
That some bank account may swell.
Ladies, do you think of this
Up where tempests howl and hiss,
Where the folk of lith and cave
Scream with no one there to save?
Do you see them crunched and lone,
Steel teeth biting into bone?

Ladies, did you ever see
An otter gnawing to get free?
Gnawing what? His fettered leg,
For he has no friend to beg.
Do you see that tortured shape
Gnaw his leg off to escape?

Have you seen these creatures die
While the bleeding hours go by—
These poor mothers in the wood
Robbed of joy and motherhood?
Do you, when at night you kneel,
See them in their traps of steel—
Not alone by pain accurst,
But by hunger and by thirst?
Do you hear their dying cries
When the crows pick out their eyes?

Yes, sometimes in dreams you hear
Yells of agony and fear
From the snare of iron teeth,
With that panting thing beneath.
For all night, where storms are whirled
Groans are curdling the white world—
Groans of mothers dying so,
Groans of little ones that go
Homeless, hungry in the snow.

Ladies are the furs you wear
Worth the hell of this despair?
—Edwin Markham, in Ladies' Home Journal.

Egotism

Without him still this whirling earth
Might spin its course around the sun,
And death still dog the heels of birth,
And life be lived, and duty done.

Without him let the rapt earth dree
What doom its twin potations earn;
Whither or whence, are naught to me,
Save as his being they concern.

Comets may crash, or inner fire
Burn out and leave an arid crust,
Or earth may lose Cohesion's tire,
And melt to planetary dust.

It's naught to me if he's not here,
I'll not lament, nor even sigh;
I shall not see the jar, not fear,
For I am he, and he is I.
—Edward Sanford Martin.

Definition of the age of adolescence: When the girl begins to powder and the boy begins to puff.—Center College Colonel.

"What are you digging for now?"

"Just thought I'd see what became of those early vegetables I promised people so lavishly in the spring."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"There are some dogs," remarked Robinson, "that have more intelligence than their masters."

"That's quite right," said Green. "I've got one like that."—Toronto Globe.

James: I rode a sure-footed horse while I was out West.

Jane: How do you know he was sure foted?

James: Well I ought to know. He kicked me in the same place three times.—John Hopkins Black and Blue Jay.

"Is there anything to be said in favor of filibustering?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "It relieves the mind and puts the real strain on the vocal cords."—Washington Star.

Wild pigs make nests in Siam, according to K. G. Gairdner, writing in the Journal of the Natural History Society of Siam. In India, Mr. Gairdner says, it is reported that the pigs make nests of grass but in the evergreen jungles of Siam there is little or no grass and the nests are made of sticks. The sticks are all broken off from the surrounding trees and they vary in thickness from the width of a finger to an inch in diameter. They are piled about a yard high and in a heap about three yards broad. The pigs tunnel beneath the nests, presumably for protection against the rain.

MARKET STRONG, IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—The stock market offered better resistance to selling pressure today, but price movements disclosed considerable irregularity. The opening tone was heavy as a result of a large accumulation of overnight selling orders, particularly in the motors and oils. Offerings were fairly well absorbed, however, and the market headed upward after mid-day, but sagged again in the final dealings. Trading was on a reduced scale, the day's sales falling just short of 1,735,000 shares.

The day's business and financial news was largely favorable. The weekly stock trade reviews pointed out that current operations were running close to the pre-holiday level, despite the fact that new business does not ordinarily develop in large volume until the middle of the month. The Federal Mining and Smelting Company announced the payment of a dividend of $10 on the common and authorized the payment of $19.25 a share in arrears on the preferred stock; the American Cigar company raised its annual rate from 7 to 8 per cent., and the American Water Works company declared an extra of 3 1-2 per cent. in stock.

Commodity markets were irregular. Wheat advanced 1 1-2 to 2 cents a bushel after an early period of irregularity. Cotton futures closed at net advances of 12 to 22 points on prospects of a substantial increase in exports. Coffee sagged 4 to 12 points and raw sugar eased 1-32 of a cent a pound.

Steel shares displayed a strong undertone with buying influenced by prospects of another favorable tonnage statement by the United States Steel Corporation this week. United States Steel common crossed 138 in the early afternoon, but settled back to 137 1-4 where it was up 1 point on the day. The brisk demand for Republic Steel was based on expectations of an early resumption of dividends. Bethlehem and Crucible closed about a point higher but Gulf States was heavy.

Heavy liquidation of the Pan-American issues ni further reflection of the adverse federal court decision in California brought about a sympathetic reaction in some of the other oil shares.

General Asphalt common and preferred, however, advanced to their highest price since 1922.

Rails were reactionary although special strength developed in Delaware and Hudson on a revival of rumors of an early segregation of its coal properties, the stock showing an extreme gain of nearly 5 points at 191 1-2, the highest price since 1912. Pacific Coast was the outstanding strong spot among the specialties, soaring 1 1-2 points to 48, a new high record.

Other outstanding strong spots included Remington and Underwood Typewriters, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Standard Gas and Electric, American Smelting, Atlantic Gulf and West Indies, Cuban Dominican Sugar, the Commercial Solvents issues Fidelity Phoenix Insurance, Intertype Corporation, Liggett and Myers B, Punta Alegre Sugar, South Porto Rican Sugar and Weber and Heilbroner, the net gains in which ran from 2 to 7 points.

Federal Mining and Smelting broke from 111 to 99 3-4 on the announcement of the dividend, but rallied later to a 104 1-2 for a net loss of 4 1-2 points. The preferred touched a new high record at 105 and then eased off 103, up 5-8 on the day. Dupont, Mack Trucks, United Cigar Stores, International Business Machines and Savage Arms were conspicuously heavy.

Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent. and then dropped to four closing at the low figure. Time money rates were a shade easier, thirty-day maturities being available as low as 4 3-4 instead of 4 7-8 per cent. the prevailing rate of the last two weeks. Prime commercial paper was unchanged at 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent.

The foreign exchanges displayed a firm undertone. Demand sterling ruled 3-16 of a cent higher around $4.84 1-16 and French francs advanced nearly 4 points to 3.83 cents. Moderate gains were also recorded by the principal continental currencies.

TAFTVILLE

Hundreds of school children were treated to the sight of one of the trick elephants appearing at a Norwich theatre, when it made its appearance on the streets of the village Wednesday noon. One or two of the youngsters had the privilege of riding on the big animal's back, and the rest of the less favored ones brought out fruit and peanuts to treat the elephant.

BABY CARRIAGE ANTIQUES AMUSE NORWICH CROWD

Several hundred members of the present day generation were given an opportunity Wednesday afternoon to view the various models of baby carriages that grandma and grandpa pushed pa and ma around in about 50 years ago, when the old stock of these vehicles were removed from the store formerly occupied by Edwin A. Fay on Franklin square. All told there were eight of these perambulators and all of a different vintage. There were some with parasols dangling over the tops, some of the open type, some with natural wood high artillery wheels, others with the more sporty wire wheels, but none with the more modern disc wheels. Some had brakes and others had no brakes at all, some were upholstered in green and red plush while others had very little upholstering at all. The models according to the tags on the vehicles ranged from 1880 up to the beginning of the twentieth century. They looked most uncomfortable but were probably just the thing when mother had to push baby down to the store through the mud of Norwich's streets back in those days. They were probably the ultra smart vehicle of the early eighties but little respect did they command from the curious crowd that viewed their removal with amusement.

One person with a humorous turn of mind secured a sign from one of the vacant stores in the building and tacked it on one of the most ancient of the carriages. The sign read "For Rent. Apply to Samuel Goldberg." As far as can be learned Mr. Goldberg has not had any applicants.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE ON NORTH MAIN ST.

As he was crossing the street at the junction of North Main St. and Central Ave., near the car barn, about 8:20 o'clock, Wednesday evening, Joseph Sellas, 36, Jewett City, was hit and knocked down by a Studebaker Big Six sedan owned by Kate Takman, Hill St., Jewett City, and drvien by Steve Takman, 25, also of Jewett City. Takman was driving towards the city at a moderate rate of speed when Sellas suddenly stepped in front of the machine. In a futile effort to avoid hitting Sellas, Takman swung to the left and skidded into an automobile headed in the opposite direction and owned and operated by John J. Woodworth of Jewett City.

As it was seen that Sellas was hurt a call was sent in for Dr. E. J. Brophy who responded. The ambulance from the W. W. Backus hospital was called and the injured man was rushed to the hospital. He was cut about the mouth and suffered injuries about the chest.

Takman's machine received a damaged left rear mudguard and Mr. Woodworth's machine received a damaged mudguard and split tire.

Police Sergeant Matthew Delaney conducted an investigation at the scene of the accident and took Takman and witnesses of the accident who were riding with Takman to police headquarters. All the witnesses stated that it was purely accidental and that no blame could be attached to Takman, who has a reputation as a careful driver. He was allowed to go after the matter had been satisfactorily explained. Sheriff Dolan of Jewett City, who followed Takman's car into Norwich, stated at police headquarters that Takman was driving at moderate speed.

CHANGE IN OFFICERS AT OTIS LIBRARY

After 25 years service as librarian at the Otis library, Miss Imogene Cash has been forced to resign the position owing to ill health. The board of directors, at a recent meeting, reluctantly accepted her resignation. Mrs. Rosina Hamilton, connected with the library for a number of years, is acting librarian for the present.

The trustees of the library have also accepted the resignation of Oliver L. Johnson as a member of the board. Mr. Johnson has served a long term of years on the board and his, wise counsel has often been sought in carrying on library affairs. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, has been elected to succeed Mr. Johnson on the board of trustees. Frederick H. Cranston was elected treasurer of the library to succeed the late Frederick W. Lester. Mr. Cranston has been acting treasurer since Mr. Lester's death.

Academy Dancing Class Party

The members of the Academy dancing class enjoyed a very pretty party Wednesday evening, given by Mrs. Edward Andrews, its director, at the Wauregan hotel. There were 22 couples present and dancing was enjoyed from 8 to 10:30 o'clock to music furnished by Zimmerman's five-piece orchestra. During intermission ice cream and cake were served.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. Charles A. Northrop, of Danbury, who is visiting among his friends in Norwich, for a week or so, having arrived last week to participate in the New Year festivities at the First Congregational church, where for about twenty years he formerly held a pastorate, is the guest while in town, of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Yerrington, of Peck's corner.

At the Sunday morning worship at the Congregational church, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, was assisted by Rev. Mr. Northrop, who preached a fine sermon on "What Think Ye?" The celebration of the Lord's supper was observed at the close of the regular worship, during which Rev. Mr. Bailey was also assisted by Rev. Mr. Northrop.

Mrs. Burton Jopson and Miss Elizabeth Avery were in charge of the Young People's Christian Endeavor meeting in the evening, in the absence due to illness, of Reginald Avery, who was the assigned leader. The topic was "How Does God Show His Loving Care?" Scripture references were in Luke, Peter and Psalms.

For this week of prayer there will be four special meetings when the First Methodist Episcopal church and the First Congregational church will unite for fellowship and worship, with the pastors of the two churches in charge, Rev. James B. Aldrich and Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey. The first two meetings will take place this (Tuesday) and Wednesday evenings, at the Congregational church; while on Thursday and Friday evenings, members of the two parishes will unite at the Methodist church. The topic this evening will be, "Prayer As An Aid to the Christian Life." It is expected that the two Norwich Town ministers will be assisted during the week by Rev. Charles A. Northrop, of Danbury, and Rev. Myron Genter, district superintendent of the southern New England conference of Methodist churches; also that several of the young people will take part. Brief and inspiring addresses in unison, will be the order of the service during the meetings.

Philippians 3-10. That I may know Him, and the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His sufferings, being made conformable unto His death, was the text of Rev. James B Aldrich's sermon at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday morning. In the evening, Rev. Mr. Aldrich chose no special text, but talked interestingly, on the first half of the first chapter of St. Mark. Lewis Aldrich was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service, which preceded the evening sermon "How Does God Show His Loving Care?" was the topic.

At the Methodist parsonage on West Town street, Rev. and Mrs. James B. Aldrich are entertaining Mrs. Aldrich's sister, Mrs. R. H. Little, from Lyndonville, Vermont.

Among the many out of town guests at the New Year's celebration at the Norwich Town Congregational church, were former members, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Smith and son, Raymond Smith, of "Fair Acres," Mystic, who seldom, if ever, fail to attend this gathering and revive old friendships.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Grimley (Mary Collins) of Mystic, who were recently married, were automobile guests of Mr. Grimley's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jull Grimley, and the latter's mother, Mrs Harriet E. Brainerd, also of Mystic, on a trip to Norwich Town. The party spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, of Town street. Dr. Lamb is a brother of Mrs. Brainerd and uncle of Mrs. Lawrence Grimley.

COAL CONFEREES CONVENE, NEGOTIATE AND ADJOURN

Long Session Yesterday Was Adjourned Without Reaching Any Definite Conclusions—Conference is to Be Resumed This Morning—To Observers the Affair Appears to Be an Endurance Contest—Meantime 180,000 Miners Remain Idle.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—To negotiate a new wage contract to end the hard coal strike, the conferees are apparently waiting for something to turn up for one or the other side to break up their joint conference.

After holding another session today they adjourned to eleven o'clock tomorrow morning with the statement that their discussion "did not result in any definite conclusions."

To observers it appeared to be an endurance test for the negotiators aside from the ability of the idle men and the coal companies to hold out indefinitely.

The negotiators cleared the table yesterday of all pending proposed peace plans and other matters vital to ending the controversy and returned today to a desultory discussion of various ideas that had already been advanced by either side.

When evening began to fall, Chairman Alvan Markle, the neutral member of the conference, suggested adjournment and as there was nothing before the conferees that looked like a starting point toward a settlement, the six miners and six operators again filed out of the union league club where the meetings are being held.

Mr. Markle, who is a member of the club, remained behind, still optimistic that he will be able to get the widely separated conferees together by some means not yet known to him. Mr. Markle is credited with holding the negotiators together, and he is determined to continue this as long as he has the ability to do so.

The only apparent action taken by the conference was the adoption of a resolution deploring the dissemination of false reports that the strike had been settled. After the conference adjourned rumors were again spread that the negotiators had agreed on a settlement despite the fact that announcement had been made that the situation remained unchanged.

The fact that the conference is apparently getting nowhere and that no definite proposition already acted upon is before the meeting led to reports that adjournment might be taken tomorrow over the week end, but neither the miners nor the operators would forecast such a move. If Mr. Markle were to suggest it, both sides, it is believed, would readily agree in the hope that next week will bring a new angle to the situation. However, there is always present the chance that something might occur in the conference to bruptly bring a sine die adjournment. This each side avowedly wants to avoid.

It developed today that some of the matters decided yesterday, such as the voting down of the miners' proposal for federal regulation of the anthracite mines and the rejection by the operators of the union's request for an examination of the coal companies' books, were introduced in the meeting prior to yesterday.

They were discussed at length and action postponed until yesterday when the operators gave their former reasons for their opposition to the proposals. Each side is careful to have all matters clearly set forth on the record.

Chairman Markle was called out of the conference this afternoon to meet Colonel John J. Byrne, chairman of the New York state fuel commission. Colonel Byrne said he merely desired to pay his respects to Mr. Markle.

The commissioner told newspaper men that there was no occasion for skyrocketting coal prices as there was no coal emergency in New York at present.

Anyone can keep warm in New York, he said, as there is a plentiful supply of soft coal and coke, not to mention other fuels.

PLOTTED TO RESTORE MONARCHY IN HUNGARY

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 7—(AP)—Proof that a coup de etat in favor of Archduke Albrecht had been planned by those investigating an alleged plot to restore the monarchy. Details of the royalist movement, as learned through the investigations, revealed that one hundred thousand men were available, made up of 37,000 regulars of the national army, controlled by the regent, Admiral Horthy, 25,000 police, gendarmes and customs officers, and nearly 40,000 members of the fascist organization.

Admiral Horthy is said to have been ready to step down from the regency to make way for Albrecht.

Previous reports had it that the leader of the fascisti, Julius Gombos, had assembled many adherents a short distance from Budapest, with the intention of marching on the capital, and that extraordinary precautions were being taken by the government to protect the city not only from disorders within, but from any attack from without.

The great thirty-billion franc counterfeiting scandal, through the disclosure of which the present serious situation in Hungary has arisen, remains in a rather quiescent state. The arrest of three minor officials of the government map printing bureau was the only active development. A story is told concerning the granting of a diplomatic passport to Colonel Jancowvitch for Holland, which was done under direct instructions from the prefect of police, Nadossy, who ordered the low functionary then in his office to prepare the document for Jancowvitch and place seals on his trunk.

"What does the trunk contain?" the functionary asked Nadossy, in order to register it in the record books.

"Counterfeit notes," Nadossy replied in a joking manner. That is what the trunk really did contain.

N. Y. PLAYWRIGTS FORM "A DRAMATISTS' SHOP"

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—More than 100 leading New York playwrights today formed a "dramatists' shop" to forestall what they construe as an attempt of motion picture producers to corner the New York play market. The "shop" is a committee through which it is planned to force the movie men to deal directly with the dramatists in acquiring moving picture rights of stage plays.

Resolutions by which the playwrights decided not to deal with producers who will not agree to let them reserve all but legitimate stage rights to their own work, were adopted. The memorial contained the proviso, however, that the contracts between author and manager will have "proper safeguards for the manager's rights."

George Middleton is chairman of the contract committee which includes Eugene O'Neill, Rachel Crothers, George Kaufman and other noted playwrights.

The authors all of whom are members of the Dramatists' Guild of the Authors' association of America, Inc., have formed an organization to be known as the Association of Dramatists. The action which led to the "shop" began last month when William Fox, motion picture producer was reported to be trying to corner the play market by adding legitimate producers financially in return for agreements for the motion picture rights.

TO PLAN SETTLEMENTS WITH GERMANY'S FORMER RULERS

BERLIN, Jan. 7—(AP)—The reichstag's legal committee has entered upon consideration of three proposals for regulating the settlement of the claims of Germany's former rulers. The Democratic proposal authorizes the individual states to regulate the claims through the state statutes, with the elimination of all court proceedings.

Two communist proposals demand appropriation of all the properties of the former rulers without indemnification, and the cessation of all legal settlements pending the adoption of permanent national statutes.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Woodrow Wilson Foundation

BERLIN, Jan. 7—(AP)—The foreign office issued a statement tonight that the actual offer of the Woodrow Wilson foundation award for 1925 was never made to Foreign Minister Stresemann, although Dr. Stresemann was unofficially sounded regarding his acceptance shortly after the Locarno conference.

CONSIDERED INTERNATIONAL PHASES OF RADIO REGULATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—International phases of radio regulation were considered today at the hearings by the house merchant marine committee on the white bill for control of air communication.

Major J. J. Monborgne of the army signal corps, said this question was a matter for extensive legal study, as the government might not be able to enforce the power it claimed over the ether. He explained that there was nothing to prevent a message being sent from one foreign station to another by way of the United States.

Representative Davis, republican, Tennessee, expressed the opinion that the air was in the category of waters, which were international but subject to regulation by any nation when shipping approached its boundaries.

W. G. Logue, of the Independent Wireless Telegraph Co., contended that radio control should be left solely in the hands of the department of commerce. The bill, in addition to providing for and defining department control, would vest judicial questions in a commission of nine.

Emil J. Smith of the Intercity Radio & Telephone Co., of Ohio, charged that the department of commerce had discriminated against overland wireless services in their competition with telegraph and telephone lines. When Solicitor Davis of the commerce department said such a charge was "utterly false," Mr. Smith admitted he had no personal knowledge of such discrimination but said he had been informed of it.

Hearings on the bill were adjourned for a week.

SMALLPOX IS BORDERING ON EPIDEMIC IN TAMPA, FLA.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 7—(AP)—Leading newspapers in Tampa today carried information of reported small pox cases here, which E. C. Levy, city health officer said are bordering on an epidemic. The health officer, who termed newspaper publicity his "greatest weapon" to combat its spread, prepared through printed circulars to carry his appeals into homes.

The Kiwanis club of Tampa went on record yesterday as being opposed to any publicity on the number of small pox cases in the city. A committee, headed by Dr. W. M. Rowlett, member of the Florida medical board of examiners, was named to call on the publishers of newspapers.

The small pox "scare" started here about three weeks ago, but did not take on a proportion bordering on epidemic, Dr. Levy said, until December 27, since that time twenty-eight cases have been reported bringing the total number up to 52. Only 25 per cent. of Tampa's population has been vaccinated, Dr. Levy said he had reported to the state board of health.

The action of the Kiwanis club, according to members speaking in behalf of the news suppression, was due to "Tampa getting unfair advertising through the reports which are adverse to Florida and Tampa."

WESTMINSTER GAZETTE COMMENTS ON RUBBER TRADE

LONDON, Jan. 7—(AP)—The Stevenson rubber restriction scheme having played its part, it is probably now due for fundamental revision, says an editorial in The Westminster Gazette, discussing the general inadvisability of any scheme of protection or trade restriction.

"The Stevenson scheme," remarks the paper, "is in fact but the part of those protective schemes which recall with boomerang effect upon the head of their authors. Even Secretary Hoover admits that reprisals merely augment the evil."

It is the general opinion in the rubber market that if the Stevenson scheme were scrapped there would still be an excess demand over the supply of rubber for some time to come. Rumors have been circulated that the British government would advise an early repeal of the restrictive legislation to the governments concerned. But thus far it has been impossible to obtain confirmation of this.

INVESTIGATING THE BRITISH CONTROL OF CRUDE RUBBER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Continuing with its investigation of the British control of the crude rubber supply and other foreign monopolies, the house commerce committee today received testimony from a number of representatives of the American rubber industry.

Meanwhile, in the house, the advisability of the investigation was questioned by several democratic members, Representatives Black of New York and Connally of Texas, both asserting that the committee should turn its attention to monopolies in this country over which congress was legislative power.

Secretary Hoover's position in urging the rubber inquiry amounted to "propaganda plus," in the opinion of Mr. Black, who charged that American tire companies were slicing the faithful Hoover on the British lion just when they are about to inflate prices."

EXPLOSION KILLED TWO MEN IN JERSEY CITY

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 7—(AP)—Cause of the explosion of a 35 foot gas tank in the Koven Iron Works today, resulting in the death of Homer Reighard a fireman, and Fred Fasting, his helper, was being investigated by police tonight. Reighard died instantly and Fasting four hours later in a hospital.

The two men were alone in the power room of the plant, where the tank was located. Force of the explosion damaged the building badly. No other workmen were injured, however.

Officials of the plant said the tank had been thoroughly tested less than two hours before it blew up.

Marriage Ceremony Of Unusual Splendor

United Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt and Earl E. T. Smith.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—With medieval pageantry, Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt was married today to Earl E. T. Smith, in the drawing room of her mother's Fifth avenue home.

To the chanting of the Paulist choristers the ceremony was performed in a setting resembling the chapel of a French chateau, while on the sidewalks beneath the windows a large crowd waited eager for a glimpse of the guests.

The wedding of one of the country's most notable heiresses to the son of Sydney J. Smith and Mrs. C. Whitney Carpenter was attended by two hundred persons prominent in finance and society, who gathered in the last of the Vanderbilt chateaus. Two other Fifth avenue residences of the family have been sold within the past year.

The Paulist choristers sang, The Bridal Chorus from "The Rose Maiden" cantata by Cowen as the bride and her father, William K. Vanderbilt, II, entered the room. Her only attendant, Mrs. Frederick Church, Jr., the former Miss Muriel Vanderbilt, sister of the bride, entered alone. Sydney A. Smith was best man.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Thomas Murphy, of St. Patrick's cathedral, who married the bride's parents in 1899. Mrs. Vanderbilt was Virginia Fair, daughter of the late James G. Fair of California.

The ushers were: Harold S. Vanderbilt, uncle of the bride; Herman Oelrichs and John Hay Whitney, cousins of the bride; and Walter Rich, Erwin J. Thompson Bushness, James Booker Theodore Lenihan and William Curran.

Following the ceremony a large reception was held in the drawing room, from which the improvised altar had been removed.

As the guests arrived, several squads of policemen were called out to keep open a lane from the curb to the door. The large crowd was particularly interested in the possibility of the arrival of the former Ellin Mackay and her husband, Irving Berlin.

The Berlins, upon leaving Atlantic City yesterday, where they had spent the first days of their honeymoon after their elopement, said they were returning to New York and that Mrs. Berlin might attend the wedding of Miss Vanderbilt. Mrs. Berlin's father, Clarence H. Mackay, is a close friend of the Vanderbilt family.

SCENE OF ANGER IN GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

HARTFORD, Jan. 7—(AP)—The governor's office was the scene today of a bitter fight among veterans of three wars.

Captain Ira R. Wildman of Danbury, past department commander of the State G. A. R., was deposed as the chairman of the executive committee of the soldiers' hospital board and Captain Charles F. Beck of Stamford, a leader of Connecticut Spanish American War Veterans, was elected in his place.

Captain Wildman, a gray-haired, grizzled fighter of over 70, shook his fist under Captain Beck's nose as they were leaving the governor's office and declared:

"I may be an old man, but don't you ever make a statement like that to my face again."

Captain Wildman had held the chairmanship only since Saturday, but had already ordered the discharge as steward of the soldiers' home at Noroton of James Cleary, the former steward of the University club of Hartford.

BOSTON PHYSICIAN WAS INFECTED BY X-RAYS

BOSTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Infected by X-rays in the course of research work for science and his patients, Dr. James Lilly Day, of Waltham, is in Massachusetts General hospital with his lower right arm and three fingers of his left hand amputated and little hope is held for his recovery. The two remaining fingers are infected, and physicians said that there was no known method for checking the disease.

Dr. Day told a reporter at his bedside today that he thought his failure to wear gloves while at work with the rays had caused infection of the finger tissues, or that a slight cut on his hand was responsible. He has been a practicing physician for twenty-five years and is now 55 years old. A month ago he came to the hospital, and his right hand was amputated, but the infection spread upward, and a few days ago a surgeon amputated his right arm at the elbow. Dr. Day is rated as a pioneer in the use of X-rays in New England.

American Protest To Turkish Gov't

Against a Direct Discrimination Made Against American Goods.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Import duties put into effect by the Turkish government January 2, which shows a direct discrimination against American goods as compared with those of every American competitor for trade in that country, have been made the subject of a protest by Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, American high commissioner at Constantinople, despite that the commercial treaty between the two nations is still awaiting confirmation in the senate.

Under her commercial connections with allied countries, Turkey has schedules of specific duties, and these were modified by the action taken this month to provide a range of from five to 9 as the coefficients, whereas for American goods, lacking the protection of a favored nation stipulation such as is contained in the pending treaty, the coefficients fixed were 8 to 12.

These figures mean that allied goods classed as necessities which paid on a basis of $5 would come in competition with the same classes of goods from the United States which would pay $8 for entry into Turkey. The difference as to luxuries would be $9 as compared to $12.

The changes were made to affect Turkish exchange, which is on a basis of about one-fifth of par.

No detailed information as to the form in which Admiral Bristol's protest was made thus reached Washington.

PROTEST FILED WITHOUT WAITING FOR INSTRUCTIONS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Turkey, Jan. 7—(AP)—Without waiting for instructions from Washington, the American embassy has lost no time in filing a protest with the Turkish government against what it feels is unwarranted discrimination. Recent Turkish legislation has placed a tax on commodities imported from the United States amounting to eight times the customs duty assessed on merchandise from countries which have signed commercial treaties with Turkey. It is against the imposition of such duties that the American embassy protests.

It is not believed that Turkey's move has been made with the intention of forcing ratification of the Lausanne treaty, but solely to increase the country's revenue, and incidentally to penalize nations which have refrained from negotiating commercial treaties with Turkey, and therefore do not benefit by the favored nation clause.

American imports by Turkey approximate $7,000,000 annually, chiefly automobiles, oil, agricultural implements and flour.

Several European powers are expected to make similar protests.

PLAINFIELD WELCOMES THE CHAMPION FIDDLER

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 7—(AP)—The hearty welcome the townspeople gave Joe Shippee, when he returned today from Providence, the champion fiddler of New England, was only a preliminary to the real honors which they will accord, neighbors said tonight. Arrangements are being made for a big reception for Mr. Shippee at the Plainfield Community house next Wednesday, January 13.

Old fashioned dances will be in order and the champion fiddler and his own orchestra will furnish the music. Many of the leading citizens are working for the success of the reception.

FLOODS IN WESTERN EUROPE ARE ABATING

PARIS, Jan. 7—(AP)—The River Seine continued to rise today, but not so rapidly as during the preceding twenty-four hours. At the Austerlitz bridge, a sort of strategic point, the water stood at 6.10 metres (about 20 feet) which was still seven feet lower than the record height of 1910.

A conference was held this afternoon of the chiefs of various public departments, and measurements were devised to protect the residents along the river banks should they be obliged to evacuate their homes.

The flood situation in the Boise region has remained virtually unchanged, while the Rheims district appears to be now suffering worse conditions than any of the others.

RECOMMENDS MODERATE INDULGENCE IN "VICES"

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—(AP)—Moderate indulgence in all "so-called vices" was given as the secret of longevity by Dr. Adolf Lorenz, 72-year old Viennese surgeon when he arrived today on the Berengaria.

"To reach a ripe old age," he said, "and still be of service, one should indulge moderately in all the so-called vices. I have done it all my life. I have always partaken, moderately, of alcoholic drinks because alcohol, taken in medicinal qualities, is the best thing for the system."

Dr. Lorenz said that the purpose of his visit is to call on many of the patients he treated when he was here 4 years ago. While here he said he may conduct a few clinics.

RULES FOR SETTLEMENT OF RAILROAD LABOR DISPUTES

Agreements Have Been Reached Between Employers and Employes—The Matter Will Be Submitted to Congress For Legislative Action—Provisions of the Bill Aim Not Only to Preclude Labor Troubles, But to Safeguard the Interests of the Public.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Legislation for the settlement of railroad labor disputes began to take shape for submission to congress today, after President Coolidge had been apprised of agreements reached between the employers and employes on the subject.

Chairman Watson of the senate interstate commerce committee, who was a White House dinner guest tonight, W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, and a delegation of heads of railroad unions, including D. B. Robertson, W. N. Doak and B. M. Jewell, with Donald R. Richberg, attorney for the labor organizations among those who discussed the matter with the president.

Later, Alfred P. Thom, counsel for the association of railway executives, who conferred with the president yesterday, joined whit Mr. Richberg in making public a statement declaring that railroad employers and employes had reached an agreement in legislation to create a board of mediation for railroad labor disputes, with provisions for arbitration in case mediation is unsuccessful, and also to authorize the president to institute investigation by a special board, in case of threatened disturbance. The statement made no reference to abolition of the railroad labor board, although this was understood to be implied in the proposal.

"The president of the United States has in more than one message to congress invited the rail carriers and their employes to confer in the effort to agree upan a method of adjusting labor disputes, which will not only be mutually satisfactory and protective of their just rights, but which will also properly safeguard the interests of the public," the statement explained.

"An agreement has now been reached and a bill to carry it into effect will be presented to congress in the immediate future. The provisions of the bill may be summarized as follows:

"First—That it shall be the duty of the parties to exert every reasonable effort to make and maintain agreements.

"Second—Any and all disputes shall be first considered in conference between the parties directly interested.

"Third—Adjustment boards shall be established by agreement, which shall be either between an individual carrier and its employes, or regional, or national. These adjustment boards will have jurisdiction over any disputes relating to grievances or to the interpretation or application of existing agreements, but will have no jurisdiction over changes in rates of pay, rules or working conditions.

"Fourth—A board of mediation is created, to consist of five members appointed by the president by and with the advice and consent of the senate, with the duty to intervene, at the request of either party, or on its own motion, in any unsettled labor dispute x x x if it is unable to bring about an amicable adjustment between the parties, it is required to make an effort to induce them to consent to arbitration.

"Fifth—Boards of arbitration are provided for, when both parties consent to arbitrate, also the method of selecting members of the boards and the arbitration procedure. Any award made by the arbitrators shall be filed in the appropriate district court of the United States and shall become a judgment of the court, binding on the parties.

"Sixth—In the possible event that a dispute between a carrier and its employes is not settled under any way of the foregoing methods, provision is made that the board of mediation, if in its judgment the dispute threatens to substantially interrupt interstate commerce, shall notify the president, who is thereupon authorized, in his descretion, to create a board to investigate and report to the president, within thirty days from the date of the creation of the board. It is also provided that after the creation of such a board and for thirty days after it has made its report to the president, no change, except by agreement, shall be made by the parties of the controversy in the conditions out of which the dispute arose.

"It is believed by the representatives of the carriers and the employes that the creation of the machinery mentioned and the opportunity and the obligation to pursue the methods provided will result in the amicable adjustment of all future labor disputes and prevent any interruption of transportation."

ICE JAM FORMING IN THE LOWER NIAGARA RIVER

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 7—(AP)—An ice jam is forming in the lower Niagara river from Lewiston to Fort Niagara at the mouth of the stream. The river is filled with ice from shore to shore between those points. The ice fields are increasing in thickness. The length of the jam is about seven miles. The river level at Lewiston was reported four feet above normal today.

Rivermen say that if the cold weather, which set in today, continues, the ice floes will retard the outflow so that a huge jam will be formed within a day or two.

The mild weather which preceded the cold snap loosened the ice floes in the lower end of Lake Erie and along the shores of the upper river and great quantities of ice have been coming down stream and over the falls and through the lower rapids. The ice flow through the lower rapids is reported the heaviest in years. The situation is being closely observed by the coast guard at the fort.

SPENT HIS PAY IN FIVE AND TEN CENT STORES

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 7—(AP)—A husband's mania for spending his pay in five and ten cent stores was considered as sufficient grounds today for divorce. Seven dollars a week alimony went with the decree.

He gave her but little money with which to run the house, she testified, threatened her and abused her. Once inside a five and ten cent store, she said, he would not leave until his money was exhausted.

Vice Chancellor Leaming granted the decree.

She divorced him at Reno in 1919 on a charge of desertion. Mrs. Selwyn's first husband was Russel M. Snyder, married her before she went on the stage and from all-vorced in Morgantown, West Virginia, last October. She gave her age as 24.

DYNAMITE PLACED AT OFFICE OF THREAD CO.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 7—More sticks of dynamite continue to be found in the vicinity of the American Thread Company plant. Wednesday morning when the main office of the plant was being opened for the day's business two sticks were discovered on the doorstep. With the explosive was a hand-written note which read: "We have a full load of this. Call it quits or up goes your mill." A short time later two more sticks were found near the tenement house owned by the company at the intersection of Ives and Dunham streets. A second note was found with this reading in sense as the previous one did. In general, dynamite appears to be plentiful in lower village. A few days ago two small children were found playing with sticks of dynamite. There has not, however, been any indication of an attempt at ignite the explosive. Its purpose to date has apparently been to intimidate employes and officials of the Thread company and is regarded as one of the many developments of the strike which was called last March. The possibilities of danger either accidental or intentional, are causing police officials to give the matter their most serious attention. The theft of 500 pounds of dynamite from the Hurley-Grant company's magazine at Hop's pond, near Phelps' Crossing, about one month ago, was anything but a prank. The heavy padlock attached to a heavy metal door was ripped off with a crowbar to which considerable force had to be applied to accomplish its purpose.

SEIZE FIVE GALLON STILL AND QUANTITY OF BOOZE

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 7—A five gallon still filled with ingredients for the manufacture of alcohol and a coil and a cooling vat, making up the remainder of the outfit, 10 gallons of wine, one gallon of alcohol and about 40 gallons of mash, were the net results of a raid at the home of Wasil Bawonczyk, of 355 Jail street, conducted about 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening by Chief of Police McArthur, Captain Grady, Officer Bombria and County Detective William E. Jackson. Calls were made at two suspected booze joints previous to the visit at the Bawonczyk home but they were unsuccessful. After presenting the owner of the house with a search warrant the officers went to the cellar and first came upon a heavy copper still of modern design. The still had apparently just been taken from the stove for it was yet quite hot. Five gallons of the wine were contained in a barrel, the remainder being in jugs. The barrel of mash was dumped. Bawonczyk was notified to appear in police court this Friday morning.

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 7—Superintendent Robert Hurley of the state police department was in this city today and entered into conference with officials of the American Thread company, possibly in relation to the investigation being conducted to check the flow of dynamite into Lower Village. A sudden explosion which caused his automobile to take fire while he was engaged in repairing it in his garage on Prospect street, South Coventry, gave William H. Armstron, of that place, a few busy moments Wednesday morning. Retaining his presence of mind Mr. Armstrong released the brakes and pushed the machine into the yard and he quickly secured a fire extinguisher. The blaze was extinguished but not before Mr. Armstrong's overalls had caught fire and he suffered a slight burn on his wrist. He was treated by a physician. Mr. Armstrong cannot account for the explosion. He was holding an electric light bulb attached to a cord which ran through the ceiling and it is his belief that a spark of electricity came through a defective section of the insulation and ignited the vapor of the gasoline.

PLAINFIELD

SHOP COMMITTEE HOLDS ITS QUARTERLY MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 7—The quarterly meeting of the Shop committee of Lawton Mills, was held at the Lawton inn following a banquet in the main dining room. The report was rendered by the special committee appointed to interview the management of the bus lines, operated by the Connecticut company. The proposal of this committee was to have the busses leave the trunk line and descend into the village through Babcock avenue and up Railroad avenue, stopping for passengers at the post office, instead of stopping only at points on the state highway. The matter, according to the report, would have to be brought up before the Public Utilities Commission, and the bus management seemed to favor the change. As soon as permission can be obtained for the change, the employes of the company will be issued orders. At the close of the meeting the committee joined a group of friends at the Community House, and a whist party was held. Prizes for the winners were awarded to Mrs Charles Gee 1st prize, an English tea pot, the consolation prize went to Miss Blanche Eastham. The men's prize was tied for by Irving Flagg and Lee Fournier, Mr. Flagg winning a pair of driving gloves. The consolation prize was won by Byron Provost, after drawing with Harry Hilton, who was tied. Dancing followed the whist.

CHILDREN ARE PROUD OF CHAMPION "DADDY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 7—January 6th 1926 will be a memorable day for Joseph H Shippee, of Plainfield who on this day was proclaimed by a unanimous vote as the Champion Fiddler of New England. Mr. Shippee has led a life of great variety which would add more figure's to those newly gained. He was born in Killingly, Conn., of pure-old Yankee stock, and in his early life, started as a farmer, which occupation he has followed chiefly since. In an interview with Mr. Shippee, he said, 'I've chopped wood, teamed, worked for the mill, in fact done anything for a dollar and after all my life, I haven't got one now." Mr Shippee was married young, and was left a widower about 2 years ago. He has seven children, five boys and two girls, all of whom he says are good rugged children. All seven children were in the audience, when "Pappa Shippee' was presented the championship gold medal, and they sure were proud of him. For the past winter Mr. Shippee has operated a portable wood sawing machine in company with his son, Dewey, and for a man of such a ripe old age, he has caused many people to marvel at his agility.

DANIELSON

ALWAYS KNEW THAT SHIPPEE WAS CHAMPION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 7—"Joe Shippee champion fiddler of New England! That's no news to us. We've known it for years and years. Sakes alive, they had to drag him over to Providence to prove that it was true when everybody hereabouts had granted for half a generation that you couldn't match him in all New England. Well, it's a good thing, anyway, that he went and proved it to them, for they'd never believed it on any saying of ours."

"And to think Henry Ford had a chance to hear Joe and went and invited Mellie Dunham of Norway, Me., to ride out to Detroit to play for him when he could have heard Joe just as well—and maybe the carfare wouldn't have been quite so much. But Henry makes a lot of mistakes when he isn't building automobiles, so we can afford to excuse that. This isn't saying anything against Mellie, of course, but there can be only one champion in New England, and Joe Shippee is him without a doubt."

The foregoing represents a sort of symposium of what scores of people in Plainfield, Killingly, Brooklyn and Canterbury said Thursday morning when they read that Joseph Shippee of Plainfield had been awarded the All New England old-time fiddlers' championship after competing at Providence Wednesday night in the finals of a three-day contest for the honor.

For the past decade Joe Shippee has been a principal magnet drawing attendance to fortnightly Saturday dances held in the old Hyde district schoolhouse in the town of Canterbury. Charles B. Hyde of Brooklyn said Thursday afternoon that Joe has failed in all that time on only one occasion to be on hand every other Saturday night to enthrall with his ancient fiddle and enveigle young and old the spry and the halt, into dancing to his old-time music and as only he can play it, in all the New England states. A big snow storm held Joe up the time he was absent.

While these dances are more or less of a neighborhood nature, they have drawn attendance at time to time from all the communities for miles around. Danielson and Brooklyn people, not to forget people of Canterbury and Plainfield and Hampton and other towns have danced to Joe's playing time and again—and always with great gusto. Not so long ago the champion fiddler was heard at a dance in Pellett's hall here.

The dances at the Hyde district school have become a classic. Years since the district abandoned the building for school purposes. It remains the property of the district. Through the efforts and foresight of Charles B. Hyde, a former representative of the town of Brooklyn and long a resident of the town of Canterbury, and Andrew T. J. Clark, who has represented his home town of Canterbury in the legislature, the Hyde district school was renovated for use on alternate Saturdays for dances that are much like old-time district family gatherings. They have savored not at all of the modern public dance. Joe Shippee has been the life of these affairs—he and his frivolous fiddle. Joe is scheduled to play for a dance there tomorrow (Saturday) night. It's a foregone conclusion that he will get an overwhelming reception. He has earned it and those who dance to his playing will see that he gets it.

MOTOR COACH COMPANY SLASHES MOTOR BUS RATES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 7—Effective on Thursday, the New England Transportation company slashed the motor coach fare between Danielson and Providence from $1.50 to $1.15. The operating company, so closely allied with the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company, made the reduction without prior announcement. It came as a great surprise to patrons of the line and to the comparatively few others who happened to hear about it during the day.

Analysing various possible reasons for the reduction, a variety of answers may be obtained. There are those who will tell you that it brings the coach fare down to a rate approximating the mileage charge on steam trains of the New Haven road, not exactly, but thereabouts, and that the idea is to equalize in some degree and insofar as may be possible coach and train fares.

Others see the reduction as the beginning of a drive against other coach lines operating over the same route and the opening of a rate cutting war carrying the possibility of mighty cheap fares all along the coach line between Providence and Hartford via Danielson and Willimantic.

It has been held by observers of the development of the motor coach business and the competition for patronage, now more keen than ever before, that in due time a rate war was almost certain with the survival of the fittest as the ultimate outcome. Many things may happen as the months roll along, but it is not at all likely that the New England Transportation company will be driven from the local field. Other operating lines may be eclipsed in quality of service, rates of fare and in other ways. They may be pleased to retire from the field or sell their franchises. It is not probable, strong as they may be, that they will care to continue indefinitely a contest for business against such a great organization as the N. E. Transportation company, with its powerful financial assets.

An economist likely would agree that one ably operated and managed line is ample to care for the business developing over the Danielson pike between Hartford and Providence, although for the present only that part of the route between Danielson and Providence figures in the fare reduction. If this be true, there can be but one outcome, fewer lines of coaches over the same route, but ample and dependable service.

It was hinted Thursday that the New England Transportation company contemplates broadening its activities in eastern Windham county. Announcements relative to the plan are expected later in the month.

New coaches have been put on the line operating between Providence and Willimantic via Danielson by the N. E. Transportation company. These are splendid modern vehicles with all appointments tending toward the comfort of patrons.

Forced off the state highway in West Waureagan Wednesday night by a truck that was proceeding toward Brooklyn, a car driven by Herbert Blaney went into a deep ditch bordering the highway at that point causing the injury of Miss Grace A. Bassett of Spring street, who was riding on the front seat beside Mr. Blaney, and Mrs. Chloe Smith of Main street, who was riding on the rear seat. Miss Bassett received a cut on the head that required four stitches to close and other injuries. Mrs. Smith was thrown against the rear of the back seat. It was at first thought that Mrs. Smith had suffered a broken nose, but this proved not to be true. Mr. Blaney escaped without serious injury. The point where the accident occurred is a danger spot, due to an unprotected ditch, into which more than one car has gone, while many others have narrowly escaped doing so when forced over to the west side of the highway.

From sections of the town of Pomfret and Brooklyn reports are coming in of wire snares that have been set for foxes being found by hunters and of foxhounds being caught in these prohibited devices. Every year about this time foxhunters complain about wire snares. They are as deadly to foxhounds or other dogs as they are to the foxes sought through this means by unscrupulous persons who do not hesitate to break the law. Willingly has not been exempt from snare setters this fall or winter. Deputy Game Warden Gurdon E. Withey is aware that snares have been set and has sought assiduously to capture the men who have set them. Information relative to snares will be welcomed by Mr. Whithey and every effort made to get those responsible for setting them.

For the third time since the first of the year the fire department was called out Thursday just before 11 a. m. for a chimney fire at the J. B. Seneca house on Mechanic street. Fire extinguishers served to stay the blazing chimney. The use of quantities of wood in the borough during the current season is believed to be responsible for a number of the chimney fires for which the department has responded, though this will not account for all of them.

At St. John's church in Plainfield a solemn high mass of requiem was sung at the funeral of Dedise Metthe. The officers of the mass were Rev. R. P. Morrissey of St. John's church, Rev. John J. CLEARED OF CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

BRIDGEWATER, Jan. 7—Samuel B. Apher of Worcester was cleared in superior court here today before Judge Morton charged with manslaughter. He drove the truck that struck Felix Kizola of Wilsonville, 8 years of age, while he was riding a bicycle on the highway near his home on the evening of December 15, causing injuries that resulted in his death. Howard C. Bradford, state's attorney prosecuted and Charles L. Torrey represented the accused.

It was not apparent from the testimony nor did the state try to prove, that there was gross negligence on the part of Apher of the "revolting character" that the law requires should be an element of the offense charged.

State Officer Urquhart of the Danielson barracks testified that he had visited the scene of the accident the day after it occurred, had taken measurements and had pictures taken of the highway at this point, and had also obtained a signed statement from the defendant. This was to the effect that Apher is an employe of the Boston Sausage and Provisions Co., of Worcester, and that he is an experienced driver. He left Putnam for Worcester, about 5 o'clock on the evening of December 15, turning on his lights before starting. He did not see the Kizola boy on the bicycle, who was traveling in the same direction, but immediately after the collision he told his helper, who was with him on the seat, that he believed he had struck some one.

Stopping his truck the two went back and found the boy lying in the road, unconscious and the machine he was riding badly smashed. They lifted the victim into the truck and drove to a physician's office in Webster, who, after a brief examination, called an ambulance and had the injured boy sent to St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester. He died there a few hours later. Apher was driving, he told the officer at from 30 to 35 miles an hour.

Guy Ruggiero, a youth of 17, who was Apher's assistant and who has been detained at the Brooklyn jail as a material witness, verified this story. He told of lighting the lamps on the car before leaving Putnam and said that they were adjusted so as to make the reflection brighter than they used in driving in a city; but at the point where the accident occurred he thought that the lights had become a little dimmer. They were bright enough to distinguish a person 10 or 15 feet ahead, or to discern an obstacle in the road 50 or 75 feet ahead.

Other witnesses testified to points which the defendant did not dispute.

At the close of the state's testimony Judge Hinman called Attorneys Bradford and Torrey into his office for a short conference. On its termination the complaint was modified to that of driving with insufficient lights, the other charge was nolled, and Apher pleaded guilty.

Judge Hinman said that it appeared to him as he had suggested to counsel during the conference that the accused had been driving with insufficient lights and he thought that the ends of justice would be satisfied by accepting a plea of guilty to that effect. He imposed a fine of $50 and costs which the defendant paid and was released.

Fred D. Sharpe pleaded guilty to two counts. He was sentenced to thirty days in Brooklyn jail on one count, a like sentence imposed on the second count, but the execution of the second one suspended.

Michael Wawar was given three months in jail after pleading guilty to breaking into the New Haven freight house at Willimantic.

Martin Shea, charged with non-support, was adjudged guilty and sentenced to three months in jail, or to pay $8.00 a week for the support of his infant child, and give bond of $450 to guarantee the carrying out of the sentence, also to pay $70 for medical expenses at the time the child was born. He agreed to pay the amount specified and furnished a cash bond.

Simon Berthiaume, of Putnam, pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor law by selling on two different occasions. On one count he was sentenced to thirty days in jail, on the second the sentence was the same but the execution of this one was suspended. A fine of $200 was also imposed.

Court adjourned until Tuesday of next week.

STOPPING CRIMINAL TIDE

For a considerable period of time many outside of the state of Massachusetts have been interested in the strenuous efforts which one official of that state has been making in behalf of the public through a better enforcement of the laws. He has directed attention to the results of laxity of officials and courts and boldly cited the instances where such cases have been brought to his attention.

It is not surprising that that should furnish a text for a part of the message of the governor of Massachusetts to the legislature of that state at its opening. Governor Fuller dealt at length upon crime and the proper protection of the public. Among other things he said:

"Misdirected sympathy and the highly developed expertness of penologists, reformers and parole advocates who have lost sight of the rights and protection of the public and concentrated on the rights and reformation of the criminal, have aided to increase crime.

"The doctrine has been preached far and wide that when a crime is committed the thing to do is to try to reform the wrongdoer rather than to inflict punishment for the crime. It is punishment for the crime—swift and sure—that is the protection for society.

"Prompt, vigorous and effective prosecution would speedily make crime less prevalent.

"The parents of our commonwealth have a supreme duty to perform in this question of crime and its prevention.

"For the most part the belief has prevailed that there is law enough to deal with the criminality if those who are responsible for such work do their duty. Laxity in that respect has been encouraged even by legislation. It is always to be found in the sympathy that is invariably displayed for those who have committed crime with their eyes open, and who have been encouraged by the belief that punishment would be little or nothing.

"It is the belief of the Massachusetts governor that some relief is to be obtained through additional legislation that will tend to correct some of the evils which have been disclosed by the existing laws. They should and probably will get the considerate attention of the legislature of that state.

CROSSING RECKLESSNESS

The public service commission of Pennsylvania has been making a study of the grade crossing accidents in that state and it discloses conditions which back up claims which have been persistently made that the reason for the many fatalities at such points is not so much in the railroads and the lack of signals at such points as it does in the recklessness of the drivers of automobiles.

According to the statistics there has been an increase in crossing accidents in the Keystone state from 242 in 1916 to 1002 in 1925 or more than four times as many in a period of eleven years. The crossings haven't appreciably increased in number during that time but there has been a marked increase in the endeavors to create a greater regard for safety on the part of highway users. Likewise there has been a decided gain in the number of autos, but it is the disregard for danger and the unwillingness to do anything to avoid it that has contributed so heavily to the accidents and fatalities at such points.

According to the Pennsylvania figures there were ten per cent. of the cars struck by trains that were stalled on the tracks and in all but 163 cases automobiles were involved in the accidents. But what tells the story very plainly is the fact that 30 per cent of the cars figuring in the accidents actually ran into the trains.

Autos that go crashing into trains through gates that are lowered, past signals and flagmen and sometimes over them are not being driven in a careful manner. The drivers of such have actually disregarded the warnings which have been posted along the highways sufficiently in advance of the crossing, or over the crossings themselves. Such drivers have taken the attitude that everything must keep out of their way and that there was no obligation on their part to protect themselves or others. There is no justification for such conduct, and the real trouble with the crossings is not that they are increasingly deadly but that the recklessness of highway users is not only unpardonably great but on the gain.

HOW THE SENATE STANDS

What appears to be open to interpretation as a test vote in the senate concerning the world court and the war debt agreements was the voting upon the Shipstead proposition put forward [illegible] ratifying [illegible] debt funding pacts. By a vote of more than three to one, with a considerable number of the senators not voting, the Reed effort was voted down.

It was of course a great opportunity for those who are desirous of seeing the world court or the debt agreements defeated to have stepped forward and aided in the effort to get another inquiry started. Those who voted for such a move showed their hand and it will be noted that they made up that group of senators which has been in the past devoting its chief attention to obstructing legislation. It is that crowd of insurgents that has been playing hand in hand with the democrats for the purpose of embarrassing the administration, but which now seems to have been deserted by the democrats on these particular matters.

From the vote upon the Reed proposition there was shown to be a two thirds majority in behalf of the world court and the debt agreements, both of which undoubtedly should be approved in the opinion of the great majority of the people of this country. Whether this vote will serve as an additional indication of the sentiment of the country to the obstructors remains to be seen.

There isn't of course any reason to justifying such an inquiry as was asked for. It would have served to delay and to prevent action which ought not to be delayed. It would have interrupted early action upon other matters which congress should push along and get out of the way. There was no merit in the move, and there is no better demonstration of it than is to be gained from those who lent their votes in opposition. They showed where they stand but they also found out where the majority of the senate stands.

WHY NOT CONNECTICUT?

At the meeting of agricultural organizations at Worcester there were reports concerning conditions in our neighboring state and considerable attention was given to the fruit growing session, at which it was predicted by H. W. Yount, who has just made a survey of the apple industry of that state that in the next 15 years there will be a doubling of the apple production in Massachusetts. This he attributes to the fact that 65 per cent. of all the trees in the state have been set out in the last five years and are, therefore in condition to bring the predicted increase in a decade and a half.

This looks very much as if Massachusetts had been giving heed to the opportunity for taking care of the home consumption of apples from its own orchards. The setting out of the many trees in the last five years indicates proper preparation. It is to be presumed that they are getting the attention that they deserve in order to obtain the best possible yield.

But how does Connecticut compare in this respect with the state to the north? We are not as large a state as Massachusetts but there is no reason why Connecticut should not be interested in doubling its production of apples, in view of the great number that are brought in from other states every year.

Increased production has been urged and certain evidences of moves in that direction have been noted, but there is the interesting example which Massachusetts fruit growers have set and which should prove an added spur to those in Connecticut who have the land and the disposition.

REGULATING RADIO

Radio has spread like wildfire. It has a great number of devotees and there are many broadcasting stations. Though the number of both is large they are increasing steadily. There are, however, certain restrictions concerning the broadcasting which must be complied with but as yet those are simply agreed to as a matter of regulation. Their necessity has long since been recognized and the time has now come when it is believed that there should be legislation that would provide for what has hitherto been done through voluntary agreement.

Thus when the White bill is presented to congress and gets the support of Secretary Hoover, it does not necessarily mean that it is perfect or the only one of its kind that might be devised, but it gives recognition to the fact that conditions have gotten to the point of demanding something of the kind and that no further delay should be made in meeting the situation.

This method of communication is of such a character that it is inevitable that it must come under federal regulation and control. When Mr. Hoover says that chaos is the alternative no one is going to undertake to claim otherwise. With the provisions of the White bill put into effect, providing as it does for a commission in the commerce department with authority to decide about licenses, wave allotments and adjust disputes, subject to appeals to the courts, there is nothing aimed at but what is desirable and necessary. Such regulation is going to be much easier now than a few years from now.

THE WRECKING CREW.

"Want to row across the lake, sis?" asked Miss Belinda's brother, who had just come from the city. "I thought I'd pull over and have a private confab with Bellingham about enlarging the golf course. You know we really should have another nine holes."

"Oh, Ben, speaking of golf, you know that dozen English balls somebody sent you from London? Well, I'm afraid they're all gone but one."

"Gone? Given away?"

"Of course not, Ben. How could you think such a thing for a moment? You see, Jane Gillmore was here yesterday. Ted was going to Madison on business and he brought her and the little girls to stay with me during the afternoon."

"You don't mean to say that you let those children play with my golf balls?" Ben glared at Miss Belinda.

"Of course not. I didn't have to give them anything to play with. They helped themselves. I have never seen such enterprising youngsters as Gwendolyn, Genevra and Geraldine. I found them throwing the balls into the lake. I arrived just in time to rescue one. Maybe you can find some of them, though I'm afraid they're all buried in the weeds, for they were thrown from the bank above the weed bed. But you might try to rake some of them out."

Ben's only answer was a grimace.

"It won't be possible to row over to Mr. Bellingham's, Ben," she remarked. "I'm awfully sorry, for it's a wonderful morning to be on the water."

"What's the matter? Have to work in the garden?"

"I always have to work in the garden." Miss Belinda smiled, "and particularly this morning. There's been a catastrophe there, but——"

"Were the little cherubs busy there?" interrupted Ben.

"Yes, you see they asked Tim what was in the big burlap bag and he told them that it was something to make plants grow, so when he wasn't looking they simply buried my pansy bed in that strong commercial fertilizer. When I was in the garden before breakfast I found that all my beautiful pansies had succumbed to that terrible overdose. I think I'll have to dig every one of them up."

"Well, you don't have to do it this morning, do you?" grumbled Ben. "Why can't you row over to the Bellinghams' with me?"

"Because, oh, Ben, I just hate to tell you, the oars are missing. Tim is out in the old flat boat now searching the lake shore for them."

"What, my nice spoon oars? Did those imps throw the oars in the lake, too?"

"Yes, you see, as you had left the boat padlocked, I thought it safe to let them play in it, and you can imagine my annoyance when I found that they had set all four oars, both pairs, adrift, but I'm sure that Tim will find them or they will be returned to us."

"Well, I certainly hope so, Belinda. What was their mother doing all the time? Why doesn't she train them?" inquired the exasperated Ben. "I don't see what Jane Gillmore is thinking of to be raising such little hoodlums."

"Poor Jane was so tired that I had her take a nap. She is just about worn out, with the constant care of those little children. She hasn't any mother or sister or aunt or anybody to give her a vacation and she does need a good rest, and you know, Ben, that I've been thinking that I should like to——"

"My word, Belinda, don't tell me that you are actually thinking of inviting that wrecking crew here. You must be crazy!"

"But, Ben, it would do Jane a world of good to be away from them for two weeks, and I firmly believe that I could train them a lot in that time, besides giving them a happy visit. Would you mind so very much? I'd try not to let them disturb you."

"They won't disturb me much, Belinda, for whatever time you have them here will be just the time that I'm going north for a two-week fishing trip. But, my dear, I wonder if in working in your garden, so continually you haven't been touched by the sun. I've heard that it does affect the brain sometimes."—Exchange.

Stories That Recall Others

Strong For Banks

The boss asked one of his men to patch a $20 bill. It looked as if it had spent several days in company with a playful dog and several were curious to know how it happened. Several made such suggestions as might come to most anyone's mind.

"Well, boys," said the boss, "since you're curious, I'll be game and tell you about it. I had several 20's in my pocket Monday night and thinking burglars might choose me I decided to hide them. I decided on my right shoe as the proper place. The next morning I pulled out the money, or thought I did, and came to the office. My shoe felt too tight all day and toward evening I loosened the strings a bit. Later, again uncomfortable, I investigated and discovered the 20 in my shoe in its present condition."

The bill was mended and now the boss of that office is a rooter for the nearest bank.

Ain't or Isn't

Billy, three years old, has a fondness for popular songs, including "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More."

A few days ago Billy approached his mother, a troubled expression revealing that something difficult was parading through his juvenile mind.

"Mother," he said, "there's something I don't understand. You tell me to say isn't and not ain't, yet you don't care when I say, 'It Ain't Gonna Rain No More'."

And mother isn't or ain't through explaining yet.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Duke of Norfolk, who is about to visit the United States and Canada in company with his mother and eldest sister, has been called the luckiest youth in England. At the age of 16, he is the premier duke and the premier earl of that country and the possessor of an estate which brings him an annual revenue of $1,500,000. He is the owner of 68,000 acres of land in England and is one of London's greatest landlords. Among his magnificent estates are Arundel Castle, in Sussex; Derwent Hall, Derbyshire, and Beach Hill, Sheffield. The young Duke was the first of his line to be born at the beautiful Arundel Castle. This estate has the odd distinction of ennobling any person who may hold it. If it were sold, for instance, it would make whoever held it a nobleman. The present Duke succeeded to his titles and estates in 1917 upon the death of his father, the 15th Duke of Norfolk, who was known as the foremost Catholic of [illegible]

From Small Beginnings

Stonewall Jackson, a Great General

History lingers most lovingly over the names of those few great men who have lived whole-heartedly, making conscience their guide, and absolute devotion their inspiration. For this reason the Memorial Hall at Lexington, Va., stands as a tribute to "Stonewall" Jackson, one of the most noble soldiers who ever served in America.

Like so many other great men in all parts of the world, and in all centuries, "Stonewall" Jackson was born "with luck all against him." When he was only a little child, both his father and mother died and he was left a mere waif, as it were, to get along as best he could. When he grew a little older he had no good schools to attend, and apparently little to which he could look forward.

Even in these days there was evident the same spirit that he displayed later at Bull Run. He learned that boys might go to the United States Military Academy and he set about finding how. He made, as it were, a military campaign, studied hard, prepared himself as he could, interviewed men, created an impression in his favor and won the appointment.

At the academy he found himself thrown in with young men who had far superior opportunities. The young man named "the farmer" was a real man—serious, industrious, able, and one who looked others straight in the eye.

Then came the war with Mexico and the young officer went to the front.

After the battle of Chapultepec: among the promotions there were two that were notable—and both for bravery in action—one was Ulysses S. Grant; the other, Thomas J. Jackson! Then came a time of peace and for some ten years Thomas Jackson taught in the military school at Lexington, Va., the place where he is now buried. Then came the Civil war, Jackson's experience, ability and character gave him a high command. He filled his men with his own determination and devotion, and at Bull Run he stood and earned the name of "Stonewall." As the war went on he developed high powers of leadership, making numerous blunders, but always guided by a supreme devotion, and he became one man on whom Robert E. Lee based the highest hopes. When Jackson hit, he hit hard. He was as daring as he was original.

Through constant drill he made his men into iron. He was a deeply religious man, perhaps the most religious of all American generals, and he fought as though he were acting under a divine command. If he had lived, he might have done a vast service for the confederacy. Unfortunately, in the dim light after the battle of Chancellorsville, he and his staff were fired upon by his own forces, and he fell, wounded to the death. He was then only 39 years of age. It is the glory of America that it has produced from the ranks of the poor and the unfortunate such leaders of the world's chivalry.

ANOTHER TOTAL ECLIPSE OF SUN JANUARY 14

The total eclipse of the sun last January presented to thousands of us the opportunity of witnessing a spectacle whose awe-inspiring splendor we shall never forget. Darkness creeping over the snow; weird, flickering shadows that appeared from nowhere; the dazzling sun gradually obscured until at a breathless moment the greenish gold corona leaped from the rim—these are memories of a lifetime.

On Jan. 14 next, early in the morning, the tremendous scene of a total solar eclipse is to be repeated, but this time for a select group of scientists who await it in the jungles of far-off Sumatra and Borneo.

From all parts of the world these scientists now are gathering in Sumatra, Dutch East Indies, and Borneo, where the eclipse's path is widest, and where totality will last three minutes and 10 seconds. Dr. Heber D. Curtis, of the Allegheny Observatory, and Prof. John A. Miller, director of the Sproul observatory at Swarthmore college, set out last September on their journey half around the world to witness the event. Prof. R. T. Stetson of Harvard and Dr. J. A. Anderson of Mt. Wilson Observatory also went from America.

Thousands of dollars have been spent in the transportation and setting up of scientific equipment, all on a gamble, for always there is the possibility that clouds will intervene and make all the preparations valueless.

Starting at dawn, local mean time, the path of the eclipse shadow will range from a point in Central Africa, south of the Sudan and north of Lake Victoria, along the equator, across the Indian Ocean to south Sumatra, thence to Borneo and Mindanao in the Philippine Islands. Radio will keep you informed of its progress as it sweeps over these distant regions at a cannon-ball speed of 1,385 miles an hour. The total eclipse is due to arrive in Sumatra at approximately 2:25, local mean time. There the shadow of the moon will have a width of 39 miles. The eclipse will last two hours and two minutes.

In this brief flash of time, while the moon passes between earth and sun, plotting the latter from view, says Popular Science Monthly, the scientists will attempt to add a few more details

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

ST. MORITZ

While winter vacationists in America are fleeing from snow and ice to Florida and California, Europe is making a general exodus to white-clad fairylands among the snows of the Alps, the Pyrenees and the Scandinavian Peninsula. Heavy garments are being packed and skis, skates and toboggans are being made ready for the sports carnivals that begin this month.

"St. Moritz, oldest and most famous of Europe's wintersports centers, is posing the season with a series of hockey matches, to be followed in January by the European ski jumping championship," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"One must look closely on the map of Switzerland to find St. Moritz. It is another of those places whose fame has far out-distanced its growth in population. If your map is large enough, however, you will discover it in the eastern part of Switzerland, far down near Bernia, Mass., one of the gateways into Italy. Most of the year it is a quiet little village of fewer than 3,000 persons. Its altitude, more than a mile above sea level, helps to make its climate severe. Frosts in summer are not unknown. In fact, the natives have a couplet describing the climate of St. Moritz as, "nine months of winter and three months of cold."

"Low temperatures of course, do not interfere with winter sports, nor are they ever so extreme as to drive away those seeking 'air cures.' Mineral springs have given St. Moritz more or less of a year-round vogue as a health resort, but its uniform winter weather, with dry, cold, bright days and almost no thaws, has attracted to its rinks and sled-runs champions and enthusiasts of winter sports from all over the world. In winter its population is more than doubled, while the neighboring villages of Celerina, Campfer and Pontresina benefit by the overflow.

"St. Moritz Dorf, or Village, nestles in a sunny, well sheltered nook on the north bank of St. Moritz Lake, a widening of the River Inn. The mountains protect it from severe winds. With the adjacent village of St. Moritz Bad, of Bath, St. Moritz forms the largest community in the Upper Engadine district. The little groups of hotels and chalets, with tall church spires watching over them, have a pleasing aspect when seen from the many paths winding up the mountainsides. In back of every picture, too, are the serrated peaks of the Bernina Alps, the bare rocks of precipices and the blue-stained surfaces of glaciers standing out sharply against their white winter mantel.

"In addition to catering to the tourist and invalid trade, the natives produce in their home shops fine wood carvings, furniture, embroidery, pottery and pictures. The wood of the stone pine, which grows in great profusion around the shores of the little lake, is especially suitable for carvings. American tourists are among the chief purchasers of the latter, perhaps because it is one of the few things on which there is no duty.

"'Before the days of the airplane and the automobile St. Morits offered the world's fastest ride. Its famous Cresta Toboggan Run, which drops nearly 500 feet in three-quarters of a mile, has been traversed in 58.7 seconds, at speeds touching more than 70 miles an hour. It is still largely a track for experts, but there are other runs where beginners can find excitement aplenty while learning the fine points of the art. Although practically the same course has been used on the Cresta Run for the last 40 years, those who have experienced season after season, the breathless thrill of flying down its ice-surfaced, snow-banked course that 'age cannot wither, nor custom stale the infinite variety' of its excitations.

"There are other outdoor sports of many kinds—ski jumping from dizzy heights; ski-kjoring on the lake, when jockies ride on skies behind their horses; hockey; ice skating; hiking; curling matches; and tailing parties, where long strings of sleds and skiers are hitched to horse teams and go riding all over the landscape, cheering and shouting. The latter presents one of the most colorful sights of the resort.

"In the crisp, bracing air, and amid strenuous sports the day passes quickly. As the setting sun reaches the saw-edged horizon the mountain tops are transformed from dazzling white to a thousand shades of prismatic glory. From the depths of the valley the blue shadows creep slowly up, until they finally engulf each rosy-capped peak. Tired but merry groups of pleasure seekers make their way to their hotels and hostelries, guided by the clear, cold light of the stars and the yellow shafts the windows send sparkling over the frozen surface of the snow."

FORMER KAISER URGES AS SLOGAN "AWAY FROM JUDAISM"

BERLIN, Jan. 7—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—The former kaiser has contributed an article to a book published today. "The opposition of the German movement to Judaism and Christianity," in which he urges Germans to break away from the belief that Jehovah, the god of the Jews, is our God."

"Christ never used the word Jehovah," Wilhelm writes. He contends Isaiah shows that the Christian idea of God came from Persia, the Jews having come under the influence of the Monotheism of Zarathustra during the Babylonian captivity. He declares it is the Aryan religion of Zarathustra, and not Judaism, that is the real forerunner of Christianity.

"Our slogan must be 'Away from Judaism, with its Jehovah,'" he writes.

FRANCE MAY MAKE DEMANDS ON HUNGARY

PARIS, Jan. 7—(AP)—Usually well informed bourse circles aver that the French government has demanded from Hungary two hundred million gold francs indemnity in the notorious franc counterfeiting case. This, however, is officially denied.

M. Clinchant the French minister to Hungary, arrived in Paris this evening and conferred lengthily with M. Berthelot at the foreign office, while the chief police inspector, Benoit, returned from Milan and reported to the ministry of the interior. Absolute silence is being maintained.

FEAR NEW REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT IN MEXICO

JUAREZ, Mexico, Jan. 7—(AP)—Concentration of federal troops on the international boundary is in progress because of reports of a new revolutionary movement, Marcos Flores, defacto mayor of Juarez said today.

"There are reports of a revolutionary movement," Flores said, "and the troops are being sent to the border to prevent the crossing of revolutionists from the United States. We do not know whether Adolfo de la Huerta is behind the movement."

One company of men is drilling in Juarez with the expectancy of entering the army

Watch Out for Pneumonia During the Coal Scarcity

Statistics show that the number of fatal pneumonia cases during a period of fuel scarcity are greater by fifty per cent. When the temperature of the body falls below normal then the resistance to disease is proportionately weakened, thereby endangering life and health.

Pneumonia usually develops from a severe cold and cough which cause congestion of the air passages. Your natural immunity or resisting power is broken down.

Don't discount the seriousness of a cough or cold, thinking and hoping Nature will cure them. Get a bottle of

NEW WOMAN LEGISLATOR SEES SEX AS GODD FAMILY LEADERS

UCUM, Ky., Jan. 7.—(AP)—In many cases women are better qualified to be the head of the family than the men, is the attitude of Mrs. H. G. Jorris, Kentucky's only legislator-elect.

When the General Assembly convenes January 5, she will be the second woman ever to sit in Kentucky's law making body of 138 members. She will represent two counties in the house.

Asked what a woman's idea of proper legislation was, she reported her stand as "very masculine." She saw no reason why a woman's idea should not be identical with those of men.

"The time is now here and has been for some years, when women are placed upon an equal footing, with men when it comes to the question of making a support for themselves or families.

"In fact, in many cases the women are better qualified to be the head of the family than the men. There is only a very small sentiment of the old Kentucky chivalry in the minds of the people today and this condition prevails throughout the entire country."

Mrs. Jorris, woman farmer, supported eight brothers and sisters when her parents died while she was young. Since Mr. Porris' death in 1920, she has stayed on the farm here in Russel county with her three young boys.

She believes legal restrictions should be removed to place women "absolutely upon a par with men in every respect as to their personal liberties and proprety rights."

She will fight for legislation as to woman's ownership of real estate and the right to dispose of it at will.

Mrs. Jorris is not unduly militant for her sex, for she says:

"I would think that any other legislation that would be for any special reason best for women would be class legislation and would really be unconstitutional as I have always thought some of the present laws are."

She is 53, farmer, Presbyterian, republican, and W. C. T. U. member.

VILLAIN FINDS NO SYMPATHY FROM ARABIAN MOVIE FANS

TLEMCEN, Algeria, Jan. 7. (AP)—The natives of Tlemcen are great movie fans, but they make such a noise that the orchestra and the white audience have to sit upstairs.

As few of the Arabs can read, the title of the film when flashed on the screen is received in silence; but as soon as the first picture is shown there is a yell. All the Arabs in the audience talk at once and keep up a continuous comment of what they see.

The antics of Europeans in the comic films meet with a hilarious success unheard elsewhere. In the tragic films, the villain is reviled with loud imprecations, and when at the end virtue is suitably rewarded, yells of delight mark the appreciation of the Arab audience.

In the city court on Thursday morning, the charge of violation of the motor vehicle law was nolled against John Cubanski of Ledyard, upon recommendation of City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins. Cubanski was alleged to have driven away after striking another automobile on Lodge Hill near Talman street. It was ascertained by the city attorney that Cubanski's machine skidded while coming down Laurel Hill and slid into the other machine. Cubanski stopped and tried to learn what damage had been done.

Under the present wage schedule this class of workers received $49.50 a week, whereas under the proposed schedule the weekly wage would be $50. In effect, however, with the shorter working hours considered, the chane would mean an added expense to employers of slightly over 10 per cent.

STAGE HAND HAS A NOTED COLLECTION OF PLAYBILLS

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—(AP)—For two years an English plasterer carried around in his pocket an oddly-inscribed little book given him as a curio. One day he showed it to the librarian of the British Museum and learned the volume was a rare "shorthand" Bible, engraved in phonetics in 1686.

Today the plasterer, still following that trade, is a bibliophile known the world over and possessor of a great collection of theatrical and operatic playbills. He knows books, and the stage.

The playbills are part of an intimate history of the legitimate stage which dates back as far as the early part of the Seventeenth Century. But is most complete and valuable in its record of American drama and opera, in his modest Chicago home, Thomas Conolly has the bills which advertised the first plays and players in the United States. Down through the '60s are represented the plays, press clippings, portraits of the more prominent of the actor folk, their signatures and bits of personal writings.

Here are glimpses of Edwin Booth, Edwin Forrest, Mrs. Lotta Crabtree, Joe Jefferson, the Southerns, and their contemporaries which are not revealed in the chronicles of the stage. There are yellowing reminders of old Madison Square Garden and the Niblo Gardens in New York; McVicker's, Hooley's and the old Haymarket theaters, in Chicago, and dozens of playhouses that are now history.

Conolly, already interested in the history of drama through his collection of rare books, came to Chicago to help decorate the new Auditorium in 1889, and has been with the Auditorium ever since. He has the programme for its opening night, when the Italian Opera company, with Mme. Patti, sang "Romeo and Juliet," on Dec. 10, 1889.

Many of the famous characters of the stage are his personal friends. For them he seeks old programmes of their first nights and each Christmas sends them little mementos of the profession and players who have long since answered their last curtain call. Of late years he has kept an autograph book, now bearing the signatures of Robert Mantell, E. H. and Julia Marlowe Southern, Eddie Foy, Lilly Langtry, Enrico Caruso, Paderewski, Ellen Terry, Squire Bancroft, Sarah Bernhardt, David Belasco and scores of others.

The collection of playbills, librettos and programmes was gathered from all over the world, in the file with programmes at Madison Square Garden are bills from Brighton and Covent Gardens and Drury Lane, in London, that date back as far as 1794. There is a first edition of Phineas Fletcher's "Sicelides, a Piscatory," a drama in verse printed in 1631.

Those early editions, early copies of theatrical journals and the bills are worth more, in cold cash, with each passing year, yet Tom Conolly, picking over musty bargain shelves in out-of-the way bookstores here and abroad, bought them with the pocket change of a plasterer.

Included in the collection are many specimens from limited editions of old books; the original signature book of London's famous Lambs club; two copies of the "Breeches Bible," a copy of the "She Bible" and one of the "Murderer's Bible," of 1795; an old Russian Bible and one in Italian, the records of the Athenian Society in London, in 1690; dozens of perfect copies of the suppressed political and social satires of Great Britain and a rare copy of Charles Dickens' "Sunday Under Three Heads."

His stamp collection includes with rare foreign stamps, the postage of the Colonial villages before there was a national mail service and the pony-express stamps of later days, many on letters addressed to Abraham Lincoln and with notations in his hand.

Eventually, the treasures will probably go to historical societies.

FORGOTTEN FLEET OF YACHTS IS RESTING IN TEBO BASIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—At the foot of Twenty-third street, Brooklyn, shrouded by protective sheds that conceal the trimness of their decks, rests a forgotten fleet for years unmoved save by the lapping of the quiet waters of Tebo basin.

Doomed by the march of engineering which has made the motor rather than the steam engine most common in newer craft, this silent armada includes the famous yachts of men who were America's wealthiest in the early days of the twentieth century. In the number are many craft which as patrol boats saw service in the World war.

Among the more famous of the fleet is the Aphrodite, owned by Payne Whitney. The Aphrodite was in patrol service in 1918, but for nearly seven years now has laid at dock. The Nealra, owned by Charles A. Gould has been in the basin for nine years. The Elreba, owned by Henry Darlington, Jr., has been there for seven years and the Flying Fox, owned by Dr John A. Harriss, has been in the yard for three years. The Hirondelle, once the palatial boat of the prince of Monaco, later the property of a film company, the last two years has stood unmoving against her piers.

Built mainly between 1893 and 1909, these craft, which it appears have outlived their usefulness, would cost an average of nearly $1,000,000 each if built today, yacht builders say. Most of them are steam yachts and the rapid advancement of marine engineering has seen the old steam eighe replaced by the Diesel and other motor engines.

Port authorities say, however, that the principal cause of the abandonment of so many of the vessels is the cost of manning and operating the sturdy but cumbersome crafts built a generation ago.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN A MOVIE PRODUCER'S WORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The life of a movie producer is chocked full of hard work, but by admission is one of the most interesting in the world.

He spends millions of dollars in carrying out an annual production program. He reads and sees all the best plays and many of the bad ones. He thinks nothing of ordering a company "on location" in Europe, Alaska, Porto Rico, or the Sahara. Actors, authors playwrights, poets, artists, models directors, statesmen, royalty and financiers are to be found among his acquaintances.

Take Jesse L. Lasky. When he comes to his office in the morning, on his desk is a long summary of telegrams and cablegrams from the world over. A story has been purchased especially for a star. A director has been selected. The producing department has obtained actors of the supporting parts. Locations have been designated. In fact, everything virtually is ready for actual work to begin.

But here is a telegram to the effect that the star does not like the role, neither does she care for the story, and is in tears over the prospect of having to do it.

"One of the necessities of good work is happiness in doing it," said Mr Lasky. "If the star is an important one and advances good reasons for not doing the picture, the whole thing has to be postponed and another actor found or another scenario selected. I have to decide what is to be done."

There also is a cable from England, saying the company's option is about to expire on a very important literary work. Another message from a company on location gives the news that rain has so delayed work as to send expenses of the production far above the budget. Should the scenario be recast, omitting the scenes in question, or should the company remain a few days longer in the hope of improved weather?

The telephone rings and a playwright tells him that the big Broadway success on which he had bid $50,000 and had virtually closed the deal, has attracted a better offer from another producing company. Will Mr. Lasky raise the ante?

In walks his secretary with word that a niece of a cabinet member has presented a letter of introduction. She is beautiful and wants to get into the movies. Or it may be a French or Russian man or woman of title with the same ambition.

Ordinarily, an aide would handle applicants, but owing to the importance of the introduction, Mr. Lasky sees the person. He then is late to an engagement with one of his favorite stars, or is past due at the projection room where a new photoplay awaits his criticism.

Luncheon, and sometimes dinner, is devoted to a business conference with officials of the company, playwrights authors and actors. There are many to be sent to Europe to obtain material for a big production. Reports on productions already being exhibited must be read and occasionally changes are to be made.

A man who has spent months in the African jungles has completed a picture which the company may desire. Another photographer wants to go to the Arctic to make a film. Thomas Meighan may want a vacation. Another star may ask a raise in salary.

These—and a thousand other questions—the producer must decide, not a small one being the various legal affairs.

New Model of Spats for Men

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Arbiters of men's fashion, spurred by the popularity of Russian boots for women, have designed new spats for men. There are made of rubber in varying shades, and besides being easy to clean, are claimed to be more close fitting to the ankles and shoes than the present cloth spats.

Raymond Lee of Allston, proprietor of a filling station at Wakefield, Mass., and his assistant, Arthur Burwen of Wakefield, were reported to be dying at the Melrose hospital after an oil heater which they were attempting to light in the filling station blew up and showered them with flaming oil.

AMERICAN WOOLEN WILL NOT HURRY OPENINGS

While sample lines have in some instances been entirely prepared, there is no disposition to hurry price making on men's wear heavyweights or to encourage early openings. What the American Woolen company, with mills in Norwich and Moosup, will do in selection of a date for its opening will govern the market, but the general belief is that the company is not likely to make its showing earlier than the last week of this month. Overcoatings and woolen and staple suitings will probably be the first goods to be offered, with fancy worsteds generally shown early in February. Little, that is new has recently come out regarding price levels. Because of being quoted at the peak of wool prices last year, overcoatings and other woolens are believed likely to show a drop of about 7 to 10 per cent, as compared with last fall. The reduction made on worsteds for the lightweight season has discounted any substantial change in them and, allowing for difference in weight, it is not believed that the price lowering of them will be marked.

JEWETT CITY PROS BEAT NEW LONDON TEAM IN FAST ENCOUNTER, 24 TO 16

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 7.—The Jewett City Pros took a fast game from the New London Stars here tonight by the score of 24 to 16. The locals played a brilliant pass game and the defensive work was a big factor in the defeat of the visitors. New London brought up a fast team but the Whalers were unable to get loose many times and practically all their baskets were made from shots from difficult angles.

Bub Benjamin and Mondi Normandin played well together in the forward line, and their teamwork gave Benjamin a chance to break loose at times when a basket was needed. Barry and Blake played well in the guard positions and kept their men covered throughout the game, their men scoring only seven points during the game.

For New London Griffin proved to be the star getting 2 baskets and dropping 3 single counters from the foul line.

The preliminary game between the Taftville Celtics and the Jewett City Seconds furnished plenty of thrills and at the final whistle the score stood at 29 all. In the five minute overtime period the Celtics scored three baskets, while the best the locals could do was to drop in one basket, the final score being Celtics 35, Jewett City Seconds 31. NUTMEGS TO PLAY NORDICS THIS EVENING

This Friday evening at the Armory the Nutmeg basketball team will clash with the fast Nordics five of Taftville in what should be an interesting encounter from start to finish. REGATTA AT POUGHKEEPSIE TO BE OVER 4-MILE COURSE

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The four-mile course for the varsity rowing classic in the annual Poughkeepsie regatta, restored last year for the first time since 1916 after a series of disagreements over the distance, seems likely to become a fixture again.

Retention of the longer distance is at least assured for the 1926 regatta is shown by an inquiry made by the Associated Press among representatives of the four colleges composing the Intercollegiate Rowing association—Columbia, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Syracuse—and all indications point to a long-term agreement on the subject.

The formal decision, so far as this year's regatta is concerned, will be made at the annual meeting of the board of stewards of the association here within the next week or two. Unless there is an unexpected change of opinion, the verdict on the four-mile course will be unanimous.

The effects of last June's four-mile race, won by the Naval Academy in a stirring battle with the two-time champions from the University of Washington, were so favorable that they have wiped away most if not all of the objections to the longer pull, in the opinion of Maxwell Stevenson, Columbia's representative and chairman of the board of stewards. The event demonstrated, Mr. Stevenson believes, that four miles not only is a much better test of skill and stamina than the old three mile race, but convinced observers that it worked no additional hardship on the oarsmen.

BABE RUTH FAST GETTING INTO GOOD CONDITION

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Asserting he has reached the best physical condition of his career at 215 pounds, Babe Ruth today said he proposed to carry his training campaign from a New York gymnasium to the golf links of Florida next month in his effort to regain the home run hitting honors he lost last season to Rogers Hornsby of the St Louis Cardinals.

Four weeks of intensive exercising here have not only reduced the waistline of the Yankee slugger seven inches, but have made him one of the most skillful handball players at the gymnasium.

Ruth said he would continue indoor exercises until the end of the month, when he expects to leave for St. Petersburg, Fla. On the links of the southern city, Babe said he expected to play at least thirty six holes of golf a day until the Yankee squad arrives for spring training.

"There is no good reason why I can't get back my old form," he continued. "I am only thirty-one. My eyesight is clear and I've fully regained my former strength and vigor."

Although optimistic over his own outlook, Ruth was not sanguine regarding the prospects of the Yankees to regain their former high place in the American circuit.

NATIONAL INDOOR TENNIS TOURNEY TO BE HELD IN MAR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(AP)—A tentative change in the date of the national indoor tennis championships from the last week in March to the week of February 15, to avoid conflict with outstanding southern tournaments have been made by the United States Lawn Tennis association, it was revealed today.

Further change in the date would be made only to fix the event at a period convenient for an anticipated invasion of French players, headed by the present champion, Jean Borotra, the association announced.

After his victory in the indoor tournament last year, Borotra said he would make every effort to encourage France to send a team of several players here this winter. Such an invasion would add unequal international color to the event, particularly as William T. Tilden, national singles champion, and Vincent Richards, Olympic title holder, already have signified their intention to compete.

AGGIE QUINTET PLAYS FIRST GAME TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Jan. 7—Connecticut Aggie basketball gets underway tomorrow night, when Coach Dole's five meets the Norwich university quintet on the home court. It will be the first game of the season for the State college quintet, which has put in an intensive preliminary drill for four weeks.

With four lettermen in the starting lineup, Dole will have a veteran team to stack against the Vermonters. In Captain Makofski at center, and Schofield at forward, the Aggies have a pair of sharpshooters who will give Norwich no small amount of trouble. It is expected that they will bear the brunt of the Connecticut attack, as last year, when their work won them places on the All-New England basketball team.

Norwich has the jump on Connecticut, having played four games already this season. Their record to date is anything but impressive, however, contests being dropped to Williams, Trinity, Fordham and Savage school. Tonight the Vermonters play Massachusetts Aggies at Amherst, and unless the dope gets a complete upset, Norwich will lose its fifth straight game.

Connecticut put the finishing touches on its preparation for the Norwich game with a fast drill here this afternoon. Coach Dole expressed himself as being much pleased with the progress made by his team to date, and he expects it to put up a good game tomorrow night.

It was feared here that Schofield would be unable to participate in the early games, due to a bad knee injury sustained during the football season, but these fears have been dispelled. The All-New England forward reported for practice this week, and has displayed his old-time speed and form in every practice.

Lineup is as follows:

Norwich	Pos	Conn.
Plumley	lf.	Schofield
Bedell	rf.	Eddy
Molter	c.	(Capt.) Makofski
Hourin	lg.	Allard
Aimi	rg.	Bitgood

Referee: Tom Shea, Springfield. Game called at 8 p. m.

NAVY SERIOUSLY CONSIDERING BID OF CHICAGO FOR ARMY-NAVY GAME

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Chicago's claims for the annual Army-Navy football game next November, in its new $8,000,000 stadium, were presented to officers of the naval academy and the navy department today by Representative Britten of Illinois and then taken under advisement with indications that a decision would not long be delayed.

Rear Admiral L. M. Nulton, superintendent, and athletic officers of the academy returned to Annapolis tonight to discuss the matter with the Academy Athletic association before making recommendations to Secretary Wilbur. The superintendent of the military academy as well as the secretary of war also probably will be consulted before the invitation is definitely accepted or rejected.

The Chicago offer was described as attractive, but it was pointed out that holding the game there might prove a great inconvenience to naval officers on the east coast who usually attend the annual classic. Another question raised was the problem also of transporting the midshipmen and cadets from their academies to Chicago for an absence of several days, involving not only unusually heavy expenses but considerations of discipline.

Because of all these problems, it was decided to refer the matter to the secretary of the navy and probably the superintendent of the military academy and the secretary of war, instead of leaving the decision to the athletic association of one academy or the other, the usual procedure.

This year, the naval academy is the "home team," and its association normally would determine the city in which to play the game, which customarily is held within the Baltimore-New York area.

Despite these obstacles, there was apparently a strong disposition to consider the invitation of Chicago most seriously and to regard its offer as decidedly favorable. Under the proposition, Chicago would give each academy 40,000 tickets and then buy them back at regular prices 10,000 from each for sale in the middle west.

Chemists Not at Ypres

Resolutions passed by the American Chemical Society in convention at Los Angeles condemn the action of the Geneva conference in placing a ban on chemical warfare; in barring poison gas from the conflicts of the future. In this action, and a similar trend of thought in America, the sturdy chemists see an effort of the pacifists to weaken the defenses of the nation and turn war back again to the brutal business of bullet and bayonet. In brief, an abandonment of humane methods of warfare.

But there were few chemists in that shattered Canadian line at Ypres, that gasped and groveled and died miserably, when Germans first loosed the lethal fumes to add to the agony of war. And there are walking wrecks today, gray-haired husks of the men who were, before they breathed the poison that let them live, unhappy invalids. These are part of the pictures the chemists should scan before they prate of humane methods.

But there are other phases of this panorama of poison; pictures still unpainted in the ghastly studio of war, and yet so possible that the mind's eye may see them clearly. This stinking weapon they champion lends itself to warfare on populations, as well as armies. In it is the threat of whole cities devastated, whole countrysides made sterile and lifeless. There are possibilities that would have justified the action of the Geneva conference, even had there been no memories of Ypres, and the added horrors that had their genesis there.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

The Virgin Isles

The Virgin Islands in the Caribbean sea were purchased eight years ago from Denmark for $25,000,000. The purchase was made during the war to shut Germany out of a possible submarine base. But negotiations for the islands had gone on, intermittently for a half century. Secretary Seward first opened the question with Denmark at the close of the Civil war. Denmark agreed, the purchase was arranged and the king forbade farewell to his subjects; then Summer in the senate killed the ratification of the treaty. On another occasion negotiations proceeded to a final stage, only to be rejected by the Danish Parliament. The price amounted to about $300 an acre for land worth for peace time purposes possibly $20 an acre.

LIVERPOOL COTTON BROKERS NOT ALARMED

LIVERPOOL, England, Jan. 7—(AP)—Members of the Liverpool Cotton association showed little alarm today over the proposal made in congress yesterday by Representative McKeown, democrat of Oklahoma, for retaliation against the British rubber monopoly by increasing the price of American cotton abroad. Liverpool cotton men believe such a move would hurt America more than England.

"America needs to find a market for her surplus cotton," said a prominent member of the Cotton association today. "And if they put a prohibitive export duty on cotton their own farmers would have something to say, while they would defeat their own object by reducing the prices the farmers would receive in the domestic market. America is grumbling about the British government's interference with the production of rubber, but in effect America would be doing the same thing by such action."

Children's Colds
Best Treated Externally

CONSTANT dosing upsets little stomachs. Modern mothers prefer to treat children's colds externally with Vicks VapoRub. They simply rub it on the throat and chest at bedtime.

Vicks acts two ways at once

(1) Like the old-fashioned poultice in "drawing out" the soreness and pain; and, at the same time,

(2) Like a modern vapor lamp because the body heat releases the ingredients in the form of medicated vapors which are inhaled all night long. These loosen the phlegm and open the congested air passages.

Most colds yield by morning to this double direct action.

Mrs. Grouse and Jumper Compare Feet

You'll often find more ways than one To get the very same thing done. —Old Mother Nature.

Mrs. Grouse seemed very much pleased with the soft, deep snow. She was. In the first place it made her a warm blanket under which to sleep. At night she simply plunged into it and worked her way along the ground under it for a short distance. If Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote or Yowler the Bob Cat should happen to find the place where she went in they wouldn't know just where she then was, so their chances of catching her by jumping on her would be small. Reddy had just tried it and failed. Then Mrs. Grouse liked to walk about on the snow, for it made it easier for her to reach certain berries hanging on the bushes. You know she didn't sink in.

Jumper the Hare was another who didn't sink in. Peter Rabbit envied Jumper and he envied Mrs. Grouse. They were talking about the snow and what fun it was to be able to get about so easily while so many of their enemies were floundering about, and as Peter listened he grew more and more envious. "I suppose it is all because Mother Nature gave you big feet," said he.

"It isn't just big feet," replied Mrs. Grouse. "I don't think my feet are any bigger than they should be for one of my size to look well. It is what goes with those feet at this time of year. I am rather proud of my slender toes in summer. But look at them now."

Mrs. Grouse held out one foot. Along each side of each toe was growing a sort of fringe of horny points. When she put her foot down these filled in the space between the toes so as to give her snowshoes, as it were. Her toes were quite long and with these horny fringes along each she had what appeared at first glance to be big feet.

"Are your feet like that?" asked Peter of Jumper.

Jumper chuckled. "Hardly," said he. "I don't want any horny points between my toes. I should think they would be most uncomfortable. No, sir, give me hair every time."

Jumper held up one big hindfoot. It was big and the toes were long and spreading. The soles of his foot and his toes were completely covered with a thick coat of hair. He held up a fore foot. It was smaller, but it also was covered with hair, toes and all. Jumper also had snowshoes, but his were of hair.

"Are your feet like that?" asked Peter of Jumper.

"Fine!" exclaimed Mrs. Grouse. "But I don't want hair between my toes. Give me horny points every time.

Then both Jumper and Mrs. Grouse laughed and each made footprints in the snow to show how the same end was gained in quite different ways.

"It's nice to be satisfied," said Peter Rabbit wistfully. "I—I wish I had snowshoes. I do so."

"Just remember that you can squeeze into holes and hollow logs that I cannot get more than my head into, and so you can be safe when I must trust wholly to my legs," said Jumper.

Peter admitted that this was true and right away he felt better. "Isn't Old Mother Nature wonderful?" said he. "I mean, doesn't she do wonderful things? She has given both of you snowshoes and they are not a bit alike. And just because I haven't any I suppose I must stay here and go hungry until this snow packs down or gets a crust. I don't care which it does if it will only do it soon."

"I do," spoke up Mrs. Grouse. "I care. I don't want a crust. When there is a crust I can't go to bed under the snow and I do love to sleep under the snow. No, sir, I don't want a crust."

Peter began Twist, and stopped. Too late just then there was a sudden interruption.

WHY PHYSICIANS RECOMMEND SAN-GRI-NA TO FAT PEOPLE

FRENCH DISCOVERY IS ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS AND WORKS WONDERS

"If I had not carefully analyzed, tested and seen my own sister reduce and improve her health with SAN-GRI-NA" says Dr. McAlpine, "I would not be recommending it to my patients today."

Dr. Jacoby writes: "My wife has about finished the SAN-GRI-NA you sent her, and I wish you could see the wonderful change in her appearance. She never felt better in all her life."

"I have used SAN-GRI-NA for my wife," says Dr. Harris, "and now recommend it to my fat patients."

"I recommended SAN-GRI-NA to my mother," says Dr. Narbonne, "because I knew, after working at the formula for years, it was absolutely harmless to the health and positive in results. It is the only way I know of to a good figure and perfect health."

REDUCES 63 POUNDS

"I weighed 200 pounds," writes Mrs. M. D. Pasquale of Worcester, "and lost 63 pounds. . . . I would like to have another box of SAN-GRI-NA."

Up to now physicians have rarely advised anything to reduce outside of diets or exercises (both tiresome and inconvenient) because they knew of nothing HARMLESS and EFFECTIVE, but today, in recommending SAN-GRI-NA, a doctor feels that it is something with real merit, so entirely different from all the advertised fat reducers, that he does not hesitate to advise its use even to his own family. Prominent medical men, such as Dr. Rudolph, former Health Commissioner, endorse SAN-GRI-NA AS THE ONLY SAFE, positive and quick way to slenderness he knows of.

SAN-GRI-NA is the formula of a French physician. It is put up in a small, convenient tablet, to be taken three times a day. Although only recently introduced in America, SAN-GRI-NA is now recognized as the most effective treatment for fat people, because:

→ IT HAS REDUCED MOST OBSTINATE CASES OF OBESITY.
→ IT DOES AWAY WITH HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE, PUFFING, HEADACHE, TIRED FEELING, AND THE FAT MAN OR WOMAN WHO TAKES SAN-GRI-NA ONCE MORE ENJOYS LIFE.
→ IT IS ENTIRELY DIFFERENT FROM ANYTHING EVER OFFERED.
→ IT IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC: Beware of worthless imitations. SAN-GRI-NA is sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded. Go to your druggist today, be sure to ASK FOR AND GET SAN-GRI-NA.

Sold at all good drug or department stores or you can send direct to the Scientific Research Laboratories, 1841 Broadway, New York City.

On sale at Lee & Osgood's, Dunn's and Morgan's Drug Stores.

CREDIT.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

The rule is so general as to be practically universal that in this world you can never get something for nothing.

Most of us who have actually grown up are so assured of this that, whenever we have something offered to us "free," we instinctively look it all over to see where the string is fastened to it.

We have learned by invariable and disillusioning experience that we have to pay, sooner or later, in some coin or other, for everything we get from canned codfish to credit.

Take that last thing, credit, into your consideration for a few minutes. How much does credit cost you?

When you borrow a thousand dollars,—and it doesn't make any difference whether you are a man or a woman or a school district or a town or a state,—and give your note or bond to pay it in ten years with five per cent interest annually, it means that you're going to pay $1,500 in the end for the sake of getting your claws on $1,000 right now. That's plain enough, isn't it?

Whether it is worth while or not depends wholly on circumstances. There may arise unforseen and utterly inescapable emergencies in which the immediate possession of a thousand dollars is worth a good deal more than fifteen hundred dollars will be, later on. But such emergencies are rare. They seldom come to really thrifty men or communities, conducting their affairs with anything like intelligent foresight. As a usual thing such borrowing is unthrifty, wasteful extravagance, born of short-sighted mismanagement. It is the fine which folly pays as the price for being a fool.

But come down to a smaller and more personal phase of the subject. When you, Brother Farmer, buy $10 worth of goods at the general store in the village and tell the storekeeper to "charge it" how much do those two simple little words cost you?

If you'll stop long enough to think the thing through, you can't fail to see that, when you take the other man's goods and ask credit on them, it is practically the same as borrowing from him the money wherewith to pay. His money is in the goods. When you take the goods without exchanging the money due for them to him, you are just as much asking him to lend you the value involved as if you asked him for the actual cash. You wouldn't expect anyone to go into the business of lending money to Tom, Dick or Harry, without charging and collecting interest. When you ask him to lend you his merchandise till you are in condition to feel disposed to pay for it, he simply has to charge you interest on the advance. You'd be asking charity if you expected anything else. He would soon go into bankruptcy if he did anything else.

But how much does his charge for the loan, i. e. the credit amount to in the case of your $10 buy? That's the question we started out to find an answer to.

If we relied wholly upon our own efforts and our own detective work, I suspect it would be a long time before we found out. But a professor in the New York College of Agriculture has recently collected the figures from 140 stores dealing mainly with farmers, in various parts of that state. That's not enough to make the results infallibly accurate, but quite enough to establish a reasonable and approximate average. He found that, in these 140 retail stores, the cost to the stores of the credit by them averaged a trifle over 11.5 per cent.

That is, it cost them eleven and a half cents on every dollar of your bill to "carry" you till you got good and ready to pay. You are certainly not simple enough to suppose that they bore this expense out of their own tills. That isn't what they're in business for. While they none of them made any specific charge for interest on the credit you demanded, they collected it, nevertheless. It was included in the bill for the goods, every time. You paid at least 11.5 per cent more for your purchase, eventually than you would have needed to do had you and every other customer paid cast down. In the case of your $10 buy this amounted to $1.15. The storekeeper could have afforded to sell you that bill of goods for $10 minus $1.15, i. e. $8.85, if you and all his other customers paid him cash. His profit on the goods would have been just the same at $8.85 cash, as it was at $10 credit.

As for you, you could actually have saved money by borrowing the $10 from the bank at six per cent.—if you really had to borrow and couldn't help yourself.

Mrs. Partington, trying to sweep an Atlantic tide out of her sea-coast kitchen with a common broom, was engaged in no more futile undertaking than any one who, in this year of grace, — and disgrace, — attempts to stem the on-sweep of credit. Almost the first thing which the neophyte in commerce or finance is taught is that "all business is built on credit." This is drilled into him till it becomes an integral and essential part of his daily life. He thinks and dreams credit; he may almost be said to eat and drink it. Anyway and always he breathes an atmosphere surcharged with it.

But the fact that a thing is popularly accepted at any certain value is far from conclusive proof that such is its real value. The Great God, Business, is really no more sacrosanct because his edicts are obeyed in Europe and America, than Kipling's Great God, Buddah, whose commands are held supreme in India and Thibet and other parts of the east. The fact that a practice is common is not assurance that it is right. In truth, considering the crass stupidity and unworthy selfishness of the human race, as a whole, the very prevalence of a practice should waken doubts as to its rightness.

Therefore, you and I needn't be scared of questioning either the wisdom of the temporary convenience of this over-grown and bloated credit system under which we have to live.

It has been questioned from the very earliest times of which we have any record by men who could see through the hole in the millstone. Two thousand years ago Virgil wrote:

"Happy is the man who owes nothing."

Two hundred years ago John Hale, pastor of Virginia declared:

"Stone is the coin that turns everything into gold. It is Pay as you go."

Addison of "Spectator" fame once remarked that "The man who will live above his present circumstances is in great danger of living, in a little, much beneath them."

According to Disraeli, the English statesman,

"Having the courage to live within one's means is respectability."

Ben Franklin, who was a mighty shrewd business man as well as a scientist and a statesman, advised:

"In buying goods it is best to pay ready money, because he that sells on credit expects to lose by bad debts, wherefore he charges upon all that he sells an advance that shall make up that deficiency."

Dr. Frank Crane, by whose wisdom many swear, says, flat footedly:

"Whatever you get you pay for, one way or other. The cheapest plan is to pay cash."

And so one might go on, almost ad infinitum, quoting from the wisest men of past and present to show that them of the clearest eyes and cleverest minds have always and do now reprehend and warn against the resort to credit in lieu of cash.

One might even point out that there is a big department store in one of our largest cities, which always buys for cash and sells for cash; never asking or giving credit, and which regularly sells for at least six per cent below current market prices, because it gets a better profit out of 94 cents cash, than it could out of 100 cents credit.

But what would be the use? Mrs. Partington couldn't hold the ocean back with her broom; no arguments or exhortations or appeals can avail to check or stay a world-wide fad. It will run its course, like measles or the smallpox, and, like the last, is liable to leave its scars and pits on the world's countenance.

It is exceeding easy to say "shun it." It is often hard to raise the ready money. And it is gruelling to do without the things you want badly because you can't pay cash down for them.

The world always has taken and probably always will take the easy way out, regardless of whether it is the wise way or even the safe way. And you and I must follow the crowd for the simple reason that we can't get out of it. All the same, there's nothing to prevent those of us who disapprove of the crowd's chosen route from gradually working our way towards the edge of the mob and watching for chances to get our feet on sounder paving.

There was a store, once, where I was known as an always cash customer, and where the merchant regularly gave me from two to five per cent discount on his fixed prices, because he didn't have to "carry me," or worry over me as a possible "bad debt." He's gone now, where I hope he doesn't have to sell sugar and salt for a living. And I haven't found his successor. But I live in hope. When if ever that successor arrives, I shall proceed to save from $50 to $100 a year by "patronizing" him.

If you and I can't loaven the whole sorry loaf, perhaps we can sweeten a little one or two crumbs of the dough.

The possibilities are worth considering, anyway.

SENATE ALUMINUM PROBE STARTS TODAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7—(AP)—Officials of both the department of justice and the federal trade commission will be called tomorrow as witnesses in the senate investigation of the failure to bring contempt proceedings against the Aluminum company of America.

This was decided today by the senate judiciary committee, which decided until tomorrow the beginning of an inquiry sponsored by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, and involving a company in which Secretary Mellon is a large stockholder.

Chairman Cummins was directed to request the attendance of Attorney General Sargent and his assistant, William J. Donovan, and Chairman Vernon W. VanFleet, Secretary Otis B. Johnson and Chief Examiner Millard F. Hudson, of the trade commission.

The full scope of the investigation may depend largely upon the testimony of these witnesses. Aside from the failure of the justice department to bring contempt proceedings for charged violations of a court decree, the inquiry will be directed to the question of the extent to which the department has been handicapped by the refusal of the trade commission to make available to its testimony taken from the files of the Aluminum company.

In prosecuting the inquiry, Senator Walsh will lay particular stress upon the contrast between the letter of the then attorney general, Harlan F. Stone to the commission on January 30, 1925, and the statement issued last Saturday by the justice department.

Mr. Stone in his letter said the report submitted by the commission made it apparent that the company had violated several provisions of the consent decree under which the company was enjoined from certain practices held to have been in restraint of trade and competition.

The statement of the department of justice declared that while the inquiry conducted by the department had not been completed thus far, no evidence had been developed to show a violation of the consent decree.

Some of the icemen have secured their ice crops. Others are sorry they did not take advantage of the 8 and 10-inch ice.

Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson were callers on friends Sunday afternoon.

day afternoon

Joseph Briston is working for C. D. Arnold and boarding with his brother and family.

Miss Mildred E. Webster, of Westerly, spent a couple of days with her grandparents here, last week.

Johnson Hoyle, a resident of Peacedale, but for many years living on a farm not far from here, died suddenly Sunday morning. His brother, Albert died Sept. 8th, a half-brother, George Greene, died about 3 weeks later, making the third death in the family. A sister, Mrs. Agnes H. Phillips is the only remaining one of the immediate family. There are several nieces and nephews. At the time of Johnson's death, a nephew, Henry Hoyle, was in the South County hospital, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis, one day last week. All sympathize with the sister in the loss of her brothers. Mr. Hoyle was never married and since the death of his mother, a few years ago, made his home with his sister.

A man driving a truck met with a very fortunate escape at Kingston station one day this week. It was very foggy. The gates were down and he didn't see the first gate until he struck it. The train was coming and to save his life he drove into the other gate breaking both gates down. These foggy nights there are two watchmen to protect the people at the crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Briston and daughters, Mary and Annie, spent Sunday afternoon with relatives, in Wyoming.

QUEBEC TO SAFEGUARD ITS NATURAL RESOURCES

QUEBEC, Jan. 7—(AP)—Legislation to "preserve within our province its natural resources, especially the hydraulic powers" will be asked from the Quebec legislature which opened a new session today. This was announced in the speech from the throne read by Lieut.-Governor Perodeau, who said the provincial government "proposed to continue this policy on which our industrial future depends, without, however, extending to the other provinces the actual prohibition against the exportation of electric power.

Three persons were hurt, two seriously, while coasting at Franconia, N. H., yesterday, when their sled got beyond control and crashed into a telephone pole.

Be a scrub in the valley, but be
The best little scrub by the sdie of the rill;
Be a bush if you can't be a tree.

We can't all be captains, some have to be crew—
There's something for all of us here.
There's work to be done, and we've all got to do
Our part in the way that's sincere.

If you can't be the sun, be a star.

TERHUNE WILL BE RETURNED TO NEW LONDON TO FACE OLD CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7.—Harold Terhune, alias Dudley Dean, arrested in Washington several weeks ago, charged with passing worthless checks and defrauding hotels, will be brought back to New London the latter part of next week. He will be presented in the police court charged with passing a worthless check upon Robert R. Rutherford, Lyme. State Police Officer Giles Watson, Groton barracks, departed this evening for Washington, armed with a warrant for Terhune's arrest, issued by Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Mollanderaky and with extradition papers.

Terhune was a resident of New London two weeks in December, stopping at the Hotel Mohican, where he represented himself as being a bond salesman. He negotiated a check, purporting to be on the Bankers' Trust company, of New York, for $55, and induced Rutherford to negotiate it. When the check was returned to Rutherford from the New York bank he lodged complaint against Terhune, but Terhune had left the city. A search for him was instituted, but all knowledge of his whereabouts faded until he was taken into custody at Washington. It is understood that Terhune's irregularities in Washington were liquidated by the hotels being reimbursed, but when the Washington authorities were notified that the accused was wanted in this city, his case in court was continued until next Tuesday in order to permit an officer reaching there with the necessary papers to bring the prisoner back here for trial.

Elsie Wieczorek has sold to John and Bronislaw Rosa a house and lot on Huntington street.

Julian D. Moran, administrator of the estate of Ella O'Neill, widow of James O'Neill, the actor, today sold two building lots on Harbor View Heights to Leonardo and Agostino Minucci.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operators' licenses of Thomas Murphy, 29 Tilley street, and Gistano Beniaque, 93 Smith street, to be suspended. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the license of Bruno Benvenuti, 93 Smith, recently suspended, returned to the owner.

The funeral of George W. Thorp, formerly of New London, and employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford as ticket agent, whose death occurred in New Haven, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street. The services were conducted by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church and by officers of Union lodge of Masons. Members of the lodge acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of Joseph Francis was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by many mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wolfschlaeger. The bearers were Joseph Mendonsa, Alexander Rose, Charles Randall, Leo O'Connell, Antone Costa and Joseph Detreau. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Claude Chesseman, formerly of New London, died at his home, New Haven last night. He was a machinist and resided in New London until about a year ago.

Ernest Bigelow, United States Coast Guard, state pier; Mrs. Charles Attwood, Station 10 1-2, Waterford; Earl Sherwood, United States Coast Guard, state pier; Calvin Burrows, Poquonoc lodge; Edward Nelson, 38 Tilley street and Mrs. Fred Mitchell, Niantic, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Daniel H. Troland, formerly of Norwich, but for several years a resident of New London, was removed from the Hotel Winthrop to Home Memorial hospital this afternoon. Mr. Troland contracted a severe cold several days ago, followi- which pleurisy developed and in an effort to thwart off pneumonia the patient was ordered transferred to the hospital by his attending physician.

Patrolman George Perkins, 67 Norwood avenue, is confined to his home suffering from an injury to his knee. The member is so badly swollen that it will be several days before he is able to perform patrol duty.

Joseph Pieretti, Centerbrook, communicated with the police late this afternoon stating that while in New London his Moon touring car was stolen. Pieretti stated that he left his car parked on Washington street, while he attended to matters of business and absented himself about two hours. When he returned to where he had left his car he discovered that it had been stolen. The location where the car was stolen has been the scene of numerous car thefts and many machine owners have suffered losses by property being taken from machines.

Capt. Douglass of the Milford police department informed New London authorities late this afternoon that a Chrysler touring car was stolen from the former city about 5 o'clock. The car is painted blue and bears Connecticut registration 25-962. The machine is a 1926 model.

Patrolman Frank Philopena was patroling along Broad street this afternoon when he observed a dog owned by Attorney G. Curtis Morgan leap over the fence of the Morgan residence corner of Broad and Channing streets and start to attack a young girl, who was on her way to school. The dog, a police breed, started for the child and as it did so the officer started for the dog. While the animal reached the child ahead of the officer the dog did not bite its victim and a few seconds later Patrolman Philopena beat the animal away by using his club freely. Officer Philopena reported the attack of the dog upon the girl at headquarters and Attorney Morgan was notified as was Dog Warden Sweeny, the latter being advised to conduct an investigation. Later Mrs. A. J. Pelletier, 43 Granite street, communicated with the police stating that it was her daughter that was attacked by the police dog and requesting that measures be taken to cause the dog to be secured in order that further attacks upon pedestrians would not occur.

Edward Jakan, 20 Starr street, is scheduled to be presented in the police court tomorrow on a charge of reckless driving preferred against him by State Police Officer Joseph J. Bobnick Groton barracks. Officer Bobnick was driving an official car, a Ford roadster, and at the corner of Church and Huntington streets a commercial car appeared driven by Jakan. Before Jakan could avoid a collision the two machines came together. Neither car was seriously damaged.

Mrs. John Regan and infant son, 31 Reed street, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. William Eden, Lee avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Isabelle Eden, to Willet Carroll Flagg, New Haven. No date has been set for the wedding, but it will occur during the present month. Mr. Flagg is employed at the New Haven post office.

Miss Gertrude Kahler, 321 Ledyard street, is a patient at Lawrence hospital, where she recently underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Plant, made a brief visit to Mr. Plant's grandmother, Mrs. Mary Manwaring, of Nathan Hale street, this week.

New London has been pretty free from automobile accidents of a serious nature thus far this year. While only a week of that period has passed the record made by autoists is a good one.

The ice dealers have increased hope for a harvest during the week. There was seven inches of ice on the ponds before the fog that set Monday night, and now that the temperature has dropped about 15 degrees there is a prospect that cutting can take place before the week is at an end.

Repairs are being made to the Odd Fellows' building on Bank street. That structure has never paid anything to the orders in the way of return on their investment and it is not certain that it will pay anything in the immediate future.

The top dressing which the city placed upon lower Bank street south of Truman street has worn so well that there is a probability that the same dressing will be made use of on other streets during the coming summer. It has been proposed to extend that sort of repair to Truman and Blinman streets and to other highways nearby where there is much travel, but not of the heavy sort. The city did a wise thing when it made permanent repairs to streets in which it placed Belgian pavement years ago, for practically no expenditure was made on those streets since then. It is within the range of possibility that Montauk avenue will be permanently repaired within a few years and that thereafter no money will be expended to make the surface of that highway smooth and such as will wear for many years.

A joint installation of recently elected officer of Pequot lodge, No. 85, I. O. O. F., and Mohican lodge, No. 88, occurred last evening in Odd Fellows hall, Bank street, the joint installation being the first to take place of New London lodges in the history of the three-linkers. The installation ceremony was conducted by District Deputy Rufus Church and staff and being a public affair, was witnessed by many friends of members of the two organizations. The officers of Pequot lodge to be seated were: Noble grand, Herbert Hayward; vice grand, Clarence A. Farrar; recording secretary, Orrin H. Dunbar; financial secretary, Frederic C. Burrows; treasurer, William King-don; trustee, Abraham Hirsch; keeper of paraphernalia, William A. Rockwell. The officers of Mohegan lodge to be installed were: Noble Grand, Raymond Darrow; vice grand, William H. Tooker; recording secretary, Andrew Morris; financial secretary, James H. Adams; treasurer, Edward Prince.

Letters from John Ohio, who went to Athens a month or more ago, report him in the best of health. That city is thronged and tourists are unable to engage quarters unless they have advance reservations.

District Deputy Santangelo, representing the grand exalted ruler of the Elks paid an official visit to the local lodge this evening to inspect the property and to examine the accounts of the lodge. He was entertained at a luncheon at the Mohican hotel with the officers of the lodge at 6 p. m. and then attended the meeting at 8. There was an entertainment and refreshments were served. New London lodge ranks with the best in the state.

TO INVESTIGATE CAUSE OF BACON BLOCK FIRES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 7—Fire continues to attack the Bacon block, 183-185 State street, the business structure that was partially gutted last week by a blaze that destroyed the stock of the Davis & Savard store with an estimated loss of close to $60,000, for within the past 24 hours the fire department was called out twice to subdue fires that started in the partitions.

The first fire occurred shortly after 3 o'clock this morning when a lively blaze was discovered in a partition beneath a stairway on the second floor. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters, causing the Nameaug Engine company to respond. The fire was quickly extinguished, or was believed to have been subdued with chemicals.

This afternoon at 2:40 o'clock a more serious fire was discovered when a blaze was located and burning rapidly between one of the partitions of the Davis & Savard store and the H. D. Barrows store. An alarm was sent in from Box 28, corner of North Bank and State streets. The location of the fire was quickly determined and in order that the fire would not communicate to any of the other stores two streams of water were turned upon the blazing timbers and after a half hour's work the fire was extinguished.

A fireman has been kept on duty in the building the entire day and night and how the fires originate or get a good start before being discovered is hard to imagine and it is probable that City Manager William A. Holt will take immediate steps to determine the origin of the numerous fires. He was at the scene of this afternoon's blaze and intimated taking such action.

Whether the fires heretofore have not been entirely subdued, but have smouldered until they broke anew or whether there are defective electric light wires in the building, is what will be sought to determine.

WINDHAM

The Community dance New Years eve was a very pretty affair and largely attended, people being present from Willimantic, Lebanon, South Windham, Scotland and other towns. The hall was artistically decorated in the holiday colors of red and green. Excellent music was furnished by the Lyric orchestra of Willimantic which was stationed on the platform behind a lattice work of red and green crepe paper. A gypsy dance was well executed by Marian Bailey. Favors of fancy paper caps and balloons were distributed. As midnight arrived the lights were turned off and 13 strokes were sounded on the cymbals. After the lights came on again New Year's greetings were exchanged and 1926 was ushered in with ringing of bells, blowing of horns and throwing confetti. Fruit punch and ice cream were served. The success of the ball was due to the committee, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Richmond, Miss Charlotte Lathrop and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Macdonald.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Larrabee, Miss Larrabee and Mrs. James Lathrop are dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Larrabee of Williamntic, New Year's day.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church held a successful food sale in the chapel Thursday in charge of Mrs. Alfred Harvey and Miss Gertrude Arnold. The proceeds were $25.15.

A number of Windham people attended the accordion concert in South Windham, Monday night. The dense fog made motoring dangerous.

The officers of the C. E. society for the next six months are: President, C. A. Barstow; vice president, Marguerite Cook; secretary, Eden Cook; treasurer, Carl Josephson; committee chairmen, prayer meeting, Arthur Keeney; music, Charlotte Lathrop; social, Eden Cook; missionary, Charlotte Lathrop; Thomas Calling, Grace Harney.

The leader for the C. E. meeting next Sunday is Alfred Abbe.

The unpleasant weather Monday evening interfered with the attendance at the January meeting of the Parent-Teachers association. Those who ventured out in the fog heard an interesting address on Are We Thinking of Education or Only Tinkering With It, delivered by E. A. Case, of Willimantic, principal of Windham High school.

MUSTAPHA EVERYTHING AND EVERYBODY IN TURKEY

LONDON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—For the moment Mustapha Kemal Pasha is everything and everybody in Turkey, says J. A. Spender, editorof of the Westminister Gazette, in another of the special articles he is contributing to his paper from Turkey.

Whatever the Turks may private think of the westernization policy, introduced by the president, Mr. Spender writes, nobody dreams of reflecting on or questioning Mustapha Kemal's decrees or of doubting his greatness and wisdom in this orany other matter. His courage, firmness and insight are compared daily with the weakness, a vacillation and blindness of the old regime.

Instancing the spread of western methods, the editor points out that there is not a single fez to be seen in Constantinople nowadays. Hats have been imported in bulk by every ship and every train for months past to meet the demand created by Kemal's decree against the fez.

Mr. Spender asserts that while it would be untrue to say that the Moslem religion is being persecuted in Turkey, it is a fact that among the younger Turks the fashion is more and more to speak of the Moslem faith as obsolete and fanatical.

Palace Theatre

Knight Brothers Circus was certainly a hollering success at the Palace Theatre all day yesterday. The house was packed at both performances, and every single act in the bill is 100 per cent. entertainment. It certainly lives up to all its advertising.

The Great De Mario thrilled his audience with his daring aerial and contortionist feats. His trick of balancing on seven ordinary cane, the smallest no larger than a silver half-dollar, the best trick that we have seen any performer do and as a matter of fact he is the only man in the business doing it daily.

The most daring feature of the entire show is Capt. Newmeyer's lion act. He tantalizes them with his rod and sticks his face close to theirs and almost kisses the most ferocious lion of the three. If it does not send a little tingle up and down your spinal column you are absolutely unused to thrills. If anyone thinks that these lions are given any sleeping powders before entering the arena, these thoughts will quickly be dispelled when they hear these beasts roar and see the way that they go after the trainer.

Mlle La Marlette who, for several seasons, was featured with the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Show, gives the most daring performance ever seen in Norwich. Ascending by her teeth to an apparatus that is propelled by electric motors, she was hoisted to the flies and revolved over a thousand revolutions in a minute. It is easy to see why Ringland Brothers and Barnum & Bailey show made a favor of this act.

Lucy, the dancing elephant done her Charleston as she promised the children she would and a number of other dancers and there isn't any doubt that Lucy captured the hearts of the adult audience as well as the juvenile.

Elmer Perdue the famous New York hippodrome clown and his troupe of white-faced funsters kept the audience in an uproar all afternoon. Then Cyclone, the bucking mule gave a scientific demonstration of what ever goes up must come down. Several of the boys got on Cyclone's back and they all came down faster than they went up. If there is any one in Norwich that can ride Cyclone we would like to see them and the manager offers $25 and the manager of the circus will also offer $25 to any one that stays on Cyclone's back and the one who comes nearest will receive a cash prize from the manager of the circus and the manager of the theatre.

Watching the show this afternoon one cannot help but admire the courage and management of the circus and of the management of the theatre in bringing an attraction of this size into Norwich but their faith in their attraction and in the city was shown by the packed theatre both afternoon and evening. It is impossible to try to describe the entire show. It is a circus in every sense of the word and any one that misses it has missed a lot of lively entertainment.

The performance will start tomorrow at 1.30 and it is the intention of the management to give four shows the circus going on at 2.00, 4.15, 6.30, 8.00.

Broadway Theatre

Based on the narrative "Salvage," by Isola Forrester, the Banner Production called "Wreckage" opened an engagement of four days at the Broadway Theatre Sunday, with May Allison and Holmes Herbert in the principal roles. In the cast are John Millan, Rosemary Theby and James Morrison.

The story is one of the mystery type, with the elements of love and battle woven cleverly into the action. A wreck in the Pacific is one of the most startling scenes cast on a screen for some time and proves that it was no press agent story that came from Los Angeles announcing the near tragedy of May Allison when she was thrown into the sea from a carsening life boat.

"Wreckage" is the sort of picture that will hold the audience consistently and at no stage of its unfolding does the story become dull. The cast is good and the directing by Scott Dunlap worthy of special mention.

The second feature will be one of the great outdoors, in addition to a comedy, news and augmented orchestra. The admission for this mammoth program will be 25c the popular prices which has attracted capacity crowds for weeks, so you'd better start early.

Broadway Theatre

To see the entire program at the Broadway Theatre the last half of this week is to see mighty fine uplifting entertainment.

The Keith-Albee Vaudeville of course is the main attraction and five better acts have not been seen previously on any one program.

Archelees and Venus gave a study in art and feminine in which posing and painting is introduced.

Rogers & Dorkin in a Melange of Amusement Bits have an effective presentation of song, dance, music and fun.

Carroll and Remont, two clever dancers followed with twelve minutes of fun and song.

Cy Seymour in A Timely Sermon kept the laughter at a high pitch with his line of chatter.

Alexander & Gauthier, the Parisian Purveyors of Pleasure, closed with a novel offering that made a very pleasing and fine closing number.

The photoplay is one of thrills and comedy with Matt Moore, Ruth Roland and a perfect cast in "Where the Worst Begins."

Captain Gordon Canning, Rifian peace emissary, arrived at Tangier, Morocco, yesterday.

Breed Theatre

Somebody once said "there are two things in life which are full of magic and mystery—the circus and the sea."

And whoever that somebody was he spoke the truth, because the magic and mystery of these elements are deep-rooted in all humanity.

The host of circus scenes in Johnny Hines' fun-provoking picture, "The Live Wire", have been reproduced with an exactness that makes one believe the circus with all its splendor is taking place right before one's eyes.

All the glamour, the beauty, the thrills of the circus have been introduced into this lavish production, which shows Hines cast in the role of a daredevil tight-wire performer and the star of the "big top". To assist him in his desire to make these sequences as realistic as possible, the comedy star engaged some of the most famous actors of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey shows and the Hagenbeck-Wallace shows. All of the performers had years of circus training and how well they do their "turns" is vividly depicted in "The Live Wire." One sees the daring trapeze performers, the bouncing acrobats the bizarre clowns, the bareback riders, the lion and leopard trainers, the dancing elephants and bears, the hurdling tigers, the prancing horses and a host of other acts that make the circus the thing of magic that it is.

"The Live Wire" which boasts of an excellent story and a great cast, including Edmund Breese, Mildred Ryan, J. Barney Sherry will be shown at the Breed Theatre today and Saturday.

FROHAM URGES MORE TIME AND MONEY ON LOCAL TALENT

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (AP)—Daniel Frohman has little sympathy with expeditions of American producers to foreign countries for actors and plays. The time, effort and money he believes, could be used to better advantage in this country.

There are hundreds of actors and writers in the United States who can meet the demands of the stage, he says, and adds that the impression in some quarters that foreign players and plays have a greater attraction here, is erroneous.

After many years of activity as manager and producer, Frohman now rests in his quaint offices near Broadway among the memories of a glorious past and the significant facts of the present.

His theater is leased to someone else and he has no productions. To him the "game now is too much of a risk," owing to competition and the "high cost of everything." Most of his time is devoted to the Actors Fund of America.

Maude Adams, Hackett, Faversham, Southern, John Drew, May Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. Kendall and many other stars have played in his shows. He has been in intimate association with the world's greatest playwrights.

"The talent of today is just as great," he said in making comparisons, "but our players haven't the same opportunities—the plays now do not supply them.

"The old dramas were wholesome, yet contained a strong emotional appeal. They were well constructed. The perverted sex plays of the present are the frightful outcome of the mind of modern audiences. In their search for appeal, our writers have turned to horrible subjects, but the real drama, with its opportunities for the actors, is below that of the past.

"I am glad to note that these horrible plays do not make a go beyond New York. Here they survive because they have so many elements from which to draw.

"In the cities and towns in the country, the situation is different. The family has a dignified position and the wholesome—something elevated and stimulative—is desired. This is what I want. We can get it through the revival of the old dramas and the writing of new. Especially should we encourage our present day dramatists in this direction."

SECRECY SURROUNDS FILMING OF MYSTERY MOVIE FEATURE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 7 (AP)—For the first time in the history of moving pictures a feature film is being made here without announcing the name of any of the players appearing in it or any of the production details.

The feature is a mystery play, and its future success on the screen, producers believe, demands absolute secrecy as to its making. Rigid rules were issued barring visitors, including those of other studios, from the sets, and requiring that all actors and actresses refrain from revealing their characters.

Only the producers and directors know the identity of the cast or where the sequences are being filmed.

RADIO CODE OF STANDARDS IS AIM OF COMMITTEE WORK

CHICAGO, Jan. 7—(AP)—Having discovered that the public wants standardized radio parts, the manufacturers have gone back to the consumers to find out how they wish them made. Committees of manufacturers are now at work on the replies to thousands of questionnaires, from which will be formulated a code of standards.

Radio thus becomes one of the first great industries of its size, from which the public expects that the finish company's parts must fit the Jones company's apparatus.

"The dealer and the consumer have both been seriously affected by this irregularity of parts," says A. J. Carter, chairman of the standards committee of the Radio Manufacturers association. "There isn't a man in the radio game today who hasn't wished at

The Radio Manufacturers Association is tackling this problem and we are going to carry on until the work is completed."

OFFER REWARD TO FILIPINO WHO DOUBLES RETAIL TRADE

MANILA, Jan. 7—(AP)—TO encourage Filipinos to engage in the retail business in Manila, the Philippine Chamber of Commerce has authorized payment of a reward of $250 to any Filipino retail merchant who may double an original capital of $2,500 within a period of five years.

According to the plan, preference will be given those Filipinos who can thrive in the face of competition of foreign retail dealers in the districts where the city's retail business is virtually all in the hands of the Chinese and Japanese.

SAYS GRAPEJUICE THIRST AND NOT WINE INCREASED PRICES

DETROIT, Jan. 7—(AP)—The Michigan grapegrower has been a chief beneficiary of prohibition, not because of a demand for grapes for wine-making, but because of the creation of a national thirst for grapejuice, said Bernhin Bruno, a well known grower of western Michigan. His views found concurrence from most of the growers visiting the Detroit market.

Grape prices have soared since prohibition almost entirely due to increased demand from grape juice manufacturers, Bruno asserted. Wine takers in the old days seldom paid more than $60 a ton. The price last fall was $90 and more.

"There is some winemaking, I presume," Mr. Bruno said, "but grapegrowers know, through their pocketbooks, that it is kickless grapejuice that has done the business."

THIRD HORSEMAN CLIMBS STAIR OF FAMOUS SHRINE IN JAPAN

TOKYO, Jan. 7—(AP)—For the third time in the history of Japanese horsemanship, a man has ridden up the long, steep stairway of the Atagoyama Shrine and made the return journey without injury to himself or his mount. The latrepid horseman was Toshita Iwaki. The historic shrine flight is 90 feet high and has an incline of about 60 degrees.

EXHAUST STACK FOUND TO BE SOURCE OF FIRE TO PLANES

WASHINGTON, Jan 7—(AP)—Army air experts believe that in the exhaust stack they have found the firebug largely responsible for the tendency of crashed planes to burst into flames and which has cost many lives. The much repeated "flaming coffins" designation of certain old types of army planes by Colonel William Mitchell arose from this tendency.

An air service report said that 30 crash tests were conducted on complete airplanes. It was discovered that the exhaust stack was a very serious source of fire, and that if it were possible to so design an exhaust stack that it would be cool enough to prevent the self-ignition of gasoline or oil sprayed into the stack, the number of fires would be very greatly reduced.

"Preliminary designs of standard length, water-cooled exhaust manifolds and short, air-cooled manifolds have shown that it is entirely possible to prevent fires from this source," said the report.

SKYSCRAPER TO STAND ON GROUND GIVEN TO YOUTH

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 7 (AP)—In 1848 Adolph Gustave Russ was 20 years old and poor. Like all the others here then he was desirous of making a fortune so he wrote the Spanish government asking a land grant.

In this casual way he came into possession of much of the land on which San Francisco's financial district later grew. Lots that belonged to him on Montgomery street have been leased from the family for 99 years by a corporation as the base for an office building with eight acres of floor space, exclusive of a garage on the mezzanine floor for the tenants. It will be 30 stories high, the tallest building in California and the largest on the Pacific Coast.

STUDENTS GET REALISTIC PEEP INTO THEIR FUTURE PROFESSION

PULLMAN, Wash., Jan. 7 (AP)—That the members of the department of architecture of Washington State College might have an insight into the conditions which await them when they leave school to practice their chosen profession, the class was held in session nine continuous hours. There was no interruption even for meals, coffee and sandwiches being served the classmen at their desks.

From 1 p. m. to 10 p. m. the students, without recourse to text books and with only their acquired knowledge to depend upon, were required to work out a plan of architecture for each room of the department. The stress and urgency of a "hurry-up-time-is-precious" contingency were imposed on the student architects and they met the situation successfully.

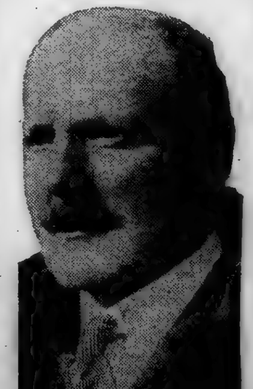
HARRY M. WETSTINE DIED SUDDENLY IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Harry M. Wetstine, 33, a brother of Frederick J. Wetstine, chief clerk in the department of motor vehicles at Hartford, died suddenly this morning at St. Vincent's hospital. He was an employe of the Hickey Brothers Express company. He was well known in the North End of the city where he had lived all his life, and during his youth was prominent in athletics of the city.

Has Job No Architect Would Like To Tackle



COPYRIGHT KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

Since 1907, Sir Ronald Storrs has been Governor of Jerusalem. With the influx of many Jews and others, who are attempting to rebuild Palestine he is confronted with the enormous task of preserving the old Jerusalem, and developing the new. There is little money at hand, but whole-hearted natives are helping to clear the city, repair the outer walls, build streets, etc., and it will not be long before Jerusalem will be a proud little city.

NORWICH TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Beebe, of Norwich Town motored to Dayville and spent New Year's day at the home of Mrs. Beebe's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gillette.

This was a notable day for Mr. Gillette's mother, Mrs. Emily Gillette, who reached the century mark January 1st, 1926.

There was a special dinner which was attended only by relatives, Mrs. Gillette being the guest of honor. This was the first time she had been down stairs in the parlor for a year. All during the day many friends and neighbors called to extend congratulations and good wishes, to one who although bodily helpless, still clings to life and enjoys it. A large number of birthday, as well as New Year cards were received from loving friends, also a quantity of beautiful flowers. Included in the gifts was a pyramid birthday cake made by Mrs. Beebe. On this, was one very large candle to represent one-hundred, also numerous small candles significant of good wishes, which were blown out by Mrs. Gillette. Mrs. Gillette, who wore a new lace cap made especially for the occasion, remarked to her family that she did not sleep well the previous night, as thoughts kept haunting her that this would be her last birthday. Although helpless for about three years, her mind is alert to all things of interest, and while she has retained all her faculties exceptionally well, it is noticeable now that her eyes are failing her and she is quite deaf.

Mrs. Gillette (Emily Champlin) was born January 1, 1826, at South Kingston, R. I., being second oldest of a family of ten children born to Robert and Alice Congdon Champlin, and is the only one of the children now Living. When she was very small her parents moved to Connecticut and she has ever since resided in this state.

In 1850, she was married to Joseph Gillette of Colchester, where they spent practically their entire married life. Two sons were born to them, Frank Gillette who died in Colchester about one year ago; and Samuel Gillette, of Dayville, who with his faithful wife have tenderly cared for Mr. Gillette's aged mother since her affliction. With the exception of about three years spent in Colchester at the home of her grand-son, Isaac Gillette, she has made her home in Dayville for about fifteen years, with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gillette. Besides her own boys, Mrs. Gillette really mothered a third son; having reared to manhood, her grandson, Isaac Gillette. There are three great, great, grand-children, Claude, May, and Helen, children of Isaac Gillette of Colchester.

Mrs. Gillette has the distinction of not only being born on the first day of the year, first day of the month and the first day of the week; but recalls being told that she was born the first hour of the day. She has been a very active woman all her life and until loosing the use of her hands, was never seen idle. Fancy work, piecing quilts and in many other ways she made use of her time.

January 1st, 1925, a similar occasion was given for Mrs. Gillette, when Mrs. Beebe planned a surprise for her. It was then prophesied she would round out the century mark. At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Beebe on Scotland road, Mrs. Gillette was a visitor for six weeks, as recently as when in the early nineties.

The first meeting for 1926, of the Ladies' Home Missionary society of the First Congregational church is to be held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin, of Town street.

The second meeting for the week of prayer, held Wednesday evening in the First Congregational chapel, Rev. James B. Aldrich, pastor of the First M. E. church, which is uniting with the Congregational church, spoke on "The Power of Faith."

The Fourth Quarterly conference of the Methodist church, will be held Friday evening at the Norwich Town M. E. church, with the district superintendent for the Southern New England district, Rev. Myron E. Genter, presiding.

Mrs. A. Maud Smith and daughter, Miss Beatrice Smith have returned from Hartford, where they were holiday guests for a week or more, at the home of Mrs. Alice Thompson, a former neighbor of Mrs. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Tague of McClellan avenue, recently had as dinner guests at a family gathering in celebration of New Year's, their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Tague and the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Buckley, all of Westfield, also their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Tague of Waterford, and Mr. and Mrs. William A. Young, of Norwich Town.

At the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, Dr. John H. Evans, by special request, is to give an address on The Near East Relief Activities in the Caucasus. Those who are interested in this work will, at this time, have an opportunity of hearing many unusual and interesting things from one who was engaged in this work for nearly four years. Dr. Evans, with Mrs. Evans, left New York, in February, 1922, arriving at Constantinople about a month later. There were five others in the Near East party, Dr. Evans having been assigned to have full charge

Dr. and Mrs. Evans returned to Norwich during December, 1925, and are at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Genie Evans. Before interesting himself in this line of endeavor, Dr. Evans had an important part in the World war, serving in many capacities.

When residing in central New York, where he located after leaving Norwich, Dr. Evans gave up a prosperous practice to enter the army as a lieutenant in the medical corps, winning a captaincy within the year. He was stationed at the Walter Reed General hospital, Camp Crane, Bellevue hospital, Camp Sheiby, Fort Des Moines, and left for overseas service from Camp Merritt, with Base Hospital 79, from which he was detached, after arriving at Brest. He was sent to the front as senior member of Operating Team 210, served through the Meuse-Argonne offensive and later was with the Army of Occupation in Germany. He returned June 1919, and was assigned for eighteen months, to General Hospital #1, Staten Island, as an operating surgeon in charge of infected gunshot wounds. Later, he was commissioned a captain in the regular army and assigned to Fort McPherson, soon being transferred to Fort Caswell, North Carolina, as post surgeon. Dr. Evans is a graduate of Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia university, with post graduate work at Harvard Medical school. He practiced medicine in Norwich from 1904 to 1908, acting as pathologist and one of the attending staff, at Backus hospital. He also was a captain in the medical corps, C. N. G., and post surgeon for New London county.

During this week of prayer which commenced Tuesday evening, at the First Congregational church, with the people of the First Methodist Episcopal church uniting, there have been large congregations, especially at the meeting Wednesday. After Rev. James B. Aldrich, pastor of the Methodist church, had concluded his address on "The Power of Faith," Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey called on a former pastor of the Congregational church, Rev. Charles A. Northrop, of Danbury, Rev. Mr. Northrop spoke impressively on "Christ and Christian Living." The main thought conveyed was that we are not saved, but are being saved. We must keep on living good lives; it must be a continuous process to the end.

Many who have welcomed Mr. Northrop's return during the past week, when several times he has spoken to former parishioners and friends, have felt that his presence was an inspiration and rejoiced that he was able to come to Norwich at this season. Rev. Mr. Northrop returned to Hartford Thursday and later will go to Danbury.

The closing prayer and benediction Wednesday evening, was by Rev. Charles E. Reeves.

Thursday evening, when the prayer service was held at the Methodist church, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, the visiting pastor, chose for the theme of his address, "Are We Prepared?"

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of Greeneville Congregational church, is to be the speaker Sunday evening, at the meeting of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the Norwich Town Congregational church. The meeting will be at 7 o'clock, in the chapel instead of the usual hour. The topic assigned is, How is Prohibition Succeeding?

The Sheltering Arms service Sunday afternoon, will be in charge of Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity Episcopal church, Norwich. He will be assisted by the chorus choir of this church, under direction of Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham.

The January meeting of Home chapter of the King's Daughters, is to be held Monday afternoon, at Johnson Home.

COLD WAVE CAUSED HENS TO SLACKEN UP

The cold wave of last week caused the birds in the contest to ease off somewhat in production from the preceeding week. For the ninth week the actual figures show that they laid 3636 eggs which is a little better than thirty-seven per-cent. This is 875 eggs less than last week but is 565 eggs more than last year for the corresponding week. The grand total to date is 30,181 eggs. With average weather conditions for this week, we feel that the birds will at least hold their own and may somewhat better this week's production.

The outstanding performance of the week was accomplished by a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by John Z. LaBelle of Ballouville, Conn. They not only captured first place for the week with a production of 54 eggs, but climbed into the lead of the entire contest which puts the Leghorns owned by Mount Hope Farms of Williamstown, Mass., into second place temporarily at least. R. D. Sargent's pen of Rhode Island Reds from East Ryegate, Vt., was in second place for the week with 48 eggs while D. Hart Horton's pen of the same breed from Farming

STOCK PRICES FIRM.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—(By The A. P.)—Stock prices displayed a firm undertone today despite the uncertainty regarding a change in the New York Federal Reserve bank discount rate, which was raised from 3 1-2 to 4 per cent. after the market closed. While the recent sharp decline in the New York bank's reserve ratio combined with the fact that it was the only central bank which held to the 3 1-2 per cent. rate clearly foreshadowed an increase, the news coming at a time when the call market was flooded with a large surplus of loanable funds on stock collateral undoubtedly took many persons by surprise, its effect upon the stock market will be awaited with keen interest tomorrow.

Revival of speculative interest in the motor shares, particularly some of the low priced issues, was one of the day's features. Hudson was bid up over four points to 123 3-4, just below the top. General Motors, Dodge, Indian Motorcycle, Packard, Pierce Arrow common and preferred and Willys Overland showed net gains of 1 to 3 1-2 points.

Wheat broke 3 to nearly 5 points on professional selling based on the failure of foreign markets to follow the Chicago advance, and reports that Argentine crop failures were exaggerated.

January cotton closed 5 points higher on covering by nervous shorts, but the late months sold off as much as 19 points. Coffee was 6 to 20 points net lower on profit taking following the recent advance. Raw sugar advanced 1-32 of a cent.

Rails moved irregularly higher. Special buying of Norfolk and Western sent that stock up nearly 4 points to 153 3-4, a new high record. Delaware and Hudson, which is expected to announce the segregation of its coal properties before the end of the year, jumped 5 points to 165, the highest in over 20 years. Wabash preferred A touched 75 3-4, the highest price in over a year, and net gains of a point or more also were recorded by Atlantic Coast Line, Canadian Pacific, Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley and Wabash common. Peoria and Eastern jumped over four points to 21 3-4.

Buoyancy of several high priced industrials was associated with reports of large earnings and prospects of higher dividends. American Smelting was run up over four points to 144 3-4, the highest quotation since 1907. American Brake Shoe and Foundry, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Liggett and Myers A, and B, Federal Light and Traction and General Railway Signal also sold at their highest quotations in a long time.

Other gathered strength on merger reports and stiffening commodity prices. Associated, which is being sought as a unit in the new Barnsdall merger, advanced two points to 47 7-8, the peak price for the present $36 par stock, and Pacific, which owns a majority interest in Associated, showed a net gain of 1 3-4 at 76 7-8. Pan-American issues held firm on a subsidence of recent selling pressure.

Call money held steady at four per cent. all day, but large sums were available in the outside market below that figure, some loans being reported as low as 3 1-4. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges moved within rather narrow and irregular limit. Demand sterling ruled slightly higher at $4.84 3-4 in reflection of improved showing made in the weekly statement of the Bank of England. French francs advanced at few points to around 3.86 1-2 cents. Danish kroner rallied 5 points to 24.75 cents on the announcement that arrangements had been made here for a new revolving credit of $40,000,000 at slightly better terms than the one which has just expired.

INSANITY PLEA WILL BE DEFENSE IN TRIAL OF BERRY FOR MURDER

Eugene J. Berry of 324 Boswell avenue, against whom the grand jury failed to find a true bill for first degree murder, pleaded not guilty in the superior court here Thursday morning to second degree murder and elected to be tried by the court. Berry has been either in the hospital or in jail ever since October 20, when he called the police to his tenement and showed them the bodies of his two small sons, Eugene, 5, and Roland Joseph, 6, whom he had chloroformed as they were asleep in bed with him.

The court room was packed with spectators when Berry was put to plea and he wept soft and wiped the tears from his eyes as Clerk George E. Parsons read the information against him.

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown addressed the court as to the time of trial for Berry and told Judge Allyn L. Brown that it could probably not be until week after next, as there are three trials for the court next week. There are two jury cases and one court case scheduled to be tried before the Berry case.

The defense in the Berry case is to be insanity, according to his counsel. Attorney Edward G. McKay with whom is associated Attorney William H. Shields, Jr.

When Berry was put to plea, two of his sisters, Mrs. Manuel LaFreniere of Central avenue, and Mrs. John T. Ryan of 414 Central avenue, with a niece, Mrs John Malcolm of 528 North Main street, were in the court room, having talked with Berry before he was put to plea. His wife, Helen McKenna Berry, whose parents live in Jewett City, was not in the court room.

After court adjourned for the day, Berry was taken back to jail where he is held without bonds.

The following cases were continued because of the fact that the accused in each are at present in the Norwich State hospital:

John C. W. Wilbur, Salem, murder; Stephen Hunter, Norwich, indecent assault; Charles Loomis, Bozrah, theft of poultry Henry Willis, North Stonington, arson; Newell Vergason, robbery.

The following cases will remain upon the docket until the probation period of the accused in each has expired:

Eugene Bunnell, Norwich, robbery; Lloyd Hilton, New London, breach of the peace; William Smith, Griswold, indecent exposure of the person; Raymond Goland, New London, statutory burglary; Ernest Herbert, Voluntown, larceny; Minnie LaFountain, et al., Norwich, adultery; Tony Moyer, Groton, larceny; Grace Phelps, et al., Groton, adultery; Walter Zagotski, Lebanon, statutory burglary; Russell Hereau, et al., bench warrant; Dora Marsille, Norwich, adultery; Delphia St. John, Griswold, adultery; Rose Savigny, Griswold, adultery; Agnes Laudsberg Stone, New London, bigamy; Omer Gadbois alias Owen Wood, et al., Norwich, adultery.

The case of Ernst Schleifer, charged with sabotage, who has a case on a similar charge now pending in New Haven, was continued at the request of State Attorney Aaron Alling of that county.

POSTAL OFFICIALS MADE WAR ON LOTTERIES

During the year ended June 30 the promoters of lotteries, gift enterprises and similar schemes, have been particularly active, and the postal department has been called upon to issue hundreds of rulings to postmasters upon the mailability of prize schemes of every description sought to be conducted through the mails, says the annual report of Postmaster General Harry S. New.

In many instances these schemes involved the collection and distribution of large sums of money in cash prizes and the promoters had skillfully arranged the plans in an attempt to hide the lottery element and evade the law.

Some of the newspapers throughout the country used prize contests of different kinds for the purpose of increasing their circulation and building up subscription lists, and while not very popular with the well-established firms, it has been used extensively by many business concerns as a means of stimulating trade. Agents for foreign lotteries continued to send their literature into this country in large quantities and forty-four orders were issued forbidding the transmission of mail matter and the certification of money orders intended for such agents.

There was a remarkable increase during the year in the number of periodicals containing obscene matter on which admission to the mails was sought. An ever increasing vigilance was required to insure the exclusion of such matter and the solicitor's office was called upon to examine and make rulings as to the mailability of the various issues of several scores of such publications. Approximately 90 per cent. of all periodicals presented for examination during a period when a record was kept contained unmailable, indecent matter. To these issues transmission in the mails was denied.

In the enforcement of the law forbidding the deposit in the mails of any book, picture, writing or other object of a pornographic character, great quantities of matter actually found in the mails have been seized and destroyed. This comprehends not only photographs and other pictorial representations of a lewd nature, as well as a variety of objects coming in the same category, but also current editions of indecent publications.

As a consequence certain publishers who are obliged to rely chiefly or wholly upon the postal service to obtain distribution of their wares have been forced to completely alter the character of their publications in order to secure the admission of same to the mails. In these processes not only the editorial policies as to the character of matter published but the general appearance and even the titles of such magazines have been changed.

The close surveillance which is being constantly exercised over the character of matter flowing through the various channels of the postal system has undoubtedly effected a material improvement in the general situation with a notable decrease in the number of foreign concerns advertising and undertaking to market their pornographic matter in the United States.

MISS GERTRUDE M. PENDLETON LEAVING FOR HARTFORD

Miss Gertrude M. Pendleton, who has become known to hundreds in Norwich and vicinity during her long and efficient term as head of a department of the Boston Store, is to leave soon for Hartford.

Miss Pendleton has been engaged to take charge of the same line of stock in the big store of the Albert Steiger company, Hartford branch. A marked advance in salary is her inducement to leave Norwich.

With her mother, Mrs. Benjamin F Pendleton, she has made her home at Hobart avenue. Mrs. Pendleton has taken an apartment in a pleasant section of Hartford and they will go direct there.

Miss Pendleton has been assistant superintendent of the Sunday school of Trinity Methodist church and prominent in all the activities of the school.

Health Through Open Windows

It has been noted with interest that a closed-window addict can be converted to the fresh air habit, says the state department of health. In a certain business office where quite recently the fresh air fiends had some difficulty in maintaining their open window policy, demands are now being made for "more air."

The most convincing proof of the healthful benefit of fresh air is to try it for a while.

After daily contact with a continuous gentle movement of fresh air to temper the heat of the room no one feels comfortable again in such a room without it.

Keep the room temperature below 69 degrees and an open window for "health to blow in."

Relatives of George W. Beckwith

Nieces and nephews of George W. Beckwith who died Wednesday are Mrs. Charles L. Hatch of Worcester, Mass., Arthur Turner of Killingly, Ct., Mrs. Emma Guild of Norwich and George Beckwith of Maywood, Ill.

NEW OFFICERS TAKE CHARGE FOR CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUB

A largely attended and very enthusiastic meeting of the Catholic Women's Club was held Thursday afternoon, at the rooms of the Ladies of Columbus, the newly elected president, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Rourke presiding.

The yearly reports were read, showing the club to be in a flourishing condition.

A rising vote of thanks was given the retiring officers, in appreciation of their splendid work. Committees for the coming year were then appointed, Mrs. D. J. Hayes, chairman of the sewing committee, Mrs. Bernard M. Coyle of the entertainment committee and Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh of the sick committee.

Plans were outlined for the activities of the year. It was voted to hold the annual card party and dance this month, and Mrs. Frank A. Sisk was appointed general chairman for that event.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael Henry May was present as the guest of honor and in a brief address paid a splendid tribute to the members for the charitable work the club is doing and expressed his appreciation of their efforts in assisting him to make the poor of the parish comfortable.

At the conclusion of the meeting tea was served by the hostesses for the afternoon, Mrs. Nelson C. Disco, Mrs. William P. McGarry and Mrs. Annie C. Cunningham. The table decorations were in a novel blending of pink and red, the pink roses and carnations proving very effective, after the red candles were lighted.

INJURIES WERE FATAL TO UNCASVILLE MAN

Failing to rally from injuries received Wednesday evening when he was hit by a trolley car near Perry's Garage, at the Montville town line Joseph Forsyth, about 40, employed by the Eastern Connecticut Power company, died Thursday morning about 2 o'clock at the W. W. Backus hospital where he was taken after the accident Death was due to a fractured skull.

Motorman Winthrop Abel, driving the 9:46 o'clock trip out of Norwich to New London, saw the man on the tracks too late to stop his car, although he made every effort to bring the trolley to a standstill before it hit the man. It had been suggested that Forsyth might have been hit by an automobile before the trolley car struck him, but other reasons for his presence on the trolley track are now assigned. When the motorman first saw him he was evidently trying to raise himself on his elbow in an effort to get away from the tracks before the trolley car was upon him.

Mr. Forsyth had been in the employ of the Eastern Connecticut Power company for about a year. He resided with his sister, Mrs. Albert Bonfoey at Uncasville, and had many friends who are deeply grieved to learn of his tragic death. It is known that Mr Forsyth got off a trolley car from New London, just a short while before he was hit. He alighted from the trolley at Perry's garage and had gone only about 400 feet when the fatality occurred.

STATE TO BUY FOREST LAND AT SAYBROOK

The executive committee of the commission on wild life and forests held a meeting in Hartford this week, and took action on the report of Elliott B Bronson, the field agent of the commission on the purchase of land for forest purposes. The members of the committee are Frederic C. Walcott, H. H. Chapman, Carl Kulle and W. O. Filley. Since July 1, the commission has acquired seven thousand acres of land in the state which make in all more than 18,306 acres to which the state has title and which is used to develop the forest system of the state. The largest forest which the state owns is Housatonic forest, consisting of more than 5,000 acres and which is in the towns of Canaan, Sharon and Salisbury. Foster Schreeder, the forest engineer of the commission, is now at work revising the official forest map of the state.

The committee decided to purchase 2,500 acres of land for forest purposes in the towns of Saybrook and Chester.

WORLD COURT LUNCHEON HAS BEEN POSTPONED

The World Court committee held a special meeting Wednesday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Rev. A. N. Foster presiding.

Information was received that Dr Charles F. Carter, of Hartford, who had been expected to address a luncheon at the Wauregan Jan. 15th, could not be present.

The change of plans was due to the fact that a meeting arranged for that evening at New London was postponed. The committee, with this fact before it, after a careful canvass of the situation decided to hold in abeyance all plans, awaiting developments in the senate and available speakers on the World Court question.

The committee is to meet again Jan. 29th.

GOV. TRUMBULL ORDERS INQUIRY OF GILPATRIC'S STATE TREASURERSHIP

Action the Result of Claim Made by Receiver Coffin of Putnam Bank That the State is in Possession of Liberty Bonds to the Amount of $124,221.32 Bought by Gilpatric With Money Misappropriated at the Bank—State Board of Control Has Appropriated $10,000 to Meet the First Expenses of the Investigation—State Does Not Wish to Retain Any Property to Which It is Not Entitled.

HARTFORD, Jan. 8—(AP)—Governor Trumbull today ordered a full investigation "of every phase of all the transactions of G. Harold Gilpatric as treasurer of the state of Connecticut." His action followed receipt of a letter from Receiver George M. Coffin, of the First National bank of Putnam, of which Gilpatric was cashier, claiming that the state was in possession of Liberty bonds bought by Gilpatric for $124,221.32 with money he misappropriated at the Putnam bank.

The governor's decision was reached at a conference he had with Attorney General Healy, State Treasurer Rogers and Deputy State Treasurer Judd who concurred. The governor then called a special meeting of the state board of control, which promptly appropriated $10,000 to meet the first expenses of the investigation.

The governor announced the appointment of ex-Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, of Southington, Morgan B. Brainard, president of the Aetna Life and Affiliated companies, and Charles G. Morris, last democratic nominee for governor, as a committee to direct the investigation and report their findings to him.

The governor sent the following letter to George M. Coffin, receiver of the First National bank of Putnam:

"George M. Coffin, receiver. First National bank, Putnam, Conn.

"Dear Sir: I have received and read with much attention, your esteemed favor of December 29th. As this is the first responsible statement giving any details made to me with regard to the administration of the state treasury under G. Harold Gilpatric, I have taken the same as the basis for a future procedure which I shall outline to you in this communication.

"As you are, of course, aware, under the direction of my predecessor in office, shortly after the distressing discovery of Mr. Gilpatric's financial involvements, a careful and thorough audit of the treasury department was made by a firm of competent accountants, with the result that the state's investments and assets were found to be intact. At least two other and independent investigations that resulted in the same report were made, all of these reports verifying the reports of the state auditors.

"One of the chief responsibilities of the executive officers of the state is to conserve the property belonging to the state, and prominent in the list of this property are the assets of the treasury in which the state's money is invested. These securities were received and receipted for by the present state treasurer as the property of the state and according to the constitution can only be disbursed by him "as he may be directed by law." After receiving this property under so strong a color of title it must be apparent that the executive officers of the state cannot recognise any attempt to part with any part of this property except as directed by law.'

"In this connection it may not be inappropriate for me to suggest that in any intimation of moral responsibility on the part of the state to the bank must be considered the fact that the defaulting cashier of the bank was its apparently trusted agent long before he assumed public office, and that one of his claims to election of the office of public trust was the excellent reputation given him by the directors of the First National bank of Putnam.

"However, independent of all of these collateral facts I do not believe any citizen of Connecticut wishes the state to retain any property to which it is not under the circumstances entitled and as your letter suggests some facts which apparently cast doubt on a situation created by one who was acting in the dual capacity of cashier of the bank, which you now represent, and treasurer of the state, which I represent, I am convinced that additional steps should be taken in order that the facts may be fully known and a proper and intelligent procedure adopted.

"As above stated, it is, of course, impossible that any state official, until directed by law, can do otherwise than retain possession of what is apparently the state's property.

"I am advised that the general assembly can go no further than by proper action to waive the immunity of the state from suit; thus permitting any claimant in the present transaction to bring his suit against the state or its treasurer seeking recovery of any bonds or any other property claimed to be unlawfully in its possession.

"Before consenting to any such procedure the general assembly should be fully advised as to the real facts in the case. To that end I propose to take the responsibility of securing the most thorough and careful proposal as a basis for any future action the state may wish to take if the occasion requires. Therefore, it is my intention to immediately ask three prominent citizens of the state, in whom we all have confidence, to act as a committee in the matter. I shall place before them your letter and ask them to fully investigate and report to me every phase of all the transactions of G. Harold Gilpatric while acting as treasurer of the state of Connecticut. I shall also ask the board of control to place at my disposal for the use of this committee, sufficient funds to employ experts, auditors and assistants necessary to obtain the information and make the report. This action, I believe justified by the circumstances and to be the action best calculated to meet the conditions.

Most respectfully yours,
JOHN H. TRUMBULL."

COAL STRIKE CONFAB TO RESUME THIS AFTERNOON

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Anthracite miners and operators who are attempting to negotiate a new wage contract to end the long coal strike adjourned tonight until tomorrow afternoon without announcing any agreement.

The only official word that came from the conference room to the public was as follows:

"At today's session of the anthracite committee there was a continuation of the effort to reach an agreement. At the suggestion of the chairman, an adjournment was taken until two o'clock tomorrow."

An impression had gone abroad that the negotiators would follow custom and not sit on Saturday, but when the announcement of a session tomorrow came, immediately the question was raised whether the conferees were getting anywhere. This was strengthened by a report that one of the miners' representatives earlier in the day had said a plan was receiving favorable consideration. Spokesman for the miners said there was no basis for such a report.

Major W. W. Inglis, chairman of the anthracite operators' negotiating committee and John L. Lewis, head of the miners' sub-scale committee, were appealed to for an amplification of the brief official announcement. After consulting with their respective press representatives, it was made known to the newspapermen that there was nothing on which to enlarge the statement.

FIREMEN IN NEW HAVEN HAD NARROW ESCAPE

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 8—(AP)—Damage to buildings and content of the Crown street annex of the Adaskin Furniture company in which a fire raged for several hours early today will not amount to more than $75,000 or $85,000, Fire Marshal Martin J. Fleming said tonight after his investigation. Earlier estimates placed the loss at about $150,000.

The fire which broke out on the fourth floor of the building shortly before 7 o'clock spread rapidly through the upper part of the structure with the flames breaking through the roof 30 minutes after being discovered.

Firemen, six of whom narrowly escaped serious injury when a part of the roof fell in upon them, fought cold weather and freezing water on sidewalks and in the building in addition to the flames.

Fire Chief Reif who was only recently appointed and the entire department received many congratulations for their work in stopping the fire that threatened to destroy Adaskin's entire large furniture store which occupies the corner building and other adjoining buildings.

MR. AND MRS. BERLIN VISIT STEAMSHIP SUITE

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Making a vain attempt to escape from their apartment without being seen, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Berlin visited tonight the suite they have reserved on the United States liner Leviathan sailing tomorrow.

On the eve of their expected departure for Europe where the composer and his bride, the former Ellin Mackay, will continue their interrupted honeymoon, Clarence H. Mackay, head of the Postal Telegraph company, instructed a subordinate to announce his opposition to his daughter's sudden marriage was still unchanged.

While curious crowds besieged the apartment building in which they were staying, the newlyweds escaped down a back fire escape, shook off one reporter who had a "hunch" they were coming out that way, and hailed a taxicab. Stopping at a flower shop for a movement, they continued their trip straight to the liner.

The Berlin taxicab had a narrow escape from a serious accident when it swerved to avoid striking a coal truck. One of the taxicab doors hit the truck, throwing splintered glass into Mrs. Berlin's lap.

BAR BOOTLEGGERS FROM HARVARD DORMITORIES

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 8—(AP)—Bootleggers must not solicit business from students at Harvard dormitories, or they will be arrested for trespassing, the university police warned today. Following the first arrest on that charge, the Harvard Crimson Student Daily, today quoted a member of the university police as saying:

"We are at last getting the situation under control, something we have been trying to accomplish ever since prohibition was supposed to come into force. Great difficulty has been encountered in stopping the sale of liquor outside of the yard, but this arrest will prove a lesson to other bootleggers, and we can now proceed toward wiping out the practice throughout the college dormitories."

STORM WARNING ISSUED BY THE WEATHER BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The following storm warning was announced today by the weather bureau:

Advisory 4 p. m. northeast warnings extended north of Delaware breakwater to Boston and continued at Delaware breakwater disturbance on south coast of North Carolina moving northeastward, with strong northeast and east winds accompanied by snow late this afternoon and tonight. Winds will probably reach gale force at times off the coast."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Popular in London Theatres

LONDON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Two Americans, John Barrymore and Lucile La Verne, are generally credited by British dramatic critics with having been outstanding figures in the London theatre during 1925. Miss La Verne's acting of the role of the Spartan mother in "Sun Up" and Barrymore's Hamlet won universal praise.

OFFICERS OF STATE FISH AND GAME COMMISSION

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 8—(AP)—Officers for the coming year were elected, reports were made by members of the state fish and game commission on what has been done to encourage the propagation of wild life in Connecticut during the past year and what is planned for the coming year, and various other matters of interest to the sportsmen throughout the state, were acted upon at the annual meeting this afternoon. Robert B. Chappell of New London was re-elected president of the association; F. P. Duell of East Hampton was elected vice president; A. Joseph Williamson of Bridgeport was elected secretary and treasurer; and there was elected a legislative committee consisting of Oscar L. Dossin of Meriden, chairman; Aaron Kinne of Glastonbury, W. W. Ives of Norwich, E. L. Darbee of Danielson and Albert J. Merritt of Bridgeport.

The association went on record as unanimously in favor of greater powers for the state fish and game commission.

Sentiment expressed at the meeting was almost unanimously in favor of a short open season on quail in 1927 and 1928, a season not more than one week in duration toward the latter part of November, with a limited bag permitted, this open season, however, being adopted only if approved by the state fish and game commission after an experiment has been carried out in the matter of increasing the quail in the state by snaring quail in countries where it is extremely plentiful, as in New London county, and distributing these birds in counties where there is now a noticeable absence of quail. It was reported at the meeting that quail is now plentiful all along the coast of Long Island sound but extremely scarce in the counties in the northern part of the state.

WAS THE SLAVE WIFE OF HER 65-YEAR OLD UNCLE

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Reassured by the arrival of her father, 17-year-old Elsie Dunleavy today sobbed out the story of a miserable existence as the slave-wife of her 65-year-old uncle since he kidnapped her from her home at Manchester, Iowa, a year ago.

Patrick Dunleavy, father of the wife, was brought to Chicago by a letter which the girl succeeded in smuggling out of her prison home a few nights ago.

The wrathful father shouted threats at his elder brother when the two confronted each other at police headquarters today and officers were forced to intercede to prevent a clash.

John Dunleavy, the uncle, who deserted his wife and nine children in Rochester, N. Y., confessed to being the father of Elsie's five-months-old child, but denied she had been kidnapped or forcibly confined in their home. He is held by the police.

He maintained that the girl asked him to take her away from Manchester. Both the girl and her father denied the statement and police said Dunleavy would probably be turned over to the government for persecution.

Dunleavy by threats and beatings frightened the child into silence which was unbroken until several nights ago, she told the police.

TUSCANY SHAKEN BY VIOLENT EARTHQUAKE

ROME, Jan. 8—(AP)—A violent earthquake which shook Tuscany for 12 seconds, causing casualties and property damage, and a renewal of portentious activity in Mount Vesuvius marked a reawakening of Italy's seismic and volcanic forces today.

Both these phenomena are believed to be result of the same mysterious subterranean forces which during the past ten days in various parts of the country have caused panic stricken crowds to flee as the earth trembled or the famous volcano belched angrily.

The earthquake in Tuscany centered in the region around Mount Amiata, and resulted in minor injuries to a score of persons and damage to several hundred peasant houses. The first shock was felt at 10.15 a. m. and this was followed by a tremor of smaller intensity. The quake inspired widespread terror, driving the inhabitants of several villages from their homes.

The towns suffering most were Abbadia and San Salvatore. The center of the mercury mining district, where all the houses were damaged. Most of the damage took the form of crumbling masonry and warped boards.

The Tuscany tremor followed a series of shocks which have been felt in recent days in districts as far separated as the southern tip of Calabria and the northern frontier of Jugo-Slavia. Tuscany had not been shaken until today, when smaller quakes and minor tremblings were also reported from Gonzaga, in Lombardy and Reggo, in Calabria.

CHALLENGES CHAMPION FIDDLER "JOE" SHIPPEE

EAST HAMPTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—Charlie Hall, 52, who has fiddled himself into much popularity in Middlesex county, and in years gone by a great favorite at country dances, came out today with a challenge for a fiddling contest with Joseph Shippee of Plainfield, or Mellie Dunham of Norway, Me. He suggested Middletown armory as the place, and the trophy and time could be mutually agreed upon.

He was in his 83rd year and had been a director in many utilities companies here and elsewhere in which his concern was interested. Recently his private business was incorporated as the H. C. Warren company and he continued as president.

Named to Relieve General Pershing

Major General Lassiter to Become Head of the Tacna-Arica Plebiscite Commission.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—The state department acting presumably for President Coolidge, has made a tentative request for the services of Major General William Lassiter, commanding the military forces in the Panama Canal Zone, to relieve General Pershing as head of the Tacna-Arica plebiscite commission.

General Lassiter is holding himself in readiness to proceed to Arica immediately if it is decided that a substitute for General Pershing will be named during General Pershing's visit to the United States for medical and dental treatment.

Should such a decision be made, the war department will offer no objection to the proposed transfer of General Lassiter.

SNOW STORMS ON LAND; ROUGH WEATHER AT SEA

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Icy, snow laden winds swept the north central states tonight and the Atlantic seaboard from North Carolina to Boston.

In Ohio and Virginia snow fell today and snow storms were forecast for the middle Atlantic and New England states late tonight. Incoming passenger steamers at Atlantic ports reported encountering rough weather at sea, one liner bringing in four injured passengers.

Ice was dynamited from the water intakes at Fort Niagara 14 miles north of Niagara Falls today for the first time in ten years. The Adirondack region was registering sub-zero temperatures with predictions of the coldest period of the winter.

Heavy rains during the last 48 hours in Mexico, just below the Arizona border, caused floods which made hundreds of families homeless. There was no loss of life, but hundreds of acres of farming lands were inundated and large crop areas ruined.

Although it snowed today at Norfolk and points in Virginia, the official weather forecast indicated that the Atlantic coast would receive the full effect of the storm late tonight. The disturbance began on the coast of North Carolina and moved rapidly northeastward. Strong northeast and east winds brought snow with them and often reached gale force off the coast, causing shipping to seek shelter.

TO TEACH USE OF FUELS OTHER THAN ANTHRACITE

BOSTON, Jan. 8—(AP)—Definite action to teach and encourage the permanent use of fuels other than anthracite coal was taken today by representatives of half a hundred commercial and industrial companies in greater Boston. Meeting at the call of the Chamber of Commerce, delegates voted to perfect an organization to foster clubs in industrial plants and acquaint employes with practical methods for burning anthracite substitutes especially low volatile soft coal.

Speakers, who included state officials and legislators, predicted the movement would render impossible any future hardships in New England from a cessation of anthracite mining and declared it would bring tremendous savings to workers. The action was the development of proposals made by the New England governors' fuel committee headed by John Hays Hammond. Already, it was said, numerous industrial plants throughout Massachusetts and in the Connecticut valley are encouraging the use of substitute fuels.

"Nothing that the operators or miners in the anthracite field can do will hurt us this year and perhaps never again," John B. O'Connell, chairman of the special committee on fuel economy of the Chamber of Commerce, declared. New England, he added, has "entered a fight which is now to be settled on an economic basis by the use of substitute fuels, instead of the iniquitous coercion of the anthracite mining field."

RECOVERY OF CARDINAL MERCIER NOW DOUBTFUL

BRUSSELS, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The advanced age of Cardinal Mercier, primate of Belgium, makes his recovery from the effects of his operation of last week doubtful, it was said in medical circles today.

The 74-year old cardinal continued to lose strength today owing to his inability to take nourishment. It is now reported that he is also suffering because an ulcer on his leg refuses to heal.

$50,000 FIRE DAMAGE TO COLUMBIA HIGH SCHOOL

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 8—(AP)—Fire tonight destroyed the south wing of the Columbia High school, causing damage estimated at $250,000. Fire companies from the Orange, Irvington and three companies from Newark fought the flames from several hours before they were under control.

The Man Who Rated a Buggy Good Enough.

In the old days, a solid, conservative citizen might sniff and tell you he didn't read advertising. He didn't think so much of the horseless carriage, either. The telephone was new fangled, and an insult to the United States mails. As for radio, aeroplanes, wireless photography—if they had been born then he would probably have thought them a bit immoral.

But he's changed. He's been educated. He's broader and more modern. The automobile, telephone, radio and advertising have done it.

Advertising can do wonders for anyone. Advertising can help you. The advertisements in The Bulletin tell you many things that make life more comfortable and happier. Read them faithfully. They'll keep you abreast of the times. They'll help your pocketbook.

HELD FOR PASSING OF COUNTERFEIT MONEY

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 8—(AP)—United States Commissioner Hugh J. Lavery today found probable cause to bind over two of a group of four alleged passers of counterfeit money arrested late in December for the next term of the grand jury. They were Nicholas Dizenzo and Daniel Angrisani. The case of another member of the group, Joseph Mercaldi, was continued for two weeks, and Amello Perellie, the fourth, was dismissed.

The four men were arrested by United States Secret Service Agent Welseman, aided by local detectives following the investigation into the passing of several bogus five dollar bills. A search of Dizenzo's room brought to light forty counterfeit bills, which he claimed he had purchased from Mercaldi. Angrisani admitted having passed three of the counterfeits.

WORLD'S GIANT SEMI-RIGID DIRIGIBLE IN TRIAL FLIGHT

Made Safe Landing at Scott Field, Illinois, After an Hour's Cruise in a Mild Snow Storm—RS-1 is 282 Feet Long, Has Capacity of 755,500 Cubic Feet and is Propelled by Four 300 Horse Power Liberty Motors—Carried Crew of Eight Men.

SCOTT FIELD, BELLEVILLE, Ills., Jan. 8.—(AP)—The RS-1, the world's largest semi-rigid dirigible, which took the air from Scott Field late today on its trial flight, made a safe landing at 6.29 p. m., after an hour's cruise in a mild snow storm.

The giant airship was christened by snowflakes as it was drawn from its hangar shortly before 5 o'clock after observers, who had been watching the weather conditions closely all day, advised that conditions were favorable.

Carrying a crew of eight men and Lieut. Orval Anderson, in charge, the big bag nosed into the chilly north wind and ascended gracefully, propelled by four 300 horsepower Liberty motors. The velocity of the wind was 11 miles an hour.

The air-ship was headed north across the field. With darkness descending it was soon out of sight, but could be detected for several minutes after the shape of the great bag had disappeared by red and white lights in the cabin.

The dirigible circled about the field. It was in the air almost one hour. Lieutnant Anderson, upon landing reported a successful flight. The average speed was 40 miles an hour.

The RS-1 is the second largest dirigible in the United States, the Los Angeles being the largest. The RS-1 is 282 feet long and has a capacity of 755,500 cubic feet.

Col. Paeglow has announced that plans are under way for building a 237 foot steel mast on the field which would be the largest in the country.

MOVEMENT TO DISPLACE RAILROAD LABOR BOARD

Washington, Jan. 8—(AP)—Legislation creating new machinery to displace the railroad labor board as an agency for settling railroad labor disputes was introduced today by Chairman Watson, of the senate interstate commerce committee.

The measure was worked out by representatives of the railroad executives, and labor organizations after a long series of conferences. It has been presented to President Coolidge, who is in sympathy with its principles.

The main provisions of the bill would establish a federal board of mediation to be composed of five members appointed by the president, with the approval of the senate. This board would be called in where efforts at direct negotiation between the carriers and their employes had failed and where adjustment board to be set up could not come to an agreement.

Another important feature was a provision that the right of an employe to quite work shall not be abridged and that no court of the United States or of any state could issue a process "to compel the performance by an employe of such labor or service" without his consent. Injunction proceedings have been resorted to in the past in railroad strikes.

TRIAL OF CAPT. DIEHL OF STEAMER CITY OF ROME

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Trial of Captain John H. Diehl and Timothy Dreyer, commander and third mate of the steamer City of Rome when she rammed and sank submarine S51 last September with a loss of 33 lives, began today before the local board of federal steamboat inspectors. The accident occurred off Block Island.

Captain Diehl faces four charges of inattention to duty in violation of the international rules for prevention of collisions. Dreyer is charged with the same and with an additional offense of neglect of duty, based on the fact that while officer of the watch he relieved the quartermaster at the wheel.

The trial was conducted by Captain Herman T. Parker, local U. S. inspector of hulls, and John Stewart, local U. S. inspector of boilers. The defendants, who are now serving on the steamship City of Columbus, pleaded not guilty.

The defendants were the only witnesses examined in four hours' questioning today by both the board and their counsel. Captain Luther B. Dow. The testimony followed closely that given at the investigation of the board from which came the preferment of the charges.

JEALOUS HUSBAND SLAYS WIFE, THREE CHILDREN, SELF

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Five bodies, the entire family of Thomas King, a young chauffeur, were found lying on a bed in his apartment today under circumstances that mutely outlined an unusual tragedy.

The last time the family were seen alive was Wednesday night when King returned home. Police said he found his wife flirting with another man, who left. Neighbors then heard a great racket. Marks on the walls of the home showed that King chased his wife and children from room to room. He killed them all with a baseball bat, a Christmas gift to the oldest boy from his mother. The children ranged from one to five years old, two boys and a girl.

He piled all the bodies on one bed. Taking that of the baby boy, aged one, in his arm he lay down beside them and cut his throat.

DEATH RING IN THE OSAGE COUNTRY OF OKLAHOMA

GUTHRIE, Okla., Jan. 8—(AP)—The United States government investigation of an alleged death ring in the Osage country of Oklahoma has revealed a condition that will astound the nation when the details are known it was declared today by Edwin K. Brown, special assistant attorney general, who with Roy Lewis, United States district attorney, is directing a grand jury inquiry here.

Nothing so far reaching in murders has ever been revealed before, he said.

Mr. Brown said a reign of terror in the Osage country had become so real as a result of the death of nearly a score of persons, that when he went there several months ago he found the homes of many Osages surrounded by strings of brilliant electric lights burning constantly through the night.

It was indicated officially today that the grand jury's activities have been so successful, that the government expects the Osages to be protected forever from the cupidity of white men, which it is charged revealed itself progressively through many devious methods to defraud and finally cropped out in a sinister conspiracy of death that levied on the lives of the Indians, known as the world's richest people.

"I believe there will be forever a closed season against the Osages when this case is terminated," A. R. Luhring.

PARRIS FLOOD CONDITIONS ARE LESS THREATENING

PARIS, Jan. 8—Paris is saved from a flood catastrophe, in the opinion of an official of the ministry of public works after an extensive survey of the flooded areas, but the damage to property will amount to something like 500,000,000 francs (approximately $17,500,000) at the present rate of exchange.

Technical exports who have ventured all sorts of prophecies since the floods began concerning the probable rise and fall of the rivers now say that the dry and somewhat colder weather which set in today will hasten the limit of the height of the water, and that the Seine, after rising another 10 or 12 inches, will begin to recede tomorrow.

The Marne, Meuse and Oise valleys are the worst stricken areas outside Paris, which has been ravaged by the ever-mounting Seine. Wrecked bridges, undermined railways and roadbeds, houses and factories destroyed or rendered uninhabitable and ruined fields of winter wheat make up the list of damage caused by the incessant rains and melting snows.

In the capital only a few hundred persons have been forced to abandon their homes, these along the banks of the Seine, but in the northern and eastern sections of France, homes have been wrecked or flooded by the score.

The water of the Seine tonight had reached 6.16 meters (20.21 feet) at the Austerlitz bridge, which is still seven feet lower than the high water mark of 1910. At the present time there are only about two miles of streets under a thin layer of water.

SHORT SKIRTS ECONOMIC MEASURE IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Short skirts are coming inot Russia, for the first time not because Russian women want to be fashionable for fashions scarcely exist in this revolutionary land, but because of the scarcity and dearness of dress material. The state textile mills have been unable to meet the demand for woolens, serges, gabardines, cottons and other materials.

Good serge dress material costs $3 a yard and other goods are in proportion, silks, satins and crepe de chine are luxuries. The Russian women therefore are now in the habit of making their skirts with a minimum of cloth, seldom more than a yard and a quarter. The result is skirts that often barely touch the knee. Skirts worn by the younger women remind one of Scottish "kilties," in length if not in color.

POLICE DID NOT KNOW DRIVER WAS GILPATRIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 8—Chief of police Allan McArthur spiked the story which appeared in connection with a review of some of the alleged doings of G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer and wrecker of the Putnam National bank, in a Hartford morning newspaper Friday morning relative to Gilpatric being stopped in this city for speeding. According to the story the defaulting cashier was held up in this city some three years ago for speeding. He made known his identity by flashing some sort of an official badge, and was then released with a warning to drive more carefully in the future. Telling about the incident to his friends the next day Gilpatric is declared as having said that his car was loaded with liquor at the time the policeman stopped him here for speeding.

Chief McArthur told of an evening when a Democratic rally was being held in this city. The principal speaker who was coming from the direction of Hartford was late in arriving and an officer was sent to stop all large cars in which the speaker might be riding and direct him to the town hall where the meeting was being held. Among several cars which were stopped was a Marmon. The driver of the car said that he was not the speaker and he was told to continue on his way but to avoid speeding as in the city as he was traveling quite rapidly when stopped. The man was not apprehended nor was the car searched. There was no thought of liquor in stopping that or any other machine, said the police chief. Later it developed that the driver of the Marmon was Gilpatric. The man did not flash a badge according to the officers.

FEELS THAT WINTER WILL BE TOUGH ONE FOR HIM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 8—While he was a patient at St. Joseph's hospital and then given quarters at the Windham town farms while he recuperated from an injury caused to his foot five weeks ago, when he dropped a heavy stick on the member, the little cottage which John T. Collins claims as his home, in South Chaplin was entered by burglars, who cleaned the old man out of his winter's supply of food. Collins, who is usually of jovial disposition and loves to talk of his famous harmonica, which he plays with credit, was sad Friday. Having recovered from his injury he left the town farm Thursday and headed his way back to Camp Chaplin, the little house which he occupies as a bachelor. It was irresistible, however, that he insert a little humor into his story. "When I got there" John said, "the cupboard was bare." His entire winter stock of tea, coffee, sugar, flour and vegetables, even his hair clippers and his thread and needles had been taken from him. The intruders had apparently made themselves to home for some time. The stove had been used and nearly two gallons of kerosene had been used in getting the fire started and keeping the lamps filled. This places Collins in a sad plight. He is now a penniless old man and with the raid on his modest home he is left without even the necessary provisions. Stating that it never rains, but it pours, Collins concluded as he wiped a tear dimmed eye. "It looks like a pretty tough winter for me."

GIVEN HEAVY FINE FOR POSSESSING STILL

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 8—Wasil Dawonczyk of 355 Ash street from whose home police officials and officers and County Detective Jackson took a fine copper still and coil, 10 gallons of wine, one gallon of alcohol and one barrel of mash, was presented in police court Friday morning to answer to charges of manufacturing and having liquor in his possession with intent to sell. He pleaded not guilty and flatly denied ever having made liquor or possessed it for sale and further disclaimed recognizing the still as such. To him it was just a copper container of peculiar style. He said that all the articles found in his cellar by the raiding officers were some which had been taken from a house which recently came into his possession in Mansfield Hollow. He had lent money to one Steve Polison to buy a house in Mansfield Hollow. Polison disappeared and the house came into his possession. Last summer he was having repairs made on the foundation and the copper container and other articles were found in the cellar. Some time later his ten-year-old son carted them to his home on Ash street. The glass jug filled with alcohol was included in the list of articles found in the Polison house. He admitted ownership of the wine which he said was made of huckleberry and was for his children. The officials agreed that it did not appear to be intoxicating.

John Mein said that he was making repairs in the cellar of the Polison house after it came into the possession of Dawonczyk. While working he removed a loose stone and it disclosed a secret hiding place in which he found the still and bottles, some of them containing moonshine. Mein said that he believed it was a still now that he was told what it was but at that time he did not know what the copper container was.

Wasil Dawonczyk, Jr., ten years old, told of carting the still and jug of moonshine from Mansfield Hollow to his home, about ten days ago, during the holiday vacation.

Judge Foss said that although it was fortunate for the defendant that testimony showed that the still had been in his possession only about ten days, yet the evidence of the officers that the still was hot and the ingredients steaming when they raided the place, must be taken into consideration. He considered the presence of the still, the alcohol and the wine as a violation. A fine of $100 on each count was imposed, amounting to $212.15 which was paid. Dawonczyk waived all claim to the still and alcohol. He was privileged to take his huckleberry wine back home with him.

M. on the float was placed a large cake inscribed 1921—Wooster Star Chapter—1926, which was placed in the center of the room. Each fairy and the queen made a short speech and the cake was cut, and, with ice cream, was distributed.

YOUNG COMPOSERS TO HEAR SYMPHONY PLAY WORKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—The man who jumps out of an aeroplane never knows until he feels that unmistakable pull at his shoulders whether his parachute is going to open. Just so, the imaginative genius who composes a score for symphony orchestra does not know how it sounds until he hears it played.

The analogy here may not be precise, but is intended to establish the point that the jumper and the composer suffer from nervous suspense until that time of certainty arrives.

Several persons in New York lately put their heads together and diagnosed the apparent anemic ailment of American music. The decision they arrived at was Americans must become writers of genuine symphonic stuff before America will ever rate as a producer of first class musical art.

The corrective measures for the ill they concluded, were to remove that too prolonged period of suspense and give a hearing to symphonic compositions in their infancy, or in their incubacy. They laid their plans and took them to the State Symphony Society, which decided that for the advancement of American art and artists it would have its orchestra play scores of youthful composers who would have the opportunity to listen and receive criticism.

The society decided to do more than this. It adopted a threefold program resolving: first, to interest itself especially in unusual music; second, to foster and encourage young and promising American musicians and to develop an American conductor, and third, to carry its performances of good music to the masses.

In accordance with the first part of this plan the orchestra obtained the services of Ernst Van Dohnanyi, Hungarian in birth and education, whose forte is popular rendition of unusual masterpieces.

To provide for rehearsals of unpublished symphony scores the society has set aside ten Saturday mornings. In charge of these trials it has placed a young American, Howard Barlow, retained as associate conductor of the symphony. It will be Mr. Barlow's part to adapt the scores submitted, rehearse his orchestra in them, and then, at a private sitting with critics and members of the symphony society play them through while the composer listens.

Mr. Barlow, critics, members of the orchestra, and officials of the society will then confer, decide on the good and bad features of the work, and then offer their findings for the consideration of the writer that he may take them home and meditate on the result if he chooses, he may revise his manuscripts and return them to be played again.

And the young musician—generally pictured as frayed at the elbows, and too poor to live decently—gets all this service gratis. He is only required to write the music and orchestrate it for enough pieces to satisfy the demands of a symphony.

POPE PUSHING CAMPAIGN AGAINST IMMODEST FASHIONS

ROME, Jan. 8—(AP)—Pope Pius is determined that his campaign against immodest women's fashions shall be waged vigorously to a successful conclusion "at any cost" by all educational institutions of the Roman Catholic church.

This decision was expressed by the Pontiff in a forceful address before the Congress of the International Union of Catholic Women's leagues, the members of which he received in special audience at the Vatican.

"I have noticed in your program," he said, "a decision corresponding opportunely with your high Christian ideal, that is, the struggle which you propose to undertake so worthily, so potently, so fully against immoral fashions which are truly a shame for so large a number of women who call themselves Christian and who dishonor the name of Christian.

"I never fail when seeing Nuns to ask them whether they conduct educational institutions. If they answer in the affirmative, I never omit recommending to them that they insist 'at any cost' upon Christian modesty in dressing. Sometimes they intimate that if they insist upon this point, mothers would withdraw their daughters from the schools. Very well, it is of no importance; Christian modesty in dressing must be taught with insistence and 'at any cost.' And I desire that the example be given by Catholic institutions. One must begin in earliest youth to imprint upon hearts the spirit of virtue and the sentiment of ineffable human dignity."

HISTORIC ORDERS FILED IN ARCHIVES OF OLD BARRACKS

VANCOUVER, Wash., Jan. 8—(AP)—Copies of two general orders, one promoting U. S. Grant from brevet second lieutenant to second lieutenant, and assigning him to the Seventh infantry, and the other announcing the death of John Quincy Adams, have been received by Col. Frank Morrow, commander of the Seventh infantry, U. S. A., at Vancouver barracks.

The copies were sent by G. M. Knisely, an army veteran, who saved the orders from the destruction years ago at Fort Leavenworth.

The order announcing the death of Adams was signed by President James K Polk, and was received by the Seventh Infantry while on duty in Mexico in 1848. That promoting Grant was issued September 30, 1845.

AMERICAN VENICE WILL GIVE UP ITS CANALS FOR STREETS

VENICE, Cal., Jan. 8—(AP)—The network of canals, which gave this beach resort its name 30 years ago, is to be sacrificed to the demands of progress.

City trustees have ordered the waterways filled and transformed into streets because of the increasing need, since the development of the automobile, for more parking space, and owing to the gradual movement of Venice's business section over the district traversed by the canals.

The city was founded two decades ago by the late Abbot Kinney who hoped to make it the "Venice of America" and accordingly laid it out with canals, resembling those of its Italian prototype.

Connecting with the Pacific ocean at Playa del Rey, the canals wind for three miles through the residential district under causeways fashioned after those of Venice, between palm-bordered banks into a large lagoon east of the "trolleyway," a series of electric railroad tracks that mark the boundary of the present business section.

In 1906, the Venice amusement zone centered about this body of water, but in ensuing years it gradually moved toward the beach to cluster on and about piers that jut several hundred feet oceanward.

Since their inception the canals have been used exclusively for pleasure boating with moonlight voyaging over the placid waters.

A miniature railroad which at one time surrounded the canals and afforded a survey of their beauty at night was constructed simultaneously with the waterways, but was removed last year as another impediment to progress.

The new streets will connect with several boulevards leading to Los Angeles, which recently annexed this city.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

NEW YORK CANNOT CLAIM A HOLIDAY OF ITS OWN

NEW YORK, Jan 8— (AP) —New York, claimant of the title of the largest city in the world, the financial, and the economic center of the country, can now lay claim to another title—the City without a Specific Holiday.

For Father Knickerbocker, with the passing of his observance of Education Day, today celebrates no annual birthday all his own.

With the rest of the nation, New York observes national holidays—the Fourth of July, Labor Day, Armistice Day, Christmas and New Years; but unlike the majority of great cities the world over, it has no special annual observance to which it devotes a festival commemoration.

Boston celebrates its Bunker Hill, Philadelphia lays exclusive claim to the observance of Independence Day, Mardi Gras belongs exclusively to New Orleans. Celebration of the great Chicago fire, started by Mrs. O'Leary's cow, is recognized annually in the Windy City. San Francisco yearly commemorates the date of the earthquake of 1906.

But New York has none.

In Europe, practically every great city, and many of the smaller towns have their special annual functions in recognition of historic events characteristic of each. London observes its Bank Holidays and the birthdays of its reigning sovereigns Bastile Day, while nationally recognized throughout France, is cherished by Paris as its own. Thus it is with virtually all Continental Cities.

Evacuation Day commemorating the departure of British troops from Manhattan on November 2, 1783, after seven years and two months occupation of the city, and the marching into the city of General George Washington, leading the Continental troops, was the signal for street dancing in this city for sixty years.

New York celebrated annually the day as its exclusive possession: its particular party. Theatres recognized it with special performances. Civic regiments and the citizenry responded on parade. Even when the country was at war with Mexico, in 1846, Evacuation Day aroused a city-wide demonstration.

Then, slowly, observance of the day dwindled, lost its fire. Opponents claim that the Fourth of July took away the edge. Thanksgiving Day, another national holiday, depreciated its prestige.

In 1883, the centennial of the departure of the British, the date was arrived with a great demonstration. President Arthur, his cabinet and several former governors of the state participated in the gala demonstration. But since then, interest in observance of the day has died.

New York, harassed by pressure of business has made no exceptional pronouncance at its passing.

There were 1,000 bankruptcies and 1,888 receiverships in Germany during December.

LEGION POST AFTER CONTRACTING CONCERN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 8—Now that the subject has been opened for discussion, it may be announced to an interested public that the scores of holes in Danielson's sidewalks are neither outlets for woodchuck or any other member of the rodent family. There has been much curiosity about these holes by people who did not see them made, a number of weeks ago, or who have not learned what they were actually made for—if anything at all.

A contract seems to have slipped in a program for putting in sockets—sidewalk sockets for the Shenandoah flagging system, or some similar decorative arrangement. The holes were made to hold metal sockets, with water tight caps. Dr. Danielson has the holes; but no sockets and it appears the Lord only knows when the job is to be completed.

In the meantime, there is plenty of adverse comment about drilling into sidewalks in the winter season, and leaving the holes to accumulate water, to freeze and damage the walks. Incidentally, there are many inquiries as to who will be liable in a suit for damages in case some woman with a high-heeled shoe gets a heel into one of the holes and sprains an ankle or breaks a leg. The inquiries are legitimate enough. Somebody will be expected to pay.

Commander Arthur DeForest of Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion, is on the trail of the concern that had the flagging contract and of which little has been heard since the sidewalks were left by them in the condition that is causing comment. He expects to get action from them and get it promptly.

The matter is one in which the entire borough is more or less interested. The sidewalks are under control of the borough of Danielson, not the town of Killingly. Of course abutting property owners pay for building the walks, but the borough retains its jurisdiction over them. A person injured by reason of one of the holes referred to might sue a property owner or the borough of both. Such things have been done before and can be done again.

In justice to everyone concerned, the situation as it now stands is entirely up to the concern that drilled the holes and then left them. That is where the blame rests—and that is where pressure is being brought for relief.

There was widespread interest here Friday morning in The Bulletin's announcement of a reduction in motor coach fares between Danielson and Providence. By some it was regarded as foreshadowing similar cuts in rates by other lines operating out of Providence into this territory on lines that serve Danielson, Willimantic, Putnam, Mooosup and other eastern Connecticut communities. Whatever happens, the prospect of lower rates on lines referred to is by no means unattractive. People naturally would like to ride as cheaply as possible. They know that they can ride for a low fare if they care to do so.

Lieut. Gordon J. Gale was injured Thursday night in a snappy practice basketball game in the town hall between the Servite Battery and Danielson Band teams. As a purely accidental incident he came in with Percy Peltier. Lieut. Gale sustained a gash about an inch and a half long on the upper part of the bridge of his nose and on his forehead. He was given attention by a physician.

Spando Longo plans to sail at the end of the coming week for a visit to his old home in Italy. Mr. Longo says he will be away until about May 15. He says he wants to see his boyhood haunts again and to talk with those who remain of all he knew when he left Italy as a young man to make his home in America. Mr. Longo has been a resident here about 35 years.

Mrs. Ivo Dernier, injured in an automobile accident the early part of the week, continues to suffer from the effects of the accident and is confined to her home on the West Side. While her injuries are not of a serious nature they are painful and a considerable time will be required for her complete recovery.

The blizzard this week, a long distance weather prophecy from Massachusetts having gone the way of hundreds of other such predictions. Now, if the weather prophets would revive interest in their past time, why not a snappy little prophecy about an earthquake, a tornado or maybe a good thunderstorm, with a hot wave to follow. January is a bit dull and something like that would pep it up a bit. In addition, there are people who will believe it.

Danielson's Rotarians, expecting to receive a charter for their new organization here at anytime, are working on plans for the entertainment of Rotarians from all sections of eastern Connecticut on the occasion of their being received into full membership in the world-wide organization. It is thought that as many as 300 members of Rotary will come here for the event.

One hears of a radio fan in a village of the town of Killingly who outclasses all others in his enthusiasm for attention to reception. In the course of his fine appreciation of ownership of a radio set he has logged 175 stations, getting them as far west as California and as far south as Mexico. He is having an amazingly good time, putting in 15 to 18 hours a day listening in and taking note of time either for sleep or a shave.

Attorney Arthur G. Bill received a telegram Friday morning that brought him some pleasant news. It was about Gordon Chauncey Bill of St. Johnsbury, Vt. Gordon is a very young man, just a day old today, in fact. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Bill. His given name was in honor of his grandfathers on both sides of the house and they, naturally, are very much interested in the young man.

The winning of the New England fiddlers' contest by Joseph Shippee of Plainfield is stirring the imagination of many minds interested in things of another day. It was suggested here Friday that an old-time drummers and fifers' contest would not be such a dud—that it would create real interest. Maybe someone will do something about this.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Sall of Broad street are to leave later in the month for White Springs, Fla., where they are to spend the greater part of the winter season, returning to Danielson, as is their annual custom, in the early spring.

Incident to meeting in this column Friday morning that rabbit snares are again being set in various towns, came a telephone message telling of snares around the Massebatuck ledges and other territory in that vicinity.

Arthur A. Dana, clerk in the office of the board of selectmen, has been appointed by the selectmen to be personal tax collector for the town of Killingly. Mr. Dana, on January 15, at the expiration of the term of the present collector, Attorney L. A. Wolzard, will take over the duties of the office. Attorney Wolzard, recently appointed referee in bankruptcy and because of the pressure of his general practice, does not desire to continue as collector of personal taxes, a place that he has filled with unusual success.

On Friday at the office of Supt. William E. Parker of Killingly's schools there was a list of 46 applications for transportation by pupils of the town who are under 16 years of age that had been approved at a meeting of the town school committee Thursday evening. The applications were made on a special prepared questionnaire setting forth such information relative to each pupil, the distance to be traveled to reach school, etc., as the committee requires. Only one application of all those received was denied. The majority of the applicants for transportation, to be furnished under a new arrangement, are high school pupils. The applications came from various parts of the town.

Danielson is to have a golf school again this winter. Its sessions are to open later this month.

With 126,000 motor vehicles registered in Connecticut for 1926, and this only early January, one need not be surprised next summer to see advertisements of outings reading "Bring lunch and parking space with you."

Killingly High school and Chapman Technical school (New London) basketball teams played at the town hall Friday evening, as told on the sports page this morning.

William A. Frenette of Fall River is spending the week end with friends in Danielson.

A host of skaters were out Friday afternoon and ponds and rivers hereabouts taking advantage of a splendid opportunity to enjoy this winter sport. The ice in many places was in prime condition.

In a letter written to friends here, Major Ambrose I. Moriarty, formerly of Putnam, now of Fort Rodman writes as follows regarding the president of the new Heminway, Belding Bros. silk combine:

"In connection with the recent merging of Belding Brothers and Heminway Silk companies, my friends in Putnam may be interested in knowing that Gen. E. C. Young, of the former company, was a classmate of mine at West Point, and was graduated from the Military academy, June 11, 1887, standing number four in the class.

Because of his high standing, he might have chosen any arm of the service but he selected the infantry resigning at the expiration of our graduation leave, in order to enter the Chicago office of Belding Brothers with which firm he has been associated for nearly thirty-nine years.

For many years he was a member of the national guard of Illinois, in which he became a major-general a number of years ago.

Of late years he has been vice-president of Belding Brothers with headquarters in New York city.

When the Manhasset property was offered at auction a year or two ago, I wrote to him endeavoring to get interest Belding Bros. in this fine property, but owing to the depression of the silk business at that time, he wrote that they did not wish to purchase the property.

I have no doubt that Gen. Young will make frequent visits to Putnam in the future and I know that Putnam people, who may have the pleasure of meeting him, will find him a most agreeable gentleman.

Yours truly

A. J. MORIARTY

At the Putnam High school auditorium Friday evening an interested audience listened to a remarkable entertaining lecture by J. Franklin Babb. His subject was "The Way Out" and dealt with the serious national problems that confront America today. It is through the individual, Mr. Babb said, that the solution must be found and there must be an endeavor on the part of our people to live up to a higher standard of citizenship. Mr. Babb is a very entertaining speaker and has a thorough knowledge of the matters that he discussed. Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools, presided at the meeting.

The committee appointed by the board of education of the town of Putnam, to investigate the needs of an addition to the State Trade school building, has elected Byron D. Bugbee, chairman, and Col. Henry J. Thayer, secretary. They have announced that a public meeting will be held at the high school auditorium on Friday evening, Jan. 22, for a discussion of the merits of the proposition. Other members of the committee are Silas M. Wheelock, John Bulger, William P. Warren and Alex Gilman.

The engagement is announced of Miss Alice Adams, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford L. Adams, of South Main street, to W. Earle Prince. Miss Adams is a graduate of Putnam High school of the class of 1920, and of Bay Path Institute of Springfield, Mass., of the class of 1923. ROADSIDE TREES

The conference which has been called for next month at New Haven for the purpose of considering the conservation of the tree growth and the improvement of the landscape conditions along the highroads of Connecticut is one which should awaken interest in all sections.

Recognition is given to the system of highways that is being built in the commonwealth, to the large outlays that are being made in connection therewith, to the existing scenic attractions of the state and the desire to increase the general attractiveness of the state for the highway users by giving deserved attention to the trees and the landscapes bordering them.

This is a matter which has been frequently advocated. There are cities which have established memorial highways by the setting out of trees and which follow the plan each year of setting out hundreds of them in the extension of such a scheme or the replacement of trees which have had to be removed.

While there are many sections which may not need such an attraction as more trees, there are others which do and as the trees are set out and develop they are certain to add greatly to the appearance of the roads over which traffic is increasing yearly.

Quite the same as in the city, the roads through the country where new layouts have had to be made in the reduction of grades or elimination of curves have suffered from the loss of trees which stood in the way. Whether they have been sacrificed needlessly or not there is no reason why something should not be done for the purpose of replacing their beauty sometime in the future. It takes years to grow the attractive trees and for that reason the quicker a concerted effort can be undertaken for replacing those which have been removed and adding others where they will contribute to the scenery the quicker the desired results will be obtained. The movement is a highly commendable one and it should get enthusiastic support and be urged to early action.

SPOTTING TRAFFIC VIOLATORS

According to information furnished by the motor vehicle department, New Haven has what must be regarded as a highly valuable committee, known as the traffic observers committee, made up of responsible and tactful citizens who report traffic violations to its secretary, who in turn calls the attention of the offender to his violation and asks for his cooperation in aiding safe driving. If necessary the police or state authorities are notified.

No doubt there are many instances where members of this committee take notice of violations which escape the attention of the authorities. It is well known that a policeman cannot be everywhere at the same time and there are drivers whose record for regulations is governed entirely by that fact. If he thinks a cop is nearby he will live up to the requirements. If he thinks there is no chance of being observed he will do what he would be the first to condemn in another. In other words he will take chances which ought not to be done in the interest of safe driving.

On the other hand there are many who are constantly violating traffic rules without appreciating the fact. They are not doing so intentionally, but having seen others do it, or having done it once and gotten away with it they have come to the conclusion that they were doing as they should and continue to follow the practice.

There are not many but who could receive such warnings as are probably given by the observers committee in the right spirit and be glad to correct their infraction of the rules, for these should be no one who can not appreciate the importance in these days of steadily increasing traffic of having each and every one do his part in contributing to the safety of the highway and it is through the observance of rules and regulations that unfavorable conditions will be eliminated and greater protection secured.

The New Haven idea is one that ought to produce good results in most any community. The thought of the possibility of being spotted would deter many from disregarding rules and the rights of others.

COAL STRIKE CONDEMNED

Almost from the beginning efforts have been directed by certain interests in the coal fields to an adjustment of the coal strike, on a basis of wage cuts but with the idea of reducing coal production. This has been [illegible] who have been working for the public good.

Now the miners and operators are in their positions. The same might be said of some of the consumers who have declared their "Never again" on anthracite newspapers in the hard coal field whould telegraph from Scranton an urgent appeal to the miners and operators to compose their differences.

The appeal tells its own story when it says: "Stories of distress in which women and children are the chief sufferers, of special movements in many communities to relieve distress, of soup served in the public schools, of sickness caused in humble homes for want of fuel, have all been told you. They have not been overdrawn. Apart from the colossal financial losses of the miners and the coal operators the long drawn out struggle has paralyzed business and discouraged enterprise. Your inability to agree on any form of arbitration does not justify the untold suffering and discomfort of millions of people over a wide area. Better arbitration with full dinner pails, comfortable homes and warm clothing than failure of collective bargaining and strikes with empty bellies."

Those who received such an appeal know full well that there would have been no cause for it and no such conditions as enumerated would exist if arbitration had been accepted last August. The responsibility for the non acceptance of it then and since that time is fully established. While directed to both it is evident from the references in the appeal, and especially in the last sentence, that there is recognition of the great mistake which the miners have made in refusing to arbitrate.

It isn't took late for an awakening to the attitude of those in the coal fields, or to the reaction of the coal users who are using other kinds of fuel. Condemnation of the strike comes from all directions.

THE GILPATRIC INQUIRY

In ordering a thorough investigation into the conduct of G. Harold Gilpatric, when treasurer of the state, for the purpose of straightening out certain uncertainties which have been raised as the result of his handling of funds under his control as state treasurer, cashier of the Putnam bank and trustee of estates, Governor Trumbull has acted in a manner which will have statewide approval.

When the treasurer's books were audited it was shown that the funds of the state were intact. Inquiries into the manner in which Gilpatric handled the various funds of which he had charge as cashier and trustee have created the suspicion that when he was forced to produce the state's Liberty bonds, delivery of which had been long delayed, he dipped into the bank's funds and trust estates to do it. Whether this is so or not Gilpatric knows, and a thorough inquiry into the operations of the former Putnam man should throw light upon it.

Suit for the recovery of the bonds by the bank has held to be dependent upon the consent of the general assembly to permit the state to be sued. But it is apparent that when the time comes for the legislature to act upon such a matter, if it is asked to act, it should have the necessary facts upon which to base its decision, and those facts should be obtained by the efficient committee which has been named, headed as it is by a former governor and a former judge.

Confronted with the disclosures which the receiver of the Putnam institution has made the governor has lost no time in setting in motion a movement to get at the bottom of all of Gilpatric's operations.

TAMPA'S SMALLPOX

When the Kiwanis club of Tampa, Fla., sought to have publicity suppressed concerning the smallpox cases in that city it was actuated by the desire to prevent the city from being injured by having people stay away because of the presence of the disease. Its suggestion did not prevail, and the papers have continued to print such news as has developed concerning those cases.

Publicity in connection with the smallpox cases is no more than justice to the people of that city and elsewhere. It is to be realized that the public is entitled to the protection that comes through knowing there are such cases and giving fair warning to keep away from them. It is to be supposed that Tampa is doing its best to prevent the spread and it can be readily believed that the disease was brought there from elsewhere, but that does not justify the attitude of permitting others to go unwarned by preventing the publication of the facts as they exist.

There is no ground for creating undue alarm in the presentation of the news, but it would be grossly unfair to those within and without the city to subject them to possible exposure when such could be prevented by a fair warning. No city likes the publicity which goes with the presence of small pox cases, but it is much better that it should be known and the necessary precautions taken than to try to cover it up and encourage conditions which might have far worse results. Tampa has acted in a way that tells the public to be on its guard, that indicates that there is no cause for alarm and that displays a fairness that must be appreciated by both those who are anxious to avoid proximity to the disease and those who consider themselves immune.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is still a bit difficult to write it anything but 1925.

No one seems to be keeping tabs on Colonel House since he finished his visit at the white house.

The man on the corner says! Has your coal supply dwindled so that you can step into the bin yet?

It is an annual hope with some people that the new year is the year when prohibition will prohibit.

The street cars in Rome are to be banned by the Italian dictator. Some American cities decided on that course only to plead for their return.

Christmas trees are harmless if fire is kept away from them but that seems to be a very difficult thing for some, especially the children to do.

Just because it is claimed that friendship should be cultivated with some snakes isn't going to make them any more popular with some people.

It as reported from New York the miners and operators are firm in their positions. The same might be said of some of the consumers who have declared their "Never again" on anthracite

THE MAN WHO TALKS

One week has now gone since the old year expired. Its thoughts, deeds and intentions, whether good or bad, now belong to an irrevocable past. We cannot change anything now it would for the register is now complete. The volume of 1925 has been read and is now a closed book. We lay that book aside just as we do the old 1925 calendar. As we are at the beginning of a new period it is perfectly natural to turn our eyes, and devote our thoughts to what lies ahead of us. If the past is stereotyped the future is plastic. We can to a considerable extent fashion it according to our desires. One is quite safe in saying that the future as to its main trends are in our own hands. Of course the days that lie before us are full of incidentals, but the Ruler of the Universe has a perfect right to expect that men and women will be bigger than incidentals. In his name they ought to rise up and conquer them.

If we are looking for scriptural authority for taking the forward step we shall find nothing better in the whole range of divine revelation than Exodus 14:15: "And the Lord said unto Moses wherefore criest thou unto me, speak to the children of Israel that they go forward." The chosen people were never told to do a greater thing than that. No people, ancient or modern, can do a greater thing than to step from bondage to liberty. The hour was as critical as it was dramatic, for the mighty host had arrived at the shores of a seemingly impassable sea. The din of Pharoah's approaching chariots was growing louder and louder, it did them no good to take the backward look. They not only heard the rumble of the chariots but saw the figures of the warriors. The pillar of cloud that had protected them by day and the pillar of fire by night was no longer of any avail. Had they come thus far only to be drowned?

Poor human nature at its best is nothing to boast of; at its worst it is something sympathetic. Looked at through the eyes of human frailty was there not some excuse for the complaints of the children of Israel in their present predicament? In a literal sense they found themselves trapped between "the devil and the deep sea." There was some ground for their saying: "Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness?" The complaint touched Moses and he took it to the Lord, but the Lord thought it was better to be stern with the people than to coddle them, hence the command to go forward. As they could neighter go forward nor backward, what were they to do? Now the Lord never commands his people, ancient or modern, to attempt the absolutely impossible. If he gives a command, he makes it possible to obey the command. Hence the uplifted rod which, in the hands of Moses, became the magic wand before which a pathway was made in the sea. Now the children of Israel have only to go forward in the great and holy name of Jehovah.

In some respects our experiences are like those of ancient Israel. We cannot turn about and go back to the old Egypt of 1925. Time has simply closed the door, and Time is more ingexorable than the hordes of any Pharoah. We may not stand facing any Red sea, but we do stand facing "the distant scene" which we cannot see, even though we were to ask. We are like Israel in that we were sojourners in the wilderness. We have had and still have hard tasks to perform. While possibly to most people the past has not been drudgery—certainly not slavery—with many it has been. Taking the world as a whole there has been a steady march away from the lime pits and the slaveholder's lash. The land "flowing with milk and honey" has not yet arrived but humanity is marching in that direction.

This forward step, or, if you please, this journey into the unknown must be actuated by a strong belief. There are hidden dangers in the pathway itself, on either side there will be enough perils to keep one constantly alert, and even above us there will be clouds sufficiently impending to make us ever watchful. One would be foolishly optimistic to believe that there would be no fatalities in the ensuing year. Not only individuals will make fatal blunders but society as well. Even governments will do utterly unreasonable things. Still the statement holds good that there will be no physical, mental or moral victories without the exercise of faith. We must believe that the Creator put us in this world for reasons that are not unworthy of himself, and to emphasize those reasons man must believe in the integrity of his own purposes. The children of Israel crossed the Red sea believing in the magic wand that had made the way possible. Let us believe that the same God is directing us.

Again, it is equally important that we take this forward step with courage. It is most encouraging that we only have to take one step at a time. At least we can see that distance ahead. However dense the fog we can see that one step. It would be altogether different if that one step had to be taken far off into the darkness. We know that the single step ahead will be on solid ground or in the deep water; whether it will be on the level or off the cliff. The other day I saw an elderly lady go nipping along an icy sidewalk, she evidently was fearful that she was going to fall—and she nearly did, several times. She was lacking in courage. I saw a strong man go over that same walk. His step was firm, quick and strong—and he didn't slip. He simply had courage. Let us strike out on this highway firmly and strongly.

This forward journey will be pleasant and profitable to us if we have the rich companionship of our fellow travelers. Probably all told there were over 3,000,000 Israelites who passed over the Red sea. It probably combined all classes and conditions, which doubtless brought to the fore all possible characteristics. God have mercy on the man or woman who goes alone in this perilous journey of 1926! Every person in some way can help someone else, and every person in some way will need help from somebody. God has created us with these mutual dependencies. Remember that it is a part of life to lift up those who have fallen by the wayside; to cheer those who have grown faint-hearted; to rebuke those who have gone wrong; to bring back those who have gone astray; to bind up the wounds of those who have fallen among thieves; to give comfort to those whose eyes are filled with tears and whose hearts are heavy with sorrow; and to point out the way to life eternal to the hopeless.

But most of all we must take this forward step with God. What would we think of a man who should go as an entire stranger into the wilds of the Maine woods on a hunting expedition without a guide? He would not be likely to make such a mistake twice. Some of us remember when we were small we used to go with our fathers into the woods where we would not have thought of going alone. But it was perfectly safe with father. His strong hand held our weak one. He helped us through the brush; he lifted us over fallen trees; he carried us across brooks. In numerous ways he helped us. His eye was ever on us, and under his loving care we were perfectly safe. Let us remember that God as a Father wants us to take Him as our Guide through all the mazes of 1926. Shall we let Him? Our success or failure will depend upon it.

Sunday Morning Talk

"It is Finished."

Life is full of beginnings and endings. Each beginning is the gate to an ending, and every ending the gate to a new beginning. We have come to the end of one year and entered upon another; it was only the passing of one of the milestones that mark the progress of this world toward the consummation of God's plans and purposes concerning it.

In a sense, every ending is a finishing. The year that came to an end on December 31 is finished so far as the opportunities which it offered us were concerned, we cannot go back over a single moment of it—to take advantage of any opportunity at the time it presented itself. But for the most of us last year and all the years that are passed are uncompleted years. We let them go by without doing many of the things that we should have done.

There was one man who was able to say at the end of His life "It is Finished," it was completed. In every year of that life He had done all that He should have done in that year, so that when about to die He was able to look up in the face of God and say "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do."

Paul also was able to say, though in a modified sense, and without including his earlier years, "I have finished my course" and many another since his day has lived the life that enabled him at the end of life to repeat Pauls tribute to the power of divine grace as manifested in his or her life. But no one except Jesus was ever able to present to God a perfect life. The world needs today men like Paul. It was said of Fenelon, that no one could be two hours in his company without desiring to be a Christian; and of Arnot, that his preaching was good, his writing better, but his life best of all. The pure preaching of the Gospel is a great power, but the very basis of power in the pulpit is Godliness in the man, in whom as in Lord Chatham there must be something finer than in anything he ever says. We see this in the influence of the life of the pastor of the church on the people. Seldom indeed does the spiritual life of any church use higher than that of the ministers. What a responsibility therefore rests on the ministry, so to live that they may humbly but boldly say to the people, "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." Such a life always results in many souls for the Master. As a true shepherd is true and faithful for those entrusted to their care. We must be true to God, or how can we lead others to Christ? Let us be true that God may impose to bless other lives.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

SHEEP RAISING IN NEW ENGLAND.

Fifty years ago there were forceful reasons why New England farmers should cease to raise sheep. Great grazing ranges, skilled labor and dry ground were provided by the west at little cost. New England fell from a dominating position as a mutton and wool producer to insignificance—where she stands today. But the economics of agriculture have changed. Today the cheapest grazing land is in New England. The market for mutton and wool is here, brains are here—why not expect a return of the sheep industry? writes Richard P. Holland in the Boston Transcript.

This is the question which the New England Sheep and Wool Growers' association asks of the New England farmer. On his response will depend the life and work of the organization. Of recent years sheep raising and breeding have been considered the unusual thing on New England farms, for two reasons, perhaps. One is that many New England farmers know very little about sheep and think still less about them, and then the overabundance of dogs in this section discourages them. Reason one will be obviated by a clear understanding of the profits and possibilities of sheep breeding. Reason two, it is claimed, should automatically be obviated by a widespread interest in sheep. In so many words, the interest in sheep is all that is needed.

A Farmers' Movement

Thus it becomes the duty of the New England Sheep and Wool Growers' association, which came into being at the union agricultural meetings at Worcester recently, to show the New England farmer the new opportunity in New England which attends the raising of sheep. The association has been formed after two months of careful preparation by a group of interested farmers, in cooperation with state and state college officials. It will afford an occasion for existing New England sheep associations, such as those in Maine and New Hampshire, to work in cooperation.

An Immense Home Market

The new association leaders talk of the immense market in New England for both wool and mutton, now being supplied by the west, almost entirely. Yet New England lambs could be brought to market earlier than those of western origin, and therefore command a higher price. New England wool could be used to supply mills which are in New England now. A very great deal of money which now is spent outside this section could be held here. The association merely asks that a farmer who is properly situated make an attempt with a small flock of sheep.

The association intends to assist in large measure in getting the farmers' lambs to early market. The New England men who seem to be having success with sheep are making a considerable part of their income from the sale of early lambs, which command high prices in the market, especially at Easter time. A good price continues until the first of June, when large shipments from the west begin to arrive. At present the demand for high quality early lambs far exceeds the supply. Last year there were large imports from New York state. The association hopes to put information in the hands of a large number of sheep men as to times when the market supply is low, and let the grower plan accordingly. This will require constant attention to the condition of the Boston market and the many other New England consuming centers.

The Value of Sheep Clubs

By the formation of sheep clubs the New England association hopes to aid county farm agents and extension workers. One of the great drawbacks to increasing the number of sheep in this section is that so few present-day farmers know how to handle them. Through the sheep clubs it is possible to train a new generation of sheep men. The main trouble with New England, it is claimed, is not entirely the great number of sheep-killing dogs, but the very few real shepherds. The association can assist in getting good breed sheep at reasonable prices for "farmers in the embryo," as some of the youngsters are called.

It is not the intention of the new organization to interfere in any way with the sheep breeders' associations which now exist in New England. Rather, the New England Sheep and Wool Growers' association would combine the specialties of each existing organization and encourage the forming of new clubs in sections not now covered. Maine has developed with her association a very efficient wool marketing system. Connecticut the sheep club work and New Hampshire the intricacies of breeding—the combination should be broadly valuable.

Low-Priced Stock Available

The association hopes to serve as a connecting link between farmers who desire to purchase sheep and those who have sheep to sell. Since the decadence of the sheep industry in New England, and where considerable areas are swept almost bare of sheep, it is difficult to secure sheep locally in many instances. One of the great problems which presents itself in this effort to put more sheep on New England farms is how to get good flocks at reasonable prices for the farmer who is new to the industry. Through this cooperative association, the buying of sheep in quantities would be possible and the price lowered to individual members.

Meetings on farms of men who are actually making a success of raising sheep is one of the sane and business-like propositions of the new association. The best proof that sheep raising is a good business venture for New England farmers is on the farms of everyday farmers who are making money on sheep. It is alleged that if the Connecticut valley farmers who are debating the matter of curtailing their tobacco lands would raise sheep on the unused land they would lose nothing, whereas, if they turn to vegetables of any sort they are bound to overload the market for garden products, thus killing their own chances of many another ground farmer.

These men who are pushing the sheep industry in New England ask only a fair trial for sheep on New England farms—and they intend to cooperate with the farmer to the extent of showing him how to make money with his flock, giving him advice as to what breed to raise, etc. True, this is not a hard task, for sheep are the easiest of livestock to raise, not excepting chickens. Breeder Cummings of South Berwick, Me., says: "Start in with a small number of sheep. The one who starts with a great many will be sorry. It is surprising how the sheep industry is growing." Hereupon hinged a main platform of the new organization. It asks the New England farmer to try out a few sheep. Substitute them for poor cattle, or graze them on rocky country, unfit for other stock.

The Profits of Sheep Farmers

Two breeders interested in the spread of sheep culture in New England have been asked to summarize briefly the advantages to the farmer in the raising of these wool and mutton producing animals. Combining the statements of these two men who have made a success of sheep in New England, gives the following:

Sheep pay dividends twice a year, by their lambing and shearing. And sheep will do 75 per cent as its share toward success if the shepherd will do the other 25 per cent. The per cent of profit in sheep depends on the shepherd and may be from one to 200 per cent.

Sheep require no expensive buildings or machinery, all they need is good dry shelter for housing. In spring, when lambing time comes, this is very essential; most of the year they are outdoors.

Rocky and hilly land is best for sheep raising. Land which supports only poor vegetation and would not feed cattle will produce fine sheep. Owing to the fine mastication of their food by sheep, they do not scatter weed seed all over the farm as do cattle with their manure. Sheep manure is rich and valuable for crops. Sheep at night always lie on high ground, where fertilizer is needed.

Wool and lambs are more easily transported to market than other farm products.

Sheep can be made marketable on green forage, such as rape, roots and soy beans at a very low cost to the farmer. Little grain is ever needed for sheep.

From Small Beginnings

John Boyle O'Reilly, a Soldier of Fortune

"The red rose whispers of passion
And the white rose breathes of love."

So wrote John Boyle O'Reilly, who died in 1890 at the age of 46, a poet, a novelist, an editor, soldier, lover of the land of his birth, a man who led the life of an adventurer of the Middle Ages, a fighter for freedom, ready at any time to make himself a martyr, and one whom people knew only to love.

"The singer who lived is always alive; we hearken and always hear," he wrote in one of his poems. If there is any lover of Ireland who is not familiar with the poems of John Boyle O'Reilly, he should go at once to the nearest public library and demand them. In them he will find the music and charm and the spirit of the Celtic race.

When John Boyle O'Reilly was alive he kept the British wondering where he was and what he would do next. The one great thing that he longed for was the freedom of Ireland. At 19 he was in a British regiment, joining, singing songs, making all men love him—and winning recruits for the Irish revolution. Before that, he had stood, as have so many men of genius, before the compositor's case and set type—for he had to make his own way in the world. From a school teacher, father and a talented mother he had gained a fair education; from the air of his native Ireland he had breathed in a love of freedom. He heard the words: "John O'Reilly, you are sentenced to be shot!" but Irishman's luck sent him off to English jails and finally to exile in the hottest part of Australia. Did he die there? Not he! Like the flea, where you thought he was, he wasn't! He slipped the guards, found his way to a boat, and sailed across the Pacific to the United States. [illegible] he came back with a ship and sailed away with those who had been his fellow-prisoners. He had not forgotten them! In the United States he became noted as a poet and novelist, and made a deep impression. In 1884 he wrote a sort of prophetic novel "The King's Men," in collaboration with others and told what would happen in the reign of George V. "Songs of the Southern Seas," and "Songs, Legends and Ballads," contain examples of powerful poetry. The poor Irish lad made himself a great writer as well as a lover of freedom.

Little Talks on Thrift

Patience

A good lesson to learn is that into the scheme of all human progress and all personal upbuilding there must always be a place reserved for patience. It is of the essential qualities of success.

No matter how right or how important any plans may be it requires patience to develop them properly.

Patience has been required in the unfolding of everything worth while. If we look over our lives we can recall countless instances where we have been helped and strengthened by the restraining hand of patience.

It is well to bear these thoughts in mind in connection with the development of thrift. One reason such vast sums of money are swept away each year in reckless schemes and unsound investments is because so many investors lack patience. They do not want to wait over a period of years for their accumulations to grow. They want their profits quickly. They want to make money fast. They want someone to rub the Lamp of Aladin and then behold, as if by magic, their small savings have grown to great fortunes.

Things that are solid and sound do not attain their growth rapidly.

If you are looking for quick riches, for a fortune over night, you will not find it through the patient processes of thrift.

But through thrift you may assure your future. You may have at hand a comfortable sum of money, which, when opportunity comes, may be the means of building you up to great personal success.

Thrift is a manifestation of patience, and therein lies one of its greatest values.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

The Proxy Father.

He was a decidedly proxy sort of an individual. His friends were glad to hear he was to be married because "maybe he wouldn't be as confoundedly proxy any longer," they all hoped.

But marriage didn't help matters any. When the announcements were received that the young man had become a father all his friends said they wished they could see him. He gratefully was a different person. And then he came for a visit. His friends were disappointed. He looked just the same as he always had.

"Well, old man," they said, "How are you ever able to tear yourself away from that new son of yours?"

Not a muscle changed in the man's face. His expression remained the same as he pondered and then said: "Why, I don't know. I get up, dress, eat breakfast and go down to the office just like I always did."

Who Was the Loser?

Christmas an enterprising young man found a note in his stocking to which a check from his father was attached.

"The accompanying piece of paper," the note explained, "which is signed with my name, will serve as a slight Yuletide memento as well as an incentive to progress."

The young man took the check to his bank to cash. Here the teller informed him that the check had not been signed.

Who was the loser in this transaction?

The worldwide interest in radio was illustrated in commerce department figures showing radio goods worth $5,-926,565 were exported during the first 11 months of 1925.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 239 M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

"PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON SEEMS TO BE UNPOPULAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—William E. "Pussyfoot" Johnson, who ended a European tour today, is to be honor guest at a "sudden death dinner," symbolical of the evil effects of drinking.

The dinner, to be held in New York, January 16, was announced tonight at another dinner given by the Anti-Saloon League, which Johnson attended. A mock funeral was indicated as one of the features of the dinner to be given Johnson.

Johnson told the league tonight that British Rotarians in Calcutta had clinked their glasses at him when he tried to "show them the iniquity of their ways," and that an Irish heckler told him during his tour that America "first sent us wooden nutmegs, then bad beef, and now she sends you."

The Gothic mansoin of W. K. Vanderbilt, which is on the opposite northwest corner, was bought last year by Mr. Winter to be removed to provide a site for a 33-story office building.

Capt. Albert D. Smith

Capt. Albert D. Smith, 89, died about 1.30 o'clock this (Saturday) morning at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Perkins, No. 142 McKinley avenue. Capt. Smith, who was a retired merchant tailor, was born in Worcester, December 2, 1836. Sixty-six years ago Dec. 9, 1859 at the parsonage of the Central Baptist church, he was united in marriage with Mary Herrick, a native of Griswold. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1909 and Mrs. Smith died about a year ago.

Immediately after their wedding Capt. and Mrs. Smith located in Worcester and for 18 months he was in the tailoring business in that city. He then came back to Norwich and had since made his home in this city.

In the spring of 1860, Capt. Smith opened a tailoring business here and in 1861 took into partnership Henry Hayes this partnership continuing until 1865. For the next seven years Capt. Smith was in business alone and then formed a partnership with Joseph M. Gilbert. After a successful business life at 140 Main street, the partnership was dissolved in 1907 and Capt. Smith had since led a retired life. For many years Capt. and Mrs. Smith lived at 17 Huntington place.

Although never very active in political life Capt. Smith served four years in the court of common council. Military life appealed to him and in 1865 he enlisted in Co. B of the old Third Regiment, C. N. G. and served as second lieutenant, first lieutenant and captain successively. Later he was chosen lieutenant-colonel of the regiment but was such a favorite with the company, that, at their request he resigned and again became captain of company B.

Capt. Smith had a distinguished record as a Mason. He was raised as one of the charter members of Somerset Lodge, No. 34, F. and A. M., in 1866 and later joined Franklin chapter, No. 4, R. A. M., Franklin Council, No. 4, R. and S. M.; Columbian Commandery, K. T. and Sphinx Temple, Mystic Shrine. For 30 years he was captain-general of the commandery. Capt. Smith, for over 66 years, had been a member of the Central Baptist church.

Surviving are a son, Albert D. Smith Jr., of Hartford, a daughter, Mrs. William R. Perkins, with whom he resided, and two grand children.

FINE BUILDING ADDITIONS ARE PLANNED AT UNCAS-ON-THAMES

Plans and specifications for three new buildings that are to be erected at Uncas-on-Thames are soon to be put out for bids, their erection having been made possible by the appropriation, by the legislature of $150,000 for the buildings and equipment. The plans have been drawn by Cudworth & Thompson, of this city, to provide three buildings of the best modern type for the purposes for which they are intended.

The new buildings are to be a staff house, an infirmary for women and an administration building, in the last named of which will be included an X-ray department, a laboratory department and sleeping quarters for employes.

The staff house is to be placed back of and to the west of the present administration building. This will be a two-story brick building, 32x105, of fire proof construction, with asbestos shingles on the roof. The first floor has two entrances and a central hall the length of the building. There is a living room, 14x30, with fireplace, and off the hall are four double rooms and eight single rooms, with two toilets.

The second floor of the building is a duplicate of the first, the whole providing accommodations for 32 men.

The infirmary for women, which will be of 60 bed capacity, will also be of brick, fireproof construction, and consists of a central section with two wings set diagonally. The central section contains a reception room, 17x34, at the rear of which is the dining room, 14x41, and behind this a serving room, 14x16. There are also examination rooms, four isolation rooms and two nurse stations. The east and west wings are identical and contain the wards, 28x72, with glass enclosed porches, 10 feet wide, along the front and sun porches on the ends. At the rear of the wards are locker rooms and toilets. The infirmary is of one-story building, except for the central section which has four chambers and bath for employes in the second story.

The administration building will be placed on the left or southerly side of the main entrance road. This will be a two-story and ground floor building, 36x81, built of field stone. The first floor will include a reception room, 17x22, with fireplace, off of which open the general business offices, the superintendent's suite and head nurse's office. A connecting corridor leads to a doctor's office, a meeting room, 20x35, and the stairs. On the ground floor of the building are the X-ray and laboratory departments. The X-ray department includes X-ray operating room dressing room, fluoroscopic room, dark room and viewing room. In the laboratory are to be routine and research rooms, dark room, office, drug room. There is also a boiler room on this flood. On the second floor of the building are sleeping quarters for employes. This floor contains a living room, seven ample chambers and two toilets.

ABRAHAM GOLDBERG

Palestine appeal includes the Keren Hayesod, Jewish national fund, Hadassah and Hebrew university.

Mr. Goldberg, the speaker, is one of the leaders of the Zionist movement in America and one of the most prominent figures in Jewish journalism. As an orator he is noted not only for his passion, but for his keen wit and humor.

Mr. Goldberg came to this country in his teens about twenty-five years ago, in the little Russian town in which he passed his early years, he had already won for himself, a double reputation, as a scholar and as a Zionist orator, for Mr. Goldberg is among the few Zionists who came into the movement when to be a Zionist was an unpleasant, if not dangerous departure from the conventional.

He has made several tours to Palestine and has become an authority on existing conditions in Palestine and the various enterprises connected with the building of the Jewish homeland.

Mrs. George Coit Ripley

The body of Elizabeth C. Mann, 82, widow of George Coit Ripley, was brought to Norwich Tuesday and was placed in the receiving vault at Maplewood, in the spring there will be Episcopal committal services at the Ripley family plot in Oak Street cemetery.

Mrs. Ripley died Jan. 3rd, at Maidstone Farm, the home of her daughter, Mrs. Howard E. Atterbury, at Annapolis, Md. Her marriage with Mr. Ripley took place at Harrisburg, Penn. Nov. 14th, 1867. They had two children, Faith, who married Howard E. Atterbury at Buenos Ayres, South America, Sept. 10, 1900, and Eleanor Bucher, who died at Colorado Springs, May 3, 1893.

After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Ripley resided for a time in Minneapolis, where Mr. Ripley was a member of the law firm of Ripley & Lunn. Mr. Ripley was born in Norwich, Aug. 24th, 1839, the sixth of the seven children of George Burbank and Hannah Gardner Lathrop. After his graduation from Yale in 1862 he enlisted in the 10th Conn. Regt., was appointed aide to Gen. O. S. Terry and was on his staff until the close of the Civil War, with the rank of colonel.

After they took up their residence in Norwich, Col. and Mrs. Ripley made their home on Lincoln avenue and for a time owned a model farm in Montville, Col. Ripley driving to Norwich daily to his law office. His death occurred in Norwich, about 20, or 25 years ago. Mrs. Ripley for a number of years thereafter made her home in an apartment in The Huntington, on Broadway. Since leaving Norwich she has resided with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Atterbury, at their beautiful estate in Annapolis.

Her death in her 83rd year caused sorrow to many among the old, Norwich families, who have witnessed the changes and innovations since the dignified Ripley homestead was one of the fine old mansions on Broadway, the center of liberal though ostentatious hospitality. The father of Col. George Coit Ripley, George Burbank Ripley, was a son of Major Dwight and Eliza Coit Ripley, the latter the daughter of Capt. William Coit, captain of militia during the Revolution. The Ripleys were direct descendants of Governor Bradford, of the Mayflower the emigrant ancestor of the family being William Ripley, who, with his wife, two sons and two daughters came from England in 1683. One of the eleven children of Major Dwight Ripley and his wife, Eliza Coit was Eliza, who married Governor and United States Senator William A. Buckingham, of Norwich.

The last survivor of the family to occupy the homestead, 179 Broadway, was Miss Hannah L. Ripley, who died about seven years ago.

OBJECTED TO INQUIRY INTO HIS PRIVATE LIFE

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Refusal of a charter to the April Farm Association, a co-operative colony started in the lower end of Lehigh county and of which Charles Garland, of Massachusetts, is the head, was recommended today by the Lehigh county court. Garland came into prominence when he refused an inheritance of $1,000,000.

A report filed by the court declared the Farm association had no well-defined program and that its purposes as set forth in the application were "unlawful and injurious" to the community. Other criticisms of the court were that its members did not believe in marriage and were opposed to beginning children's education until they were ten years old.

"Charles Garland the author of this scheme and the man who is furnishing the money to make it possible," said the report, "objected to any inquiry into his private life and character. Garland says he is married, but his wife is not living on the farm.

The evasiveness of the witnesses prevented us from obtaining the fullest information. The evidence warrants the inference that this farm may be a refuge for unfortunate women.

FAVOR POSTPONING SESQUI-CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Reports from Washington that federal officials favored a postponement of the sesqui-centennial exposition in observance of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, scheduled to open here June 1, created a feeling of uncertainty today among those directly interested in the project.

Mayor Kendrick was advised by men active in the management of the exposition, that it would be better to postpone it until 1927 and that unless this was done government financial aid might not be forthcoming. The mayor however, declared tonight that he still hoped it would be possible to hold the fair this year.

PLAINFIELD NOSES OUT PROVIDENCE STEAMROLLERS BY ONE LONE BASKET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 8—The Plainfield town team added another game to its long string of victories here tonight in defeating the fast Steamroller quintet of Providence, R. I. 27 to 25, before the largest crowd of the season. In the first half the game was nip and tuck, the scoring being tied most of the time. Walkinshaw of the Rollers scored the first basket of the game. During the first five minutes the home team did not score a basket. After five minutes of play the local quintet found itself and began playing a real game with the visitors. The first half ended with the locals leading 15 to 11. The second half opened with much more vim and vigor than has been displayed on any floor in this state. The crowd got just what they were looking for in this half; plenty of action. The crowd went wild with every basket made by the local five. The score was tied until five minutes before the final whistle, Harry Benson, local guard, scoring the last basket, only a few seconds before the end of the game, which ended with Plainfield leading 27 to 25. No distinction can be made as to who were the stars because everyone who participated in the game was good. The line-up:

HOFF ARRIVES TO COMPETE WITH U. S. ATHLETES

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Charles Hoff, holder of the world's pole vault record and all-around athlete of Norway, arrived in this country today accompanied by his bride of a few weeks, for a three months visit during which he will compete in many of the leading indoor meets.

Hoff is the first of a quartette of foreign athletes who are coming here for the indoor season. The others are Hubert Houben, German sprinter; Adrian Paulen, Holland middle-distance star and George Goodwin, English walker.

Hoff called at the offices of the A. A. U. immediately after his arrival and presented his credentials from the athletic governing board of Norway. His permit from the Norway authorities extends from February 4 to May 4.

He plans to leave on Monday for Hanover, N. H., where he will train under the supervision of Harry Illman, Dartmouth track coach.

Local A. A. U. officials said they had received 22 requests for Hoff's services at indoor meets all over the country but outside of New York, Boston and Chicago, no invitations had yet been accepted.

GOLFERS TALK OF WORMS AND GRASS AT MEETING

CHICAGO, Jan. 8—(AP)—Death to worms and life to grass formed the text of discussion at the annual meeting today of the United States Golf association, delegates listening to experts in eradication and cultivation. The business sessions open tomorrow.

NUTMEGS BEAT NORDICS IN FAST ENCOUNTER

Friday evening at the armory the Nutmegs defeated the Nordics five of Taftville running wild in the last quarter to win by a 41 to 31 score. The game was pretty even throughout the first three periods and the score at half time 18 to 18 in favor of the losers. However, entering the last period with the count 27 to 17 against them, the Nutmegs staged one of the most sensational rallies even seen in these parts when they piled up a total of 24 points while the Nordics were able to connect for but four.

This rally sure showed the wonderful fighting spirit that is characteristic of all Nutmeg athletic teams when they take the old saying that a game is never won until it is over.

For the Nordics Smith with several sensational shots from mid-court, Huston and I. Archibald were the shining lights. The Taftville team were obliged to make the majority of their shots from mid-court of which on a good many of them they were surprisingly successful.

For the Nutmegs Capt. Ellie Segal, Berberich and Goodrow played the best games although Jab Burns and Bergeron also performed well.

TERRIS WINS FROM VINES BY OVERWHELMING MARGIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Metropolitan lightweights scored victories over three opponents in the all-star show at Madison Square Garden tonight, Sid Terris of New York winning the headliner from Lucien Vines, of France, European lightweight champion, by a wide margin in a ten rounder.

In the best match of the card, Joe Glick, sensational New Yorker, was given a shade over Danny Kramer, Philadelphia south paw, in another 10-rounder. Glick won by a narrow margin in a tough slugging match from start to finish.

In an uninteresting ten-rounder, Harry Felix of New York, won over Luis Vicentini of Chile.

ESPOSITO GETS VERDICT OVER NICK MENGER

STAMFORD, Jan. 8.—(A. P.)—(AP)—Mike Esposito, Connecticut bantam champion, tonight won the decision in a ten round bout here with Nick Merger, known as the Greek bantam champion of New York.

In the semi-final Mike Tangallin of New York won on a foul in the first round from "Chick" Dorsey of Westport. The bout was scheduled to go 10 rounds.

TOKYO, Jan. 8—(AP)—The Japan Lawn Tennis association voted today to invite Vincent Richards, of Yonkers, New York; Manuel Alonson of Spain and Takeo Harda of Japan, to play in Japan early this year. Harada is in the United States.

NEW YORK COMMISSION REFUSES TO LET WALKER FIGHT MILLIGAN ON JAN. 22

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—(AP)—Mickey Walker's troublesome toe is still in an official sling.

Despite evidence of his physical fitness, the state athletic commission today refused to lift the ban against the welterweight champion to permit him to go through with his match against Tommy Milligan, British title holder, at Madison Square Garden Jan. 22.

Walker appeared personally before the commision to demand that the commissioners examine his toe, which he contends has fully recovered from effects of an operation but the boxing solons decided to stick to their ruling against the champion without the aid of medical reports.

William Ames of Clifton Mass., manager of Milligan also protested against the commission's verdict contending that Milligan had spent $2500 in coming to this country and fitting himself for the match but his only satisfaction was a promise the board would aid him in obtaining a new opponent for Milligan on the 22nd.

Chairman Farley said Walker was told to appear before the commission in "two or three weeks" for another "examination" after which the ban might be lifted but Ames said after the meeting that Commissioner Muldoom had informed him it would take three or four months for Walker's toe to heal sufficiently for him to fight in New York state.

These circumstances, in spite of the commission's official claim that Walker's toe was the sole cause of its action, convinced boxing men that the underlying reason for cancelling the welter champion's match was a desire to discipline him for failure to accept terms through his manager, Jack Kearns, to meet Milligan on the Christmas fund card. It also was understood that the Rommission's ire was aroused by the match being made for later date without its sanction.

The commission suggested that garden promoters move the Harry Greb-Tiger Flowers middleweight title match forward from February 26 to February 12, if both principals agreed. Flowers is understood to be willing but Greb has made matches which will take him to the Pacific Coast and it is not likely that he will accept a new arrangement.

Gene Tunney, now in Miami, Fla., was advised to fulfill his agreement to meet Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight at Madison Square Garden, March 16. Originally Tunney agreed to face Sharkey, February 8.

Sharkey and Chick Suggs, bantamweight, were reinstated upon request of the Massachusetts boxing commission. Luke Carr of Buffalo was suspended for 30 days for fouling an opponent at Buffalo, New Year's day.

ANDY SMITH, FAMOUS FOOTBALL STAR, IS DEAD

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8—(AP)—"Andy" Smith today passed on to join that shadowy host of one-time American football stars which comprises such names as Frank Hinkey, Walter Camp, Percy Haughton and others, who have preceded him. The All-American fullback of 1904 and head coach of the University of California football team died at six o'clock this morning at Pennsylvania University hospital, of pulmonary ulcers which followed an attack of pneumonia.

Andrew Latham Smith, to give his full name, was 43 years old, and was regarded as one of the greatest football players ever produced at the University of Pennsylvania. He had been head coach at the University of California since 1915, and since 1920 had been producing championship teams.

He came here from California to attend the Pennsylvania-Cornell game on Thanksgiving day, and two days later went to New York to witness the Army-Navy contest. Exposure brought on a severe cold which later developed into pneumonia. Three weeks ago he was removed from his hotel here to the university hospital, under the care of Dr. Robert Torrey, a teammate of Smith's Pennsylvania days. For a time he appeared to improve, but with the development of ulcers he failed rapidly.

Smith's contract at California had expired, but the California authorities had forwarded him a new contract said to call for an annual salary of $12,500. The contract arrived after the head coach had taken ill, and he died without having affixed his signature.

Kent Greenfield Has Very Colorful Career

There is nothing in any story book that a boy ever read any more wonderful than the rise to big league fame of Kent Greenfield, kid pitcher for the New York Giants. Two years ago he was a boy of 18, pitching semi-pro ball in his little old town of Guthrie, Ky. Last summer he was pitching and winning games for McGraw in crucial series of the closing pennant campaign.

Greenfield was born and raised in that hill country of southern Kentucky made famous by Opie Read in his "Kentucky Colonel." He went to high school and played on the town team. He was called to Portsmouth of the Virginia League in 1923. "I had never been 50 miles from my home before I made that Portsmouth trip," declared Greenfield. He had never seen a big leaguer. Before that Virginia League season ended Greenfield was purchased by McGraw. Why? Nobody knows except McGraw. It is certain that Greenfield himself does not know. "My Portsmouth record was nothing to set even a class B league on fire," he said. "I won 11 and lost 11 that summer. If a New York scout came and looked me over, I did not know it."

But that has come to be the way lately. He plucked Travis Jackson and young Lindstrom in their first year the second under big league fire like veterans.

Greenfield was sent to Newark of the Eastern League for during the summer of 1924. Giants went south in the 1925, the Kentucky boy was from his Bluegrass hills to Graw camp at Sarasota, on Florida coast. He showed very well in the exhibition games down there and before even the team left camp McGraw declared that he had a treasure in Greenfield.

To the surprise of everybody McGraw brought the youngster north with him. Nobody was more surprised than Greenfield. "I thought sure I was to be left at Memphis on the way back," he said.

He won 13 and lost eight games last summer, and while this is a fine record for a first year youngster, yet it was not the mere winning percentage that impressed the experts so much with Greenfield. It was the way he won them. He had a way with him on the hill. Tall, supple, strong, he broke his fast curve over the plate like a lance point. He had control. And he had coolness under fire. The more important the game the better he pitched. He won four games from Pittsburgh and lost none. No pitcher in the league was as effective as he against the league-leading Pittsburgh champs.

In fact, Greenfield showed every promise of having everything that a really great pitcher ought to have in the majors. He had the cool and deadly skill of a sharpshooter born to the trade pit. He is only 20 and has a magnificent physique and a courage that the flock of .330 hitters on the Pirate team could not daunt or fluster.

So much for Greenfield, the ball player. The young man himself is a notable character. He is a type. A distinctive type of his country. He is a bashful boy and it is hard to get him to talk at all. But while he is backward in all the little social ways and customs, he is forward enough in a crisis. And herein he is a natural product of the Bluegrass hills. From time immemorial they have had definite and rigid customs in that country. It is bad form for a southern Kentucky to get flustered or excited, or talk loud. He is coolest and most competent when he has a rifle in his hand. They raise them that way down there. In the feud country boys of 16 and 18 kill and are killed with a smile on their lips and a cold glint in their eyes.

Of course, Greenfield would show at his best under fire. He was born and raised that way. They do say that that Ballou boy who showed such nerve while pitching in a pinch for Washington in the last World Series is a southern Kentucky boy. When a kid from that section has class at all, he usually has a whole lot of class.

Kent Greenfield—he is a great boy, and a most likable boy. He may well furnish another one of the pitching classics of the national game. "I had to get the lucky breaks to even get a chance to start a big league game," he said. There may well come a time when pennant contenders will have to get the breaks to beat him in a big league game.

AGGIE FIVE OPENS SEASON WITH IMPRESSIVE VICTORY OVER NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Jan. 8—Overwhelming Norwich 48 to 16 the Connecticut Aggie five got away to an impressive start in its first game of the season here tonight. Taking the lead in the first minute of play the Aggies rapidly increased their total, giving an exhibition of fast basketball that surpassed anything seen here in years for a first nights contest. It looks like another good year for the Aggies basketball team.

Norwich was unable to stop Capt. Makofski and Schoifield tonight. Around home the Connecticut offense was built at the same time the Vermonters were unable to penetrate the rapid forming five man defense of the Aggies in which Allard and Bitgood of Putnam and Danielson respectively played a major part. So close was the Connecticut guarding Norwich was unable to make a field basket in the first half and six was the best they could do for the game. Eddy, a sophomore forward playing his first part in the contest, connected for five from the floor. Connecticut led at half time 19 to 3.

Capt. Makofski made two baskets in the first minute of play, putting his team to the front. The Aggies continued the game and towards the end of the first half speeded up their play. Makofski, Schoifield and Eddy aided by clever passing by Allard sank five baskets in a row. Then with only three minutes remaining to the half Coach Doyle sent in his entire second team. Though not as strong as the varsity in their offensive work the seconds were strong defensively, holding Norwich scoreless.

The Aggies looked better in the second half, scoring at a rapid pace during the 20 minutes of play. Unable to penetrate the Storrs defense Norwich resorted to long shots with Bedell connecting for two from the court.

A feature of the game was Schoifield's passwork, making a pass from his knees half the length of the court to Makofski, who was under the basket, and another back hand pass while closely guarded. In each case they made Connecticut maskets possible.

Capt. Makofski with eight field goals and two baskets from the foul line for a total of eighteen points was the high scorer for the night. He led his team in every sense of the word and played an excellent game. Eastern Connecticut was well represented at the Aggies victory by Allard and Bitgood, who played in the back court. Both played excellent games and without doubt will play regularly for the rest of the season. The line-up:

Many Surprises Feature Boxing Game In 1925

The 1925 season was eventful in boxing. Every division produced a colorful chapter, if not a new champion. Death claimed Pancho Villa, the flyweight champion, on the coast, following an operation for an infected tooth.

Frankie Genaro, thrice victor over Villa, claimed the title, and went to the coast to defend it against a schoolboy fighter, on Fidel La Barba, a product of the amateur rings. La Barba produced a genuine surprise by outpointing Genaro and winning the title decisively. La Barba thus becomes the youngest title-holder in the game.

The bantamweight title shifted heads again. Cannonball Martin, winner over Abe Attell Goldstein last year, bowed to Charlie Phil Rosenberg, present holder. Rosenberg made two notable defenses of his title. He knocked out Eddie Shea of Chicago in four rounds. Subsequently he went to the coast, met California Joe Lynch in a no-decision fight and was badly beaten.

California a reborn power in boxing, was ever prominent in the boxing dispatches of the year, producing a number of stars, including Mushy Callahan, former Jewish newsboy, who handed Pal Moran his first knockout, and Tod Morgan, who knocked out Mike Ballerino to win the junior lightweight championship.

The lightweight division was left without a champion when Benny Leonard, who had already out-grown the division, announced his formal "retirement." This provoked another elimination tournament and the winner proved to be Jimmy Goodrich, a young New York State boy. Goodrich didn't last long, and was dethroned the first time he took on a tough opponent. His conqueror was Rocky Kansub, a veteran of 14 years campaigning in the ring, and a boxer many thought was all through.

Mickey Walker successfully defended his welterweight title against Dave Shade in his only important bout. Harry Greb continued to rule the middleweights with a majestic hand. Tommy Gibbons was beaten by Gene Tunney in one of the surprise results of the year. Tunny, the Greenwich Village idol, knocking the St. Paul Irishman out in the 12th round.

Paul Berlenbach won the light heavyweight championship from Mike McTigue and successfully defended it against Jack Delaney in a sensational fight that marked the opening of the new Madison Square Garden, the largest indoor fight arena in the world.

Jack Dempsey did nothing, as usual, and did it well. Harry Wills was equally inactive. Dempsey and Wills did sign a contract to meet in 1926 but the procedure was so ridiculous nobody took the matter seriously. The guel senor Firpo and the gorgeous Mona. Carpentier spent most of the year in the home lands. Kid Kaplan fought Babe Herman twice in defense of his title and came through with the crown still resting on his brow.

The closing days of the year marked the tragic passing of Battling Siki, the good-natured "jungle boy," who was sent to his death by an assassin's bullet in New York, a few paces off Broadway, the glittering playground he reveled in.

JUDGE HOLDS DECISION IN HAVERICK SNARE CASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 9—After a three-weeks' sit up Third District court of Westerly, Judge Michael J. Turano, came back strong on Friday with a session, lasting from 9 o'clock to 1:15 o'clock in the afternoon. Two cases were tried. Howard W. Swan, deputy commissioner of birds, of Rhode Island, complaintant vs. Alexander W. Haverick, a resident of the town of Richmond, charged with illegal trapping of animals by means of a wire snare, and after a lengthy hearing Judge Turano announced that he would render his decision in a week's time. The other case, in which the defendant was adjudged guilty was that of William L. Kay, deputy chief of police of Hopkinton, complainant, vs. Bolick Puckas of Hopkinton, charged with behaving in an obscene and indecent manner in the Strand theater, Hope Valley, on Christmas night. He was sentenced to 6 months' imprisonment in Rhode Island Reformatory for Men, at Providence. Notice was given of an appeal through his lawyer, Clarence E. Roche, and the young man's father became surety for his appearance, in the sum of $300. The father, a sufferer from heart trouble, collapsed in the clerk's office and had to be conducted to his automobile outside.

Albert A. Noell of Providence, who had previously pleaded "not guilty" to an infraction of automobile laws when in a mix-up with automobile of Joe Girary, changed his plea to "nolo." Attorney John Ferguson, appearing for the town in recommending that a small fine be imposed, said that no unusual question was involved but that of rate of speed. Judge Turano found him guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $34.35, which he paid and was discharged.

Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., read the following: Criminal Docket—Thomas E. Brown, chief of police of Westerly, complainant, vs. Henry F. Narrone, a case of alleged ansiaughter on Nov. 17th. Continued two weeks.

Frank H. Brown, chief of police of Hopkinton, complaint, vs. Harry H. Ullman. Continued two weeks.

Frank H. Brown, complaint, vs. Charles M. Gerber. Continued one week.

Thomas E. Brown, complainant, vs. George Carney, (two cases). Continued one week.

Howard W. Swan, deputy R. I. bird commissioner, complaint, vs. Alexander W. Haverick. Ready.

William L. Kay, complainant, vs. Bolick Puckas of Hope Valley. Ready.

Civil Docket—Old Case—John E. Ruisi vs. Gaetano Naocacato. Case of book account, with no appearance for defendant, and marked defaulted.

New Writs—Harry J. Haggett of Hopkinton vs. George Tanner and Sarah J. Tanner. Surety for costs asked and bill of particulars. Continued two weeks and bill of particulars directed in two weeks.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass company vs. John Hanlan. If unanswered during the day, continued two weeks.

Orubers, Inc., vs. Thomas E. Collins. If unanswered, continued two weeks.

At the opening of the case of Swan vs. Haverick, counsel for the plaintiff asked to have the warrant amended by having the judge sign the writ, which counsel for the defendant said entitled his client to be dismissed. The writ was signed and the trial proceeded.

The wire snare seized and introduced in court as evidence was identified by the plaintiff, Game Warden Howard W. Swan and Deputy Frank Knight and Dept. Game Warden Swan's son, Earl P. Swan, all of whom testified at length.

Counsel for the defendant asked that the complaint be dismissed in that the place was discribed as in the town of Hopkinton when evidence on the stand by Swan had located the place two miles south of Hope Valley. Judge Turano denied the motion. Appearing for the defense beside the defendant was Elmer A. Smith, chief of police of the town of Richmond who described the farm, "Kenyon place," where the snare was found as being in the town of Richmond or about 1 and 1-2 miles south or south east of Hope Valley. Mr. Haverick's son also appeared as a witness and was declared to be the owner of the farm.

In the next to the last match of the intra-club bridge whist tournament of Westerly Masonic club, No. 176, held in the club rooms inthe Potter Langworthy block, on Thursday evening, the team captained by George Broughton beat the team of which Caleb Mudge is the chairman by 2,119 points, in the series thus far Capt. Mudge's team has 103,421 points and Capt. Broughton's 100,533 points, a lead of only 2,889 points.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfer: Jan. 8. Angelo M. Fuarino to Samuel H. Davis, a certain tract or parcel of land on the north side of Oak street, bounded on the north by the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company and east of the property of Joseph Gervasini.

Christ Episcopal church will hold its annual parish meeting in the Church school room on next Tuesday. In former years the annual meeting has occurred on Easter Monday but last year an amendment was made whereby the date for the annual parish meeting was made the second Tuesday in January.

The chimney of the Briggs building, which with every gust of wind sent showers of sparks to the highway in front of the building on Thursday evening, was given more than passing notice by Westerly Fire Chief George E. Egger. When the shower of sparks was brought to his notice he proceeded to notify the adjoining tenants to clear the rubbish from the alleyway. The sparks, it is thought, were caused by the burning of soft coal and the chimney, which is built outside of the building was found to have the bricks on the outside in a heated condition.

The Westerly Historical society held its regular January meeting on Thursday evening in the assembly hall of the Memorial and library building. A not large but interested attendance listened to the talk on bookplates given by Mrs. Aubrey G. Whitelaw, of North Stonington.

Mrs. Whitelaw traced the history of bookplates through the period of 450 years since the invention of printing, showing how many ex libris were coats-of-arms and how closely the course of the bookplate design has followed that of heraldry. She spoke particularly of the earliest American ex libris, of that of Rev John Williams, of Deerfield, Mass., the first owner of a book label in America, and of the bookplates of George Washington, John Adams and William Penn.

The talk was illustrated by the library collection and by enlarged copies of two famous and very early bookplates.

The Alert Hook and Ladder company of Westerly, observed its 42nd annual meeting with supper and election of officers for the ensuing year at their rooms in the Westerly Fire station on Union street on Thursday evening.

James E. Tefft, of Pawcatuck, received a re-election as foreman of the company for another year. One of the bright spots at this year's annual meeting was the presentation of a gold service badge to Joseph McFarlane, on behalf of the company, in token of his period of 10 years' service with the organization. W. W. Barber, only charter member of the company now living, gave a brief address.

The officers elected for the year were as follows: Foreman, James Tefft; first assistant, Daniel Harrington; second assistant, Everett Clark; secretary, George Pendleton; treasurer, Herbert Hoadley; steward, Fred Chappell; flag bearer, Albertus Shippee, finance committee, William Hill and Thomas Patton; memorial committee member for three years, Clarence Kenyon; state delegate, Henry Potter; alternate, Daniel Harrington; investigation committee, Thomas Patton, Henry Potter and Fred Chappell; auditors, Everett Clark, Henry Potter and Thomas Patton.

Private funeral services for Mrs. Anna F. Valentine, widow of George Valentine and mother of Robert Valentine, supervisor of music in the Westerly schools, were held Friday morning at 11:30 o'clock at 8 Spring street, Rev. William F. Williams, of Calvary Episcopal church, Stonington, officiated.

Mrs. Valentine was born in Worcester, Mass., and had lived in Westerly with her son for about 12 years. Her death occurred Wednesday at their home, 8 Spring street, following a brief illness. She was in her 79th year. In addition to the local music supervisor, Mrs. Valentine is survived by one other son, Joseph L. Valentine, of Chicago, a daughter, Miss Florence W. Valentine, of Ashland, Mass., and three grandchildren.

The body was taken to Dorchester Mass., for burial in Cedar Grove cemtery. Honorary bearers were Rev. William F. Williams, Eugene N. Clark and the two sons.

On Sunday evening at the Central Theatre in Pawcatuck, a public reception will be held, for Rev. Fr. J. J. Keane, of New Britain. Fr. Keane was assistant pastor at St. Michael's church here for four years, during which time he achieved many notable projects, including the organization of St. Michael's Boy and Girl Scouts. Just before Christmas he was transferred to St. Joseph's church in New Britain.

The Congregational church Sunday school was in session. The truck was badly damaged but was able to proceed to New London, the destination of the Hebrews, after which all returned and the Sunday school lesson was finished. The two men were loud in their thanks for the help received.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

LEDYARD, Jan. 8—An automobile going at a good rate of speed recently ran over something on the Military highway below the Drawbridge. The Sudden Interruption

The safety of the present may
To danger in a flash give way.
—Peter Rabbit

Peter Rabbit had started to say something, but he didn't finish it. Instead he almost turned a back somersault in his haste to get down inside that hollow log on which he had been sitting. At the same time Jumper the Hare dodged off to one side and then bounded away to the nearest hemlock tree with low-growing branches. Under these he dived.

As Jumper dodged Mrs. Grouse whirred away on stout wings and it was wonderful to see her dodge the trees as she flew. But swift as she was and clever as she was at dodging around and through trees, there was fear in her heart for behind her on swift wings was the cause of the interruption of the pleasant gossip she and Peter and Jumper had been having. There was fear in her heart for swift as she was there was a swifter behind her. It was Terror the Goshawk, and there is nothing Terror likes quite so well as a Grouse for dinner. Mrs. Grouse knows this. So now she trusted to her stout, swift wings only for a minute. Then she plunged down and out of sight in the snow. She was barely in time. A second more would have been too late.

Peter Rabbit, safe in the hollow log, didn't mind it at all

Terror the Goshawk checked himself just in time. He swerved up and alighted on a tall stub. He glared all about. Not a living creature was in sight. It was as if he alone was alive there in the Green Forest. The silence was the silence of a great fear.

"I'll sit here a while," thought Terror. "I must have interrupted a party. With Peter and Jumper and Mrs. Grouse all here it may pay to have a little patience. I'll wait."

So Terror waited. After a bit it began to rain. It was very fine rain. Peter Rabbit, safe in the hollow log, didn't mind it at all. In fact he wouldn't have known it was raining had he not poked his head out to see if Terror was still about. Jumper the Hare knew it was raining, but didn't care. Under those hemlock boughs was like being under a roof. Peeping out he could see Terror the Goshawk, so he remained right there. Only Mrs. Grouse knew nothing of the rain. She was very comfortable down there under the snow and she intended to stay there until there was no chance she, Terror would be waiting. So she wasn't at all worried. But she didn't know about the rain. Had she known about the rain she might have been worried at least a little. She certainly would have worried when the weather turned cold and the fine rain began to freeze as soon as it fell. It was not long before a crust over the surface of the snow.

Terror, the Goshawk soon flew away to seek supper. This sort of weather took away his appetite. Jumper too. Peter remained where they were, for they were protected and comfortable. And Mrs. Grouse remained where she was under the snow because she was comfortable and safe. At least she thought she was safe. She couldn't think of any enemy likely to find her there.

Now, Peter Rabbit didn't think anything about Mrs. Grouse. Even if he had there was no way in which he could have let her know that she really was in the greatest of all dangers for her, the danger of being made a prisoner under the crust. Jumper didn't think anything about Mrs. Grouse. A crust never bothers him, so he didn't think of what it might mean to her. And all the time the rain fell and then the air grew colder and colder. A thin crust formed on the surface of the snow. This thin crust grew thicker and thicker and harder and harder. And all the time down beneath it Mrs. Grouse squatted down in warmth and comfort, and was thankful for the snow that aided her to escape from Terror the Goshawk.

GLASSES TO FIT THE OCCASION

The popular shell eyeglasses and spectacle frames are splendid for sport wear. But they are distinctly out of place at theatres, dinner parties or any formal or semi-formal affairs.

Well-dressed women and men pay particular attention to this important detail. They know that they need two or more pairs of glasses to suit different occasions. And the extra pair is an added convenience when they break a lens.

Make our office "style headquarters" for your eyes. We will gladly provide additional information.

POETRY

Twilla

She roves through shadowy solitudes,
Where spotless harbs and fragile flowers
Rise in the gloom that ever broods
Around her sylvan bowers.

No winds amid the branches sigh;
No footfall wakes the sudden ground;
And the cold streams that hurry by
Flow on without a sound.

Strange, voiceless birds from spray to spray
Flit silently and all day long
The dancing midgets round her play
But sing no elfin song.

The haunting twilight ebbs and flows;
Chill is the night, wan is the morn;
Through this dim wood no minstrel goes,
No hunter winds his horn.

No panting stag seeks you dark pool
No shepherd calls his bleating sheep
From sunburnt meads to shadows cool
And grasses green and deep.

Across her path, from reed to reed,
The spider weaves his gossamer;
She recks not where her footsteps lead
The world is dead to her.

Her eyes are sad, her face is pale,
Her head droops sidewise wearily;
Her dusky tresses, like a veil,
Down ripple to her knee.

How many a cycle hath she trod
Each mossy aisle, each leafy dell!
Alas, her feet with silence shod
Ne'er flee the hateful spell!
—James Benjamin Kenyon.

Winter-Wood Wish

Give me the peace of winter woods, when the freezing skies
Draw dimly down through the lofty-hooded trees;
There, is the tiniest bush draped rare with priceless lace—
There, twigs frost-flowered, sway in the naked breeze.

Give me the white woods' wisdom, that I may view
The heated fluttering of some stray-falling leaf
That trembles down through the hushed sleep of silence—
So may I look upon a passing grief.

Give me white moments . . lastly . . . moments that gleam
Like the feathery loveliness of a snow-locked stream.
Agnes Choate Wonson in the Boston Transcript.

A careful analysis of cancer statistics gathered by the United States census bureau over a period of about twenty years in ten eastern states reveals definitely that cancer mortality is from 25 to 30 per cent. higher than it was about twenty years ago, according to Dr. J. W. Schereschewsky, of the United States public health service, who made the statistical analysis and reported it to the American Medical association. "There has been a pronounced increase in the observed death rate from cancer in persons forty years old and over in the ten states comprising the original death registration area," Dr. Schereschewsky said. "Part of this increase is due to greater precision and accuracy in the filing out of death returns, but the remainder is an actual increase in the mortality of the disease."

THE HOMEWARD TRAIL

Like sailors, whose world-port voyage
Grows sweeter as journey ends,
We see now the motor campers
Back-tracking to home and friends.
Each mile seems a mile grown longer,
As over the trail they speed;
Each night in the tents unwelcomed,
A health been they do not need.

Outbound, the trail was a short one,
New scenes were over a lure;
But, somehow the backtrack stretches
Miles lonely and insecure.
Each heart has a fear that something
May happen before they find
New joy in that age-old gladness—
Home harbors they left behind!

Thoughts come of delights unnumbered
Off nights in their tent-abode,
When they, with companion travelers,
Sang songs of the open road.
New friendships were made and welcomed,
All under a starlit sky,
But, just as do passing gypsies,
They met and then said good-by.

Trees turning from green to golden,
Fields changing to tints of brown,
Gave proof of a summer waning—
First hint to run back to town.
So now, with an urge to hurry,
They welcome the homeward call;
Each seeking that place Back Yonder—
The happiest tent of all!

Looking Back

There's a little red schoolhouse just over the hill
With a flagpole in front, and a tiny old mill
Close beside the burnt wreck of the square yard.
And a belfry on top like a sentry on guard:

Like a shrine by the roadside awaiting the day
When the children return from their long summer play,
Just as once you and I found our way down the lane,
With our books in our arms, to its shelter again.

And I'm wondering now how the bell sounds this year:
If it's still just as sweet and still echoes as clear:
If the xmas is as green, and the flagpole as tall;
If the voices still sound just the same in the hall?

And I think of Cecelia, with short duffy hair,
Like a spray of late goldenrod, slender and fair:
How she lisped just a bit, and she blushed at us all,
And I carried her books for her all the fall.

In the winter her folks moved away, and in spring
There was something so empty—the birds couldn't sing.
And they all seemed to mourn her as deeply as I,
And my eyes couldn't see any blue in the sky.

Then the summer, again with its swimming and play,
And the ripening fields and the breath of the hay:
But I'm wondering now how the bell sounds this year,
And echoes the thoughts that the past has made dear!

Grace Darling

'Twas on the Longstone lighthouse,
There dwelt an English maid,
Fore as the air around her
Of danger ne'er afraid:
One morning, just at daybreak,
A storm-tossed wreck she spied,
And though to try seemed madness,
"I'll save the crew," she cried.

Refrain
And she pulled away o'er the rolling sea,
Over the waters blue,
"Help, Help!" she could hear the cry
Of the shipwrecked crew!
But Grace had an English heart,
And the raging storm she braved,
She pulled away 'mid the dashing spray,
And the crew she saved.

Though to the rocks were clinging
A crew of nine all told.
Between them and the lighthouse
The sea like mountains rolled:
Said Grace, "Come, help me, father,
We'll launch the boat," said she.
Her father cried: "'Tis madness
To face that raging sea."

One murmured prayer: "Heaven guard us."
And then they were afloat.
Between them and destruction
The planks of that frail boat.
Then spoke the maiden's father,
"Return or doomed are we."
But up spoke brave Grace Darling:
"Alone I'll brave the sea."

She bravely rode the billows,
And reached the rock at length,
She saved the storm-tossed sailors,
In heaven shine their strength
Come to tell the wide world over
What English pluck can do
And sing of brave Grace Darling
Who nobly saved the crew.

Shine Just Where You Are

Don't waste your time in longing
For bright impossible things,
Don't sit supinely yearning
For the swiftness of angels wings
Don't yearn to be a rushlight
Because you are not a star
But brighten some bit of darkness
By shining just where you are

There is need of the tiniest candle
As well as the starish sun
When it is worthily done
The humblest deed is ennobled
That may never be called to brighten
The darkness yonder afar,
So fill for the day your mission
By shining where you are

Like Calls to Like

If you walk as a friend, you will find a friend
Wherever you choose to fare:
If you go with mirth to a far strange land,
You will find that with it there.

For the strangest part of this queer old world
Is that like will join with like,
And who walks with love for his fellow men
An answering love will strike.

If you walk in honor, then honest men
Will meet you along the way:
But if you be false, you will find men false
Wherever you chance to stray.
For good breeds good, and the bad breeds bad:
We are met by the traits we show,
Love will find a friend at the stranger's door
Where hate would find a foe.

For each of us builds the world he knows,
Which only himself can spoil,
And an hour of hate or an hour of shame
Can ruin a life of toil.
And though to the utmost ends of earth
Your duty may bid you fare,
If you walk with truth and a friendly heart,
You will find friends waiting there.

Be the Best

If you can't be a pine on the top of the hill,
Be a scrub in the valley—but be
The best little scrub by the side of the rill.
Be a bush if you can't be a tree.
If you can't be a "Muskee" then just be a bass,
But the liveliest bass in the lake.
We can't all be captains, some have to be the crew.
There's something for all us here.
There's work to be done and we're all got to do
Our part in a way that's sincere.
If you can't be a highway, then just be a trail,
If you can't be the sun, be a star,
It isn't the size you win or fail;
Be the best whatever you are.

CLUB NO. 2'S MEETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: In spite of the three days of wet, sorry weather a good number was out for dinner at I. O. O. F. hall with Club No. 2 Wednesday. The usual good dinner was served which proved so by the way it vanished, after Hope and her many helpers put it on the table. The program was well carried out with music by Joan and Black Eyed Susie, singing of the popular tunes of the days long ago, reading of pieces by different ones and a few sets of square dances. Everyone seemed to be happy in whatever part they took in the days' program.

Theoda: It seemed good to see the door open and your bright smiling face come in. Glad to have you and any others of Club No. 1 visit us.

Silent Reader: Was glad to see you had your name to a letter in the Corner page but more pleased to see you at the Corner meetings. I enjoy our chats over the phone. Call any time.

Annette: The linen cover you had with the cream cake I have at the store. You can call for it any time you are down in Norwich.

Necia: We all miss you. Isn't hubby so you can come out for a little while?

Scarlet Feather and Peaceful: Glad to see you had joined the Corner. Welcome by all.

White Dawn: Hope you are feeling better and will be out soon.

U. C. E.: Was sorry to learn you were kept in by a bad grip cold.

To a Social Corner Member: I wish to thank you for my lovely 1926 calendar. It is very pretty and has a nice greeting on it, also for Wetona's calendar Christmas card. I thank each and every Social Corner Sister who remembered me with Christmas and New Year cards.

All those who have had dear ones go out of the home circle and all sick and shut-ins have my kindred thoughts and sympathy. Wishing all a happy and prosperous New Year.

CALLA LILY Club No. 2.)

A BLACKBOARD TALK

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: If you have not a regular blackboard in your kitchen or some other room in the house, you can easily make one with the wall board and blackboard enamel. A good one can be made for little money. Keep a quotation on the board all the time. Then memorize them: the children can memorize them also. Put a new quotation on every few days.

Also keep a record of the milk drinking contest. Children are always enthusiastic over a contest, especially when there is a public record of it. You may also have tooth brushing contests and health rule contests: in fact all sorts of contests for enthusing the children in acquiring good habits, (or breaking bad habits). And mother, be sure to be one of the participants in all these. Father, too, when possible.

On special occasions like Christmas the board makes a good space for decorations of all sorts suitable for the special day. A Christmas picture on the board would add much to the Christmas spirit in the home, and on the other occasions all through the year.

Of course a blackboard is a source of much amusement for the little folks just learning to mark and write. It is fine for a family bulletin and a general memorandum. There are many other uses to which a blackboard may be put. Having ones used one you will find it quite indispensable.

BIG BEN.

CURE FOR THE DRINK HABIT

Dear Sisters: At the request of E. L. McD. I am sending a drink cure.

Pulverize one pound of fresh quillred Peruvian bark and soak it in a pint of diluted alcohol; strain and let evaporate down to a half pint. For first and second days give one teaspoon every three hours (too much causes head ache, and in that case I would give half teaspoon doses;) on fourth day reduce to 15 drops, and then to ten and then to five. Seven days will cure the average case, though some require a month.

I have copied the above remedy from a reliable source and would be happy to know it would help somebody.

KINDLY.

WANTS TO HEAR FROM MORE MEMBERS

Dear Social Corner friends: Happy New Year greetings to all, our editor included. Now the holidays are home and gone, hope the delinquent sisters will get busy and write their monthly letters to the Corner, and keep the page full for none of us want to be classed as slackers.

E. L. M.: So glad to see an article from your pen. Have been thinking lately of you and wondered what had become of you. Glad you are not letting your ink bottle freeze up.

Interested Reader: Where are you? Have been watching for an article from your locality. Don't see it coming.

Lorna: Sorry to hear you are in the sick list. Hope you will soon be able to get out of doors. Pretty is sorry you don't improve quicker.

Maple Leaf: Have been looking for a call from you. Hope you are not froze up.

Eca: Why don't you do your bit? You know to be a good sport you must write up something occasionally. You don't want to be a back slider, do you? Write up an article about some of the trips you have taken—the trip to the Catskills for instance.

Black Eyed Susie: I hope to be able to meet with you at the next meeting as I have a little business to attend to.

Ormandine: What a nice Christmas you did have. I enjoyed reading about it.

Sassy: I too, enjoy reading about Susie and her boy friend. I see Susie is quite a reader, she must have followed Kip and Alice right along day after day. So did I.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

DRESS TODAY AND YESTERDAY

Dear Cornerites: One sister wrote concerning the way the girls dress today, "how terrible the flappers look."

You know I think the other years came in for the same criticism that we hear hurled at those of today. I have daguerrotypes of members of the family who had short sleeves and very low necks, While the styles of 60 years ago might not have been immodest, they were decidedly unsanitary with the high collars, the bustles, the trailing skirts, the pulled in corsets, the preposterous rats. The hats were certainly uncomfortable as well as ridiculous, yet the mothers and sisters dressed that way.

You say the men abhor the way the women dress with their thin and fat legs showing. Let us give men a little credit of clean thinking. I can't believe as you say every man is thinking the way women dress. I truly think men are so familiar with the short skirt and thin hosiery that they do not give them a thought. I can recall styles that were far more suggestive. Of course I agree with you that some women carry the styles too far, you might say extremes, but really it is not on account of these styles. You know if they didn't have these styles the same women would invent ways of expressing themselves. So let us refrain from condeming all the girls for what one in a hundred seems to do. If short skirts and also tight ones are in style, you can rest assured that some will decide that they are going to wear them a little shorter and a little tighter than any to be found in a fashion book.

I see quite a few girls of different types and they all look very much alike to me as to dress. I look at their pretty fresh faces and I have yet failed to find any terrible marks there made by their style of dress.

Don't you think dear sister we overestimate the harm in a number of these things? You will see refined young men marry the girls who wear these styles, and many of these men would not care to have them dress otherwise.

I tell you what I think, it isn't the young girls that shock you as much as the women with mature figures that should be censured. If some of them could "have the gift to see themselves as others see them," and see how ridiculous they look they would make a change in their costume right away.

When I was a girl people shook their heads and said all they could about the hideous corset and the bustle. That epidemic came to an end when bangs were subject. You talk about bobbed hair, the women of olden times use to shave off their eye brows. You remember the little ditty—Said Aron to Moses, "Let's cut off our noses" said, Moses to Aron "It's the fashion to wear em." I guess dear sister we will have to stalk along and believe our girls can still be nice despite dame fashion and not say too much about it. I really think women never dressed so sensibly, so hygienically as now.

I look over the fashion books and I fail to find an immodest gown.

I don't want to disagree with you dear writer. If I knew your name I would send this to you. I must express my views and I know you expected it. Let us not worry over our girls. Seems to me one writer says "they are criticised more than any generation I can recall." Don't you think if we had been critised as much as they, we would have been like mules, we would have been so stubborn. They wear the clothes that they buy in shops. You can't make them wear the old fashioned basques, long skirts and all the other hideous fixings. They must dress as the majority of people. I believe the human nature in them is above any style of dress and in the end will win.

Of course these styles will pass away and some other takes their place. I do not think it is dress that causes the evil. We will have to dig down into the inner life.

Kindly overlook our disagreement for I admire the spirit that prompted you to write and while this has nothing to do with our recipes it is a help just the same.

Black Eyed Susie: I am sending you a box.

I recived a card from someone of the Corner who lives away from here. If she would send her name I would like to send her a box of sweet peas. (Signature at end)

SPREADING HAPPINESS

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I am sending a New Year's resolution which was carried out in 1925, and which will be continued in 1926. We all know how good it is to receive a letter from an old friend—maybe one not heard from in 10 or 15 years, more or less. Make out a list, first of relatives, then friends who communicate already, and then start a new list. I have three new ones for 1926. One of them, an elderly aunt in the old country, one a girl, just married, whom I last saw 14 years ago, and the other a cousin who used to visit frequently at my old home 17 years ago.

My sister, who lives near the aunt I have mentioned, writes: "If you only knew how very pleased Aunt Helen was with your letter. Do write to her again." And when asking my girl friend for the other's address, she wrote: "Oh, I know how more than delighted Carrie will be to get a letter from you." The cousin I have mentioned has dropped from the family circle and lives in northern Canada. Her mother died and I obtained her address and wrote my sympathy a few weeks ago. She replied with the dearest letter, enclosing a number of snapshots.

Do this thing systematically. Use a note book for the purpose, making a note of each one written to, with the date. Leave opposite each a space for "Answers," also with dates. Mark your envelopes "Answered," too, in big letters. Remember a "few lines" is always welcome. Do not excuse yourself this year with "I have no time to write letters." Add to your list as often as possible and my plan will bring a great deal of happiness to those we love and to ourselves also.

The Corner has been so helpful to me that I feel I would like some of the column readers to gain this way of making happiness.

BAKED CHICKEN

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I see last week's page lacked letters, but I know every one has been busy. I should have had a letter in before Christmas. I sent out many cards and letters and one for the Social Corner. But that one reached my waste basket as a few days ago it came back to me without any stamp on it. So now I will try again. This is the way I bake chicken. I have a ten quart boiler that came with my fireless cooker. I use that as it keeps in the steam and bakes so nice without basting. I cook it in the oven. I cut up the chicken, rub salt and pepper all over it, put in very little water, lay a few slices of bacon or pork on it and put in the oven to bake. I make the dressing and put that in a sieve, put some bacon on top of it and after the chicken is cooking good I set the sieve with the dressing in it with some pieces of bacon on top of dressing, right on the chicken.

It is very nice this way and no burnt up hard meat—all so tender. Ain't the dressing isn't all over the chicken and can be taken out into a dish, and the chicken is all cut up ready for the table. Hope some one will try it this way and see how nice it is.

ARIES: The letter I wanted you to get also reached the waste basket. So will try again. Many thanks for directions to Square rock. Will look it up when summer comes again. Suppose I call at your home and take you along too?

Balsam Fir: Received your card. Are you snowed in? We have had but very little so far, having a warm forgy spell just now.

Rural Aunty: How are you? Glad to hear from you. See you still enjoy your radio. We were asked down to Coventry to hear one some night, and I said I didn't like to drive well enough at night for that so I was told they would come and get us. But I said no thanks. They are going all around us all the time, with out going so far.

Lottie K: How are you? Did you get the calendar?

Annie R.: How are you all? And the cat family? I wish you all the happiest kind of a New Year.

LONGING FOR THE LONGER DAYS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am a dreadful neglectful member. I have not written a letter for many months and have not been to a meeting since last spring but have had very good reasons for not doing these things. Sickness and with myself and the family and lots of company have taken my time but always think of you on "meeting" days and am always in a hurry to read the letters every Saturday and will add my bit today. I received quite a few cards from sisters on my birthday, for which I wish to thank one and all. My birthday comes very near Christmas which makes it very inconvenient but I had nothing to say about when my birthday was to be so have to put up with it. Never the less I received many nice and useful gifts for both birthday and Christmas. I always have loved Christmas the best of all holidays. I just love to make and prepare gifts for friends and relatives and give them if they are only simple ones when love and kind thoughts go with them. I told some one that I commenced 11 months before Christmas to make and pick up things as I saw them and after all I was not quite ready then but got along all right. We had a nice tree and small daughter and husband came home and my son and family were all her with many friends. We had a most enjoyable time.

Now after I have sewed a bushel basket full of carpet rags and finished piecing two quilts I am going to commence work again, hoping the family circle will not be broken by then. I am longing for the days to grow longer and the sun to get brighter. I go out very little but am going to try to get out doors more as I think it good for any one and But has almost promised to go to the Social Corner meeting in February.

I remain as ever
MA OF GREENE GABLES.

DURING THE NEW YEAR

Dear Corner Editor and Sisters: The most fascinating time of the year, to me, is here. The calendar on my desk is so fresh and clean and—just opened—I want to thank a Corner Member for it. A New Year in which to start all over again. And this year I am not going to be like Lot's wife, stand looking back at what is past and can not be recalled. It is over. And while it held something of sorrow and failure as well as joy and success, I shall not waste time idly in looking back; my face is to the future.

There are many things I want to accomplish in 1926. One thing stands out plainly in the foreground. That is to adjust myself to those with whom I come in contact instead of trying to change their ways and opinions to conform with mine.

I wonder if there is one of your readers who has a circle of acquaintances without the one who goes about saying: "Oh, I am blunt; I always say just what I think and my friends have to make the best of it, and take me just as I am." And the one I know is an indefatigable "uplifter." Criticising the way we wear our hair, our method of worship, our opinions of this world and the one to come. And, oh, her words cut and sting like the lash of a whip. And I don't want to be like her! I want to tread softly instead of roughly crushing my way through, heedingless as to whose feelings I hurt.

All through this beautiful year ahead I want to remember the rights of others, knowing they have the right to their opinions as well as I have to mine.

I wish the Corner happiness and continued success. It is a source of such pleasure as well as help to many.

MARTHA.

THE NEW YEAR

Dear Social Corner Friends: Just a line to wish you all a happy New Year. I hope you all had a pleasant Christmas. One that will leave pleasant memories for a long time. Now we are at the point where we naturally look forward with confidence, hoping and expecting to accomplish many things which we have failed to complete in the past year, and so we take a retrospective view and try to see how we can improve our time and talents in such a way as to do more good in the world.

There is a little new year waiting,
Waiting to fill the old year's place,
And though his step is hesitating,
There is a smile upon his face
Summer and spring will both adorn him,
Fires of autumn will bring him cheer
The year is dead, but who can mourn him,
There's a new year.

With love and kind thoughts for all.

PLENTY OF SUNSHINE AT CLUB No. 2'S

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: What a nice time we had at our meeting of Club No. 2 last Wednesday. It was so nice to see so many out on such a bad day. We had plenty of sunshine inside even though it was so dreary outside and I hope to see many more there on Feb. 3rd. Let us hope the weather man will bless us with sunshine on that day.

Scottie: Is the baby still crying?

Mayflyare: No one can have the blues where you are.

Necia: Where are you? Does the sick one keep you home? Hope to see you at our next, also all who belong to Club 2. All Social Corner sisters are welcome. Bring your fancy work and come prepared to spend the day with us. Leave your errands for another day.

Yours for the success of Club No. 2.

WETONA.

FOR WINTER EVENINGS

Dear Cornerites: Cold weather is with us, keeping us indoors for the greater part of our evenings, and I wish to offer a suggestion as to a most profitable and pleasureable way of spending them.

My husband and I were married at the ages of nineteen and eighteen respectively, before either of us had had time to finish out educations in schools. Since then he has been working days and studying for a profession nights, and I have been kept busy with a little daughter, so that time for reading has been limited. However, after the baby has been put to bed, I take from the bookcase the last book we have started together, and read a chapter or two while he does the mechanical things on his lessons, or he reads to me while I prepare the Sunday dinner, and in his other leisure moments. So far we have read only the standard and approved works of fiction, as I think they are best to balance his days of hard mental concentration, but for those whose work demands more of the physical, history, biography, travel, all are good literary food. Needless to say, we do not do this to the exclusion of the theatre or the enjoyment of the outdoors.

I think if more people would read together to a certain extent, there would be less bickering, more broadmindedness and good fellowship, and in a home where there are children of school age, a stimulus to seek the better things in literature, concerning which too much cannot be said.

J. I. C.

SMILE

Dear Corner Sisters: Each week I read the Corner page and benefit from the suggestions found there. Perhaps some hearts may be made lighter if they adopt an idea of mine, which is to smile as many times during the day as possible; not affected little smiles, but good broad, honest hearty ones. And above all, do not be afraid of laughing.

Laugh about everything and anything; a good laugh is a wonderful health tonic and is tremendously beneficial for those about you.

Smiles in the morning help husband start the day better. And send the children off to school feeling happy by smiling as they kiss you good-bye, and smile again when they return for luncheon.

By the single expedient of a smile you can keep a whole household happy; vice versa by frowning, everyone can be made miserable. Allow your spirit of love, fun and kindness to be stronger than the flesh; make people feel that inner something which radiates from you in smiles and lights up your eyes.

My opinion confirmed by personal experience, is that a woman can be a tremendous power in her own home, as well as elsewhere, if she only learns to smile and see the bright side of things. A happy New Year to all.

NORMA

LEAVING IT TO OTHERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Pals: New Year greetings to all. Thanks to the kind member for my pretty calendar. We have had a great many pleasant gatherings since last I wrote to the Corner and no doubt many are like myself in thinking someone surely will send in an account of the meetings but as time goes on and the report fails to appear we can see where we too have failed to do our bit.

The past summer was a most delightful one for me and nearly all in my family. We took many trips of interest both on business and pleasure. On the whole 1925 was a busy year, therefor a happy one.

For the New Year

"To leave the old with a burst of song
To recall the right and forgive the wrong.
To dare to go forth with a purpose true
To the unknown task of the year that's new
To help a brother along the road,
To do his work and lift his load
To add your gift to the world's good cheer
Is to have and to give a glad New Year."

HOPE COBYNE.

AN ECONOMY SUGGESTION

Dear Social Corner Editor and members: The first thing I do Saturday mornings on opening my Bulletin is to look over the Social Corner. This is one of my own discoveries and as I have never seen it in print am sending it in.

When my husband's shirts wear out around the neck where the stiff collars come in contact, instead of patching the shirt, I iron it carefully, then rip out the front piece and raise it just enough so that the second button and button-hole become the first. Then I put the fronts back into place again. This is all surprisingly easy and quickly done. I then add another button and button-hole to the bottom and, if necessary, a narrow strip across the bottom to make up for what has been cut off the top. But I seldom find this necessary.

In shirts bought ready made I use the shirt front as a pattern and in shirts I made I use the best pattern I also at the same time turn the cuffs.

Mending a shirt in this way gives it as neat an appearance around the neck as when new and gives double wear to the shirt.

Instead of using the half worn out material for other purposes it is put to use in its original capacity until entirely worn out, which I consider a more true economy than spending time and expense making it up into something else.

May it be a prosperous and healthful New Year for all of the members.

FRED'S WIFE.

MAY PEOPLE BE MORE ENIAL

Dear Social Corner Friends: Another year is at hand. Let us hope it will be a banner year, may the people be more genial. It costs nothing to say Hello Jim or Hello John, Good morning Dorothy, and How do you do, Sarah, but it leaves a good impression. People love to be noticed and respected. The good will of a dog is better then a bark or bite. Is it not time for all to "Honor thy father and thy mother?" Give a neighbor a helping hand in time of need. Just a few minutes labor at the right time might save a home from fire. A kind act is never forgotten, an injury is on the same line. Let's bury the hatchet handle and all. Let us clasp hands the coming year and be friends and say "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men."

Many thanks to the Bulletin company for the little Yellow paper just received. It is my first New Year's present.

Kentucky Wonder: It was good to see your letter in the Corner page once more. Do not take such long vacations between letters the coming year.

Brave: Many thanks for the Christmas card, hope these lines will find you much improved if not fully recovered from your recent illness.

A happy New Year to all. From one of the old, old writers.

RURAL DELIVERY.

STARTING THE NEW YEAR RIGHT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It is a long time since I have written to the Corner, but hope Mr. Editor you have not crossed my name off the roll.

Many ways have taken up my time and with others to look after I am kept on the move all the time.

Just now in the beginning of a new year so I thought I would start anew and see if I could not try at least to write every month. I would not want to say this to others but anyway this is one of my ideas to be carried out.

I can not say that I can keep it up but any way I am going to try.

Today is the Corner day and I hope many will try and come out and make the event a pleasant one. In looking over my church calendar this past week I came upon a little poem which I think is very good for the new year.

It reads like this:

Address to the New Year

O good New Year! we clasp
This warm, shut hand of thine,
Loosing for ever, with half sigh, half grasp,
That which from ours falls like dead fingers twine.
Ay, whether fierce its grasp
Has been, or gentle, having been, we know
That it was blessed; let the old year go.

Friends, come thou like a friend;
And, whether bright thy face,
Or dim with clouds we cannot comprehend,
We'll hold our patient hands each in his place.
And trust thee to the end.
And knowing thou leadest onwards to those spheres
Where there are neither days nor months nor years.

—Dinah Mulock Craik.

Yours truly for the Corner.

A NEW WAY TO FIX SHOES

Dear Social Corner Writers: Although past Jan. 1, it is not too late to wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year.

Now that the hurry of getting ready for Christmas is over, perhaps our Corner page will be filled once more.

I wish to thank the sisters who sent me birthday and Christmas cards.

So many helpful ideas are in the letters. I will send one that I tried as an experiment hoping it may help some one.

The shoes that I was wearing every day were all good except the sole had come off and as I was not going where I could get them fixed and did not want to spare them long enough to send, I had a bottle of iron glue from the ten cent store. I had been mending furniture with, so said, "I am going to try it on my shoes." My husband laughed at me and said it would not work, but I tried it. That was two months ago and I have worn the shoes every day since and they are as good as ever.

I very much wanted to attend the December meeting in Willimantic but could not so thought of you all day. I knew Aunty No. 1 and Biddy would make ideal hostesses. May 1926 prove a pleasant one for all.

DORINDA.

A FINE SUGGESTION

Dear Social Corner: I have a little suggestion I would like to offer that may be the means of helping some of these tired little mothers.

I have raised six children and know something of what it means after wearing hard all day to have a lot of playthings to pick up.

So I got a nice square box (wood is the best,) about a foot square, then big brother printed the child's name on it, drew pictures and flowers all in pretty colors, until it looked quite attractive.

Then I explained to the child that it belonged to him or her, and that all playthings were to be kept in it when not in use.

When through playing, mother must insist upon the child putting everything in box, and by so doing there will be no playthings for tired mother to pick up and the house will always look tidy and neat.

It is surprising how much the children think of their boxes. We older folks like cedar chests or trunks to keep our treasured things: It's the same with the child, I have seen my children as they grew older dislike to part with it.

A happy New Year to all.

A MOTHER.

ANOTHER SLACKER HEARD FROM

The Editor and Social Corner Sisters: If it is not too late, I wish you all a happy New Year.

Such a dainty calendar as I received today in the mail from a Social Corner Member. Thank you. I shall hang it beside my dresser where I can see it every day in the year. Necia: Thank you for the pretty card. Should liked to have attended the 23rd. Was very busy but would have overcome all obstacles, but it was so cold we were afraid the Lizzie would freeze up.

Am sending a recipe for a last minute dessert. Put 1 cup brown sugar in your iron skillet, add 2 tablespoons butter, allow to cook together and lay slices of canned pineapple all over the top of mixture. Now make a crust as follows: 1 tablespoon butter creamed with 1 cup sugar, add 1 egg, pinch of salt, 1 cup milk, 1 1-2 cups flour sifted with 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder. Beat well and spread over the mixture in skillet and bake about 20 minutes until crust is nicely browned. Turn out upside down and serve with sauce or whipped cream. It is a dessert fit for the gods to my thinking, but if you want to reduce don't eat it very often.

DELIGHT.

APPRECIATES THE CORNER

To the Social Corner: This Corner is worth more than the price of the paper; some times one letter, especially the one of Ocean Grove, New Jersey. Sometime ago there was one on the use of milk: How much milk per day is advisable for an adult who does not use tea or coffee? We would like to read the experiences of some of our sisters. A happy New Year to the editor and all the contributors for one of the best papers in the country.

A BACHELOR GIRL.

NEW YEAR'S GREETINGS

Dear Editor and Social Corner People: I wish you all a happy New Year, and it is chiefly to do so that I write at this time. I have been much interested in reading the nice letters in the Corner.

I have noticed another writer has used my own name so I think I will change to CALISTA.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The week in Norwich fifty years ago was a quiet one. Nothing out of the ordinary occurred to disturb the peacefulness of the citizens. The weather was abnormally warm, so warm in fact that the ice men were looking forward to but a poor crop. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of the first week in January, 1876, are as follows:

Monday, Jan. 3, 1876—Christ church rectory was open on New Year's evening to the parishioners and friends of the rector and family.

Yesterday, was a day like one of spring, with so mild and gentle an air that furs were uncomfortable and heavy clothing a burden. It is pleasant weather for the season, but unhealthy and people should not be careless.

The funeral of Officer Benson, late of the police, will take place this afternoon from Christ church. The Wauregan Hook and Ladder company will turn out in a body to attend the funeral. The funeral will be in charge of Somerset lodge, No. 34, F. and A. M., the members of which will also attend in a body. All the police not on duty will be present.

There was a dense fog on the sound Thursday night and the boats did not leave New York yesterday morning. A heavy fog was reported again last night at the departure of the steamboat train.

Tuesday, Jan. 4, 1876—The Worcester Gas company celebrated New Year's day by reducing the price of gas to $3 the thousand feet. There's a fine opening for imitation here.

They say eggs are going to be scarce this winter. Hennyone who has pe-rooster market report recently must have expected this.

The superior court comes in this city today. The January term for Windham county, Judge Martin presiding, comes in today.

The members of the Grand Army give their annual masquerade on the 17th.

A large Valentine & Butler safe with chronmeter lock has been installed in the Shetucket bank.

Baby's face and back covered with eczema
Resinol stopped itching quickly and healed blisters

Salem, Va., Feb. 5:—"I am writing to tell you of the wonderful benefit Resinol has been to my baby who had a bad case of eczema. The skin on her face and back was very red at first, and in a few days broke out in little blisters. The itching was awful and made the child very cross. I tried one preparation that had been highly recommended, but it did her no good. I then bought a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap and the itching stopped after the first treatment. In a few days the red look was gone and in a very short time the cure was complete. I shall always keep [illegible]"

FITCHBURG, MASS. POLICE HAVE MAN WANTED FOR NEW LONDON AUTO THEFT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 8—On the 6th of last December Beverly Heigham, a commercial traveller, with an auto load of goods was making his occasional calls on the trade in New London and vicinity. There was some thousands of dollars worth of silks and other goods in his car, a machine valued at $1,400, when he drove up to the Hislop store and went in to make his call. While he was engaged with the buyer in the store his car was stolen from the street with its contents. The police were notified and a determined search was made to find the car and the thief, but without success until now, when the local police have been notified that Louis alias Leon Brown had been arrested in Fitchburg, Mass., with the car in his possession. The car is a Hupmobile sedan with capacity for carrying goods so that Mr. Heigham used it daily in making his tours. The car is owned jointly by Mr. Heigham and his wife, Emily. They reside at Bedford Hills, N. Y. Prosecutor Hollandersky issued a warrant for the apprehension of Brown this evening and tomorrow Sergeant Samuel Hick will go to Fitchburg to bring him back to New London. It is understood that Brown is also wanted in Springfield, Mass.

Philip Adel was fined in the police court Wednesday for reckless operation of an automobile when he was concerned in a collision on Main street, at Federal, with a car owned and operated by Louis Tilton, a chief petty officer. He is to take his case to the common pleas court, where he hopes to have the judgment of the lower court set aside or reversed. It is claimed that Adel met the Tilton car as it came into Main street from Federal and when it had almost completed the turn to go toward Norwich, and attempted to go between the Tilton car and the sidewalk, on the right side of the road. There was no chance that the Adel car could accomplish that, so the driver jammed on the brake and hitting the Tilton car was crowded upon the sidewalk. The fine imposed upon Adel was only $25, but still he has decided upon an appeal.

Policeman George Parkins, a most faithful officer, is off duty because of an injury to his knee.

Coal is so scarce here that the price has been advanced a dollar a ton, with a prospect of snow tomorrow the people who have little or no fuel in their bins are considerably discouraged. Coal in limited quantity can be bought at the yards of dealers by those who go after it and take it away in 100-pound bags, but other seekers are told that there is no hard coal to be had.

No trace has been obtained of Chief Petty Officer Wilson who about six weeks ago, left here and left creditors who accepted his checks as of value when they were absolutely worthless. Wilson left in an automobile which he bought on paper at the Star garage here, taking a friend along with him to drive the car. The friend came back with the automobile and it was delivered to the owners, through sheer good luck. When Wilson is found he will go over the road, and not in an automobile, either.

Edward Jackan, a truck driver for Jason Moss, was fined $10 in the police court this morning as a reckless operator. Jackan has had experience at his work, but he seems to have been obsessed by the speed mania and to have hit a pace that attracted the attention of State Policeman Whitmarsh, for the speed was what was called terrific. Jackan passed intersecting streets as if they had been closed taxiways. He might have been presented in court for reckless driving, but the prosecutor arraigned him for violating the rules of the road in passing streets. Judge Prince gave him some timely advice and warned him against another appearance for a similar offense.

Merchants in New London declare that a lot of money goes out of New London to the stores in the larger cities each year that should be spent with local merchants. It is claimed that Hartford, New Haven and Providence stores are benefitted by the trade of New London women. Why this is true, the merchants do not understand. They claim that the New London merchants are quite up to date and that the stores are as attractive as those of the larger cities. New York merchants derive no small trade from New London as women here trade with the big city stores by mail. The women claim they have greater variety of goods to select from in the metropolitan cities, but the New London merchants are slow to admit this as being a statement of fact.

It is a certainty that some important changes are to be made in the property in the vicinity of Sequot and Ocean avenues during another summer. Deals are in course of consummation, now that, if they are completed, will bring a metamorphosis to that section. The buyers of land in the sections mentioned are to develop a residential section that is expected to be among the most desirable in the city. How the venture as a real estate transaction will result it is too early to prophesy. It is a certainty that when Frederick W. Mercer bought and developed the Guthrie property that he started something in the way of directing attention to the southern section of the city as a place of the highest class residences in New London. He entered upon the project while others stood aloof and dared not venture. Mr. Mercer and his associates went to work at the plan from a scientific point of view, had the land surveyed and streets laid out so that there was no uncertainty as to what conditions were to be there in the future. The streets are to be wide, they are to be curbed and sewer and water and gas connections made so that once the streets are put in condition there shall be no other expense developing upon the property owners in that respect. Now others are taking an interest in the section contiguous to the Mercer purchase. The Schall property is to be eventually made use of in much the same way as that in which Mr. Mercer pointed the course, the Riggs property and then theIppitt or Jerome land and buildings are also to come into the market. Other property in the same section is to be treated in like manner. The only danger now seems to be that the development may be overdone. Still that possibility is a remote one if the owners and builders are discreet as to how they proceed. The section is one of the most sightly in the city, it has been the magnet, so to speak, that has attracted the most desirable of residents and is likely to remain in that class as a section for residences for many years. Indeed when it is fully developed no other class of residences will be possible there. In the usual course of building extension the time will not be far away when the summer residence seeker will cross Alewife cove creek and develop the Hammond property. One of the best known citizens of New London years ago sought to have the late Sebastian Lerappe, who provided the means for New London to obtain the excellent hospital it now boasts, Lawrence-Memorial, buy the Hammond property and bequeath and to open it up for the city as a memorial to the name of Lawrence. Mr. Lawrence had such a plan in contemplation, but he abandoned it for the hospital project and for the erection of the soldiers and sailors monument on State street and the monument to his life-long friend Frederick L. Allen which now graces Meorial park. There are those who believe Mr. Lawrence made the wisest decision after all in the choice of memorials he made.

Edison O. Davis, of 14 Home street, was this evening ordered to appear before the police court Monday morning for the reckless operation of an automobile. The order was from a member of the state police force who found Davis operating a car at a speed that was regarded as reckless.

Daniel H. Troland is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. He is ill with pneumonia and his condition this evening is serious. Mr. Troland is nearly 50 years of age and his illness is regarded as most serious.

Bridge whist contests are soon to begin at the fraternal clubs of this city. The Harbour club has, in the past, been able to outplay the members of the other fraternal organizations that have taken part in the contests, but that is not assurance that they will be able to walk away with that honor this winter. The fire companies have some excellent card players, but they are not expert at bridge. When it comes to the old-time games they are quite at home. The Elks can turn out some exceptional players at the old-time card games too, but they are not "up" on bridge. Pool has been the strong game with the Elks and with the firemen as well. They all have pool tables at their headquarters where they enjoy the recreation that comes from the playing.

The ice companies are anticipating a cutting from the cold weather that struck on today. Unless snow comes in quantity they will not be disappointed in this respect either for ice has formed the past two nights so that now it is as heavy as is desired.

Frank Corcoran, the police station house keeper, is doing duty now as court officer. He makes a capable official too, for he is exact in all that he does and gives undivided attention to all that happens in the court. Heretofore there has sometimes been as many as three officers in court during the sessions, but the advent of Mr. Corcoran has made it unnecessary for others to be there unless they are subpoenaed as witnesses.

—Joseph Pieratti, of Canterbrook, is looking for an auto he owns and which was stolen from Washington street, Thursday.

The number of dismissals from Lawrence hospital dropped today for only two patients were discharged, whereas the number of dismissals is usually ten to fifteen.

Thomas Connors was arrested this evening for a breach of the peace consisting of an attack upon his wife Bertha. Connors will come before the police court Saturday morning.

Joint assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, held its annual installation of officers in Temperance hall, Wednesday. The state president, Mrs James Dutton, of Norwich, and her staff, Mrs. Thomas McVeigh and Miss Eleanor Donovan, also of Norwich, were the installing officers.

POLICE STILL WORK ON INCENDIARY THEORY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 8—The police authorities of the city and the state do not propose to let the reports that possibly the recent fires in the Bacon building may have been the work of an incendiary, pass without investigation. The police are working on the theory that some "bug" might have started the fire that broke out Thursday morning, but they are working against their conviction that such is the case. The first fire was obviously starte dfrom a furnace in the basement of the building. It was supposed that the flames had been extinguished beyond all chance of starting again when the firemen left the premises, but that seems to have been a mistaken notion for they did start thereafter and they did greater damage than when they first broke out. The clerks in the Davis & Savard store were in the work of taking inventory, when at noon the clerks found that the door of the store was so hot that they could not stand upon it. The girls pointed out the existing conditions and an investigation to determine why the floors were so hot was to begin when smoke and flames broke through into the main store. The girls had left their wraps and hats on the counter near the door, else they would not have had the chance to recover them, so intense became the flames and the smoke. That fire did a great deal of damage not alone to the Davis & Savard store but to the store adjoining on the west. The next day the fire broke out again evidently having been smouldering in the partitions. Then it was that the rumor was circulated that an incendiary perhaps had been busy and that perhaps he had a grudge against some tenant in the structure. The police authorities have been diligent in making inquiry as has Fire Marshal Shipman, but they have as yet been unable to get any information that leads to the opinion that the fires were started from causes other than stated. They will continue their investigation until they are convinced as to the cause of the fires. A watch has been supposed to be on duty at the burned building since the first fire and no evidence that a firebug was the author of the flames is entertained by them.

BRITISH TRAWLER GEMMA TAKEN TO PROVIDENCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 8—The British trawler Gemma, hailing from Montreal, was captured Thursday morning about 5.50 by one of the coast guard patrol boats under command of Ensign Ranney. It was trying to sneak out of the Naknonneg river after it is alleged to have landed a cargo of liquor somewhere up the river.

The Gemma is one of several boats that have been lying about Rum Row during the days when the fog was heavy and it is believed that while the fog was enclosing the vessels the trawler took advantage of the situation and sneaked out of the harbor.

The vessel was on its way back to Rum Row when it met the patrol boat that was idly lying about at the foot of the river. The ship was ordered to stop and was searched and a quantity of liquor was found, also several broken bottles.

The Gemma was taken to the state pier in this city, whence later in the day it was taken by the C. G. 233 to Providence, R. I. There the authorities will bring the crew before the U. S. commissioner in that city and charge the men with smuggling liquor into this country. The vessel was in command of Captain J. G. Bowers, who gave his home as Halifax.

May Allison, motion picture actress is recovering today from the shock received from a narrow drowning escape which occurred Thursday afternoon outside of Los Angeles harbor when a small life boat containing Miss Allison and Holmes Herbert was capsized by a sudden ground swell.

The boat was being used in filming the sea episodes of "Wreckage," the new Banner production in which Miss Allison and Herbert are playing the leading roles and was some distance away from the camera yacht in which Scott Dunlap, director, King Grey, cameraman, Ben Verschleiser and other members of the company were taking long shots. Herbert was standing up in the boat—supposedly flagging a distant freighter—when the large wave over-turned the small craft, throwing them both into the heavy sea.

After a desperate struggle, Herbert managed to get hold of Miss Allison and to keep her afloat until a Japanese fishing boat in the vicinity came to their rescue. Miss Allison was taken ashore and given medical attention by C. F. Reily who pronounced that aside from the shock, the actress had suffered no other ill effects from her harrowing adventure.

The second feature is one of many thrills and comedy starring Ken Maynard in "$50,000 Reward." Other worthwhile attractions are a new comedy, up to date Kinograms and enlarged orchestra. It is also to be noted that the admission is $.25 for any seat.

Broadway Theatre

Keeping in touch with all the latest and worthwhile attractions possible to please the patrons of the Broadway Theatre, the management should be congratulated on its latest "scoop" in securing the services of New England's Champion Fiddler, "Uncle Joe" Shippee of Plainfield, Conn. In spite of the many fabulous offers from many vaudeville circuits, Mr. Shippee is to first entertain Norwich before starting a tour of the big city theatres.

"Uncle Joe" Shippee's confidence in himself is warranted. Yesterday morning at his home in Plainfield, the tall, lean Connecticut Yankee told newspaper men that there "ain't any doubt in my mind but what I'll take the cake tonight when the last round of this old fiddlers' contest comes off."

Last night at the Albee Theatre, after he and "Jim" Gaffney had taken turns at fiddling reel after reel and jig after jig, Shippee stalked back to his chair, the gold medal emblematical of the New England fiddler's title pinned to his coat. Only as Gaffney sprang to congratulate him and the packed house loudly applauded its approval of the decision, did the winner exhibit any enthusiasm. He waved the hand which Gaffney was not pumping up, and down over his head and a broad smile crossed his furrowed face.

Watch for date of Norwich appearance.

Palace Theater

It's your last chance to see Knight's famous indoor circus. Four big shows today but still we advise you to come early. The doors open at 12:45 and the picture will be given first, starting at one fifteen. The first circus show will start at 2:15 and the second show will start at 4 o'clock. The supper show will be at 6:10, the next show at 8:30. It's a great treat for everybody and packed houses were the rule all day yesterday. Starting Sunday Mary Pickford in Little Annie Rooney will be the next big attraction.

The saucy, mischievous imp who is beloved by millions throughout the world is back on the silver screen.

Mary Pickford has forsaken the ruffled laces and bejeweled gowns of costume plays and has returned to the type of role that made her famous.

"The World's Sweetheart" is again the curly haired, prank playing, impetuous Irish lassie in "Little Annie Rooney" her latest United Artists Corporation photoplay, which comes to the Palace Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Little Annie Rooney" starts with a fight and ends with a fight. Inbetween are laughs galore, a tear or two, much suspense and many heart throbs. It's an ideal story for Mary Pickford and her characterization of Little Annie is one of genuine artistry, played as no other actress could play it.

The story is one of the slums of New York, an epic of those crowded, musty thoroughfares on the East Side, where men, women and children in motley array swarm like ants in an ant hill.

Little Annie is one of a million there. She is the leader of a gang of boys which is continually getting into battles with a rival gang.

While still a child Annie is plunged into a maelstrom of dramatic incidents that first sober the impulsive girl, then bring out the heroic qualities so often found in children of the slums.

"Little Annie Rooney" is from an original story by Katherine Hennessey. The title is familiar through the old time song of that name, but there has never been a book nor a story of "Little Annie Rooney."

William Beaudine, who was a property boy at the old Biograph studio in the day when Miss Pickford was an extra there, directed the picture.

A notable cast, including William Haines, Spec O'Donnell, Vola Vale, Eugene Jackson, Carlo Schipa, Gordon Griffith, Walter James, Hugh Fay, and many others are seen in support of Miss Pickford.

"Little Annie Rooney" is declared to be Miss Pickford's best picture in her eventful screen career. It is the type of picture which should please everyone, has been given a sumptuous production and the photography by Charles Rosher and Hal Mohr is beautiful throughout.

The coming of "Little Annie Rooney" is an event of magnitude in the present theatrical season.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

The widely heralded Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture The Merry Widow is coming to the Breed theater on Sunday. It presents one of the most significant combinations effected for the screen. It unfolds a picturesque romance of a gallant prince and a popular American dancer in a small continental kingdom, and in the hands of Erich von Stroheim, ideally suited to stage such a thing, the production is said to fulfill all that which was expected of it. The title role, entrusted to Mae Murray, furnishes this piquant actress with the best role of her career, and gives her full opportunity to display the charm, vivacity and talent for which she is so justly famous. John Gilbert who co-stars in this picture with Miss Murray gives a performance that brings him still further to the front as a popular idol. Von Streheim has a recognized genius for selecting types that are remarkably fine actors, and then inspires them to do the best work of their careers. The result is that each character stands out like a rare intaglio. The cast includes such favorites as Roy D'Arcy, Tully Marshall, George Fawcett, Dale Fuller, Josephine Crowell, Estelle Clark, Don Ryan, Hughie Mack, Edward Connelly, George Nichols and Lon Poff.

The Merry Widow is a screen version of the famous stage play by Victor Leon, Leo Stein and Franz Lehar as produced by Henry W. Savage. Erich von Stroheim handled the adaptation and continuity for the picture in collaboration with Benjamin Glazer.

Lyceum Theater, New London

Coming to the Lyceum, Tuesday, January 12th, for a two days engagement, including the Wednesday matinee, is The Maelstrom, by George W. Oliver, produced by Henry Miller in association with W. Herbert Adams.

Mr. Miller has selected a most notable personnel for the large cast. Sidney Rathbone, earlier in the season leading man with Elsie Fer uson, and previously a prominent member of Mr. Miller's company, interpretes the leading role, a type hitherto unknown to our stage—the pavement artist of London. This is the man who draws in colored caryon on the sidewalk bits of still life, a face, or a sketch depicting a current incident; his stand where ever it please his fancy until the Bobby—the policeman—bids him move on; his dole the coppers tossed by the tolerant passerby. Anthony Pook who is in The Maelstrom, is notable in that he is the one man so named not dubbed Tony. He is called The Ant.

That sterling artist, Alison Skipworth, so happily remembered in The Swan, The Torch Bearers, 39 East and a host of other successes, is the sister-in-law of The Ant, 'Arriet.

Others of importance are Hazel Whitmore, who plays Kitty, the Ant's sister; Betty Linley, lately of the Theater League; Alice John; Walter Kingford, who plays Erb, the Aan's brother-in-law; Alf Helton; James C. Carroll of White Cargo; Dorothy Fletcher Eustace Wyatt; Frank Horton; Daniel Wolf; and Sam Kin Chinese, Javanese, and Malays add to the atmosphere of the maelstrom and are but one of the master touches in the personal direction of Henry Miller.

George Arliss in Moving Picture at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

It is unusual that a moving picture of the type of that to be shown at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, Sunday at 3:30 is offered to the public free, and doubtless a large number will avail themselves of this privilege. On this occasion George Arliss will be seen in the wonderful picture of seven reels, The Man Who Played God.

George Arliss is distinguished as a real attraction on the screen; in this showing he has a most difficult but sympathetic part of one loved then feared and then loved again. He plays the part of a world famed musician who is suddenly stricken deaf. Embittered against all humanity, he becomes a changed man. By accident, he learns of other tragedies greater than his own and begins playing God to the unfortunates, and in the happiness of others he finds happiness for himself. The picture teaches a most impressive lesson that needs to be learned by many who have not yet learned it. Many churches have used this feature with good results. In addition to the showing of the picture, a brief appropriate address will be given by James C. Macpherson, the president of the Y. M. C. A. Hugh Kinder will furnish music for the occasion. The public is invited, the boys and girls under 14 must be with their parents or guardians.

SAY TERHUNE'S FATHER WILL NOT ASSIST HIM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 8.—State Policeman Giles Watson today made return of warrant calling for the arrest of Harold Terhune, wanted here for passing worthless checks. The officer made oath that he had made diligent search for Terhune, but that he could not be found within the territory in which the officer was authorized to make arrests. Terhune will be presented in the municipal court at Washington next Tuesday and then will be turned over to the New London authorities. It is represented here that Terhune's father is financially able to proceed with the case before the courts, but that he is displeased with the conduct of his son and will not aid him.

A dozen sheets of typewritten paper containing the complaint against Terhune, with signatures of half a dozen officials and seals were placed in the hands of Officer Watson today, that he might go after Terhune and return him to this city.

MARKET WAS NERVOUS

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—(By the Associated Press)—Extreme nervousness resulting from the unexpected increase in the New York federal reserve rediscount rate, characterized the trading in today's stock market. Prices reacted 3 to 4 points at the opening, recorded about half their losses before the end of the first hour, turned weak again in the early afternoon and then rallied again towards the close. Final quotations were irregularly lower, net losses in the popular industrials running from fractions to 2 1-2 points, with a few specialties showing substantial gains on the day. Trading was in relatively large volume, the day's sales running well over two million shares.

While the higher rediscount rate probably will provide a check on speculative stock market activities, bankers pointed out that credit conditions were sound and that a plentiful supply of funds at relatively low rates was still available for legitimate business enterprises. The reserve bank's action is reported in some quarters to bring about a substantial reduction loan on stock collateral.

The weekly mercantile reviews continued optimistic. Bradstreet's states that "trade and industry show some decrease in movement when compared with the intense activity of the holiday season, but when the initial week of 1926 is set beside the like week last year, it is found that this year's 'takeoff' exceeds 1925 on almost every point." Dun's reports that "the customary slowing down for the purpose of inventory has been less marked than usual," adding that "the agricultural districts are in a position to buy more largely than was possible at this time last year, and savings bank deposits are larger, bespeaking a great purchasing power on the part of the public in general."

The commodity markets were mixed. Wheat moved up 1 3-8 to 2 1-3 cents a bushel. Recovering part of yesterday's loss in sympathy with higher prices for the product in foreign markets, cotton futures closed 14 points higher to 3 points lower, with an opening gain of about 11 a bale on reports of better textile trade in England being materially reduced by Wall street selling. Coffee was slightly reactionary. Raw sugar was unchanged.

Rumors, which have attracted a large speculative following in the traditional debacle on the eve of the opening of the New York Automobile show, were heavily sold at the opening. Hudson dropped over four points to 118 on the first sale, later rallied as high as 122 3-4 and then slipped back to 119 3-4 off 1 1-4. General Motors opened 3 points lower at 122, but moved back to 123 1-4 at the close. Chrysler closed fractionally higher at 54 1-4 After having sold at 52 and Mack Trucks showed a net gain of 1 point at 152. Pierce-Arrow issues developed independent strength, the preferred touching a record high at 102.

General Electric was the feature of the late rally, soaring over 7 points to 226 1-2, and closing just below the top. Other outstanding industrial spots included Allied Chemical, Continental Insurance, Fairbanks Morse, Julius Kayser, Otis Elevator, Schulte Stores, and United Fruit, all up 3 points or more. Woolworth broke over 8 points to 210 1-2 on the announcement that 50,000 shares from the Woolworth estate had been purchased and sold privately, but it bounded back to 215 1-2 later.

Rails as a group did not attract much attention although Norfolk and Western touched a new record top at 154 7-8 and Pennsylvania approached within a fraction of its peak price. Chesapeake and Ohio and Atlantic Coast Line were conspicuously heavy.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange movements lacked uniformity Demand sterling was steady around $4.84 3-4, but French francs yielded four points to 3.83 1-2 cents. Danish kroner rallied 11 points to 24.86 cents in further reflection of the announcement of a new $40,000,000 American credit on more favorable terms.

TAFTVILLE

The annual meeting of the members of the church and congregation of the Taftville Congregational church, Inc., was held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the vestry of the church with the pastor, Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdis presiding. The minutes of the previous business meeting were read by the clerk, Allan Bogle, and the treasurer's report was given by George N. Beardsley. The church is in a most healthy financial condition, for not only does it close the year with all bills paid, but there is a substantial balance in the treasury and a surplus invested in sound income producing securities.

The election of officers to serve for the year 1926, resulted as follows: Deacons, Nathan S. Bushnell and Allan Bogle; clerk, Allan Bogle; treasurer, George N. Beardow; collector, Robert B. Schmidt; members of the standing committee to fill vacancies of those whose terms were expiring, Martin Wohlleben, John W. Brierley, Herbert F. Hoyle; music committee, Miss Nellie A. Howie, Miss Gertrude M. Young, Mrs. William T. McNally. The matter of the purchase of new hymn and psalm books for church use was referred to the music committee.

The report of the pastor covered his work during the past year, and brought out a number of points of special interest to the congregation. The report of the Ladies' Benevolent society was given by Mrs. Adam Leopold. Victor H. Davis, superintendent of the church school reported on the work done in the season for the past year, and also reported for the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor, in the absence of its president, Robert B. Schmidt, who was unable to attend the meeting because of illness.

Mrs. John Volkman read the report of the Ocowasin Camp Fire Girls and Mrs. Eugene N. Monty, guardian of the A-o-wa-ki-ya Camp reported for that society. Both camps are meeting weekly and are a great help to the girls who are members. Rev. Mr. Crowdis read the report of the Knights of King Arthur in the absence of the acting seneschal, Curtis Hedler. Harold E. Linderson reported for Troop 2, Boy Scouts, and the report of the O. J. S. was given by Miss Eleanor Heinrich. All the parochial societies are in a flourishing condition and are enthusiastic about entering the year 1926.

After the meeting, refreshments of cake and coffee were served by Mrs. Albert Bardsley, Mrs. James Graham, Mrs. Adam Leupold. Miss Anna M Beardow, Mrs. Charles R. Adams, Mrs. John Volkman and Miss Gertrude M. Young. There was a good attendance at the meeting, which was most interesting and encouraging.

The Thursday Evening Basketry class met in the Red Cross rooms in the Poneman building.

A number of Taftville people are to motor over to Portland today (Saturday) to attend the wedding of Miss Caroline R. Varley, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Varley, to Allan Cushman Robinson, at the First Congregational church of Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Faucher and family have taken a house on South Second avenue.

Funeral services for Helen Gural, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gural, were held Friday morning from the home of her parents on the Old Canterbury Turnpike, with prayers at the Church of the Divine Providence. Burial was in the Polish National Catholic cemetery at Trading Cove. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The funeral of Herbert A. Learned of Occum Road was held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the undertaking parlors of George G. Grant on Providence street. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and there were many beautiful flowers. Rev. William J. Reynolds, pastor of the Newent Congregational church, officiated. The bearers were Herbert Learned, Charles Learned, Edward Preston and Elisha Preston. Burial was in the Ames cemetery, Lisbon, where Rev. Mr. Reynolds read the committal service.

A building 250 feet higher than the Eiffel tower is proposed in New York.

VERSAILLES FARM HAND LOSES LIFE IN FIRE; BODY NOT RECOVERED

Joseph Bessette, about 70, is thought to have been burned to death in a fire which destroyed the residence of Xavier Rushville, near the Sprague-Canterbury town line, a short distance from Versailles, about 3 o'clock Friday morning. Mr. Bessette was asleep in the house when the fire broke out and as he has not been seen since, it is thought that his body is in the ruins of the house which fell into the cellar. The ruins were still burning Friday night and it was impossible to locate the body.

There had been a chimney fire in the house early Thursday night. It was thought that the fire had been extinguished, but it broke out again during the night and when discovered about 3 o'clock Friday morning the house was a mass of flames.

Mr. and Mrs. Rushville, their young daughter and Mr. Bessette were asleep at the time. A dog owned by Mr. Rushville woke the family by jumping on a bed and barking. The Rushville family was forced to flee for their lives. Mr. Rushville called to Mr. Bessette to get up and flee from the house and thought that the man answered him. The latter was evidently unable to get out of the house and went down into the cellar with the ruins when they fell in.

The bed he was sleeping on could be seen among the ruins, it had turned upside down when the house fell and it is believed that Mr. Bessette's body is under it. It was impossible to make a search of the ruins as there was a large quantity of wood and other supplies in the cellar which with the ruins of the building were still burning fiercely Friday night.

A telephone call for help was sent in to the Taftville fire department, but owing to inadequate directions they were unable to locate the burning house. The company was held in readiness to respond but no other call came in.

The loss on building and contents is total. The house a two story frame building, was constructed about 10 years ago. Mr. Bessette, the unfortunate victim of the blaze, was employed by Mr. Rushville as a farm hand and had been living at the Rushville home since last summer. It is understood that he had resided in Taftville and that his wife is employed at Taftville at the present time.

NEW LONDON SPEAKER FOR PARK CHURCH MISSIONS

The meeting of the missions' department of the Women's Federation of Park Congregational church was held in the parlors of the Osgood Memorial Parish House on Friday afternoon with Miss Edith Bliss, chairman, presiding and Mrs. Beatrice Eastwood Peterson at the piano.

During the devotional exercises Miss Bliss related a very beautiful version of the story of the miracle of the loaves and fishes as told by Rev Dr. MacGregor, of London, Ontario, during a recent trip to the Holy Land.

Following the usual routine business, announcement was made that the meeting of the parish house department will be held on Friday of next week, when Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee of New London will be the speaker and Miss Katherine Hempstead will sing.

Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London told of the work of the American Missionary Associatio and related many of his amusing and interesting experiences when, as a member of the executive board, he visited many of the Southern colleges supported by the association. He told incidents showing how much the graduates were doing for the uplift of their own people and that they were doing more to help support the schools. Special mention was made of a graduate of the Emerson School of Mobile, Alabama, who is a physician and also a writer of verse. Dr. Danforth read several selections illustrating the thoughts and view point of the negro.

Mention was made of the problems to be met at Straight College in New Orleans, Tougaloo, Miss., Fiske university and Bricks in North Carolina, which is a center for the raising of pecan nuts. It has ben stated that more pecans are shipped from that town than from any other. Another problem arises from the migration of the colored men to the factories of Ohio and Illinois.

Following the collection of the envelopes for the 40th anniversary of the the meeting was dismissed with prayer by Rev. Dr. Howe.

A social hour followed, tea being Connecticut Home Missionary Union served by a committee, Mrs. Wallace S. Allis, chairman, assisted by Mrs. John E. Vaughn, Mrs. Beatrice Eastwood Peterson, Mrs. Webster D. Copp, Miss Louise B. Meech and Miss Louise C. Howe.

DR. W. T. BROWNE ATTENDS NEW YORK CONVENTION

Dr. W. Tyler Browne returned Friday evening from New York, where he was the guest of his cousin, G. Morgan Browne. While there he attended the three days' session of the N. Y. Electrotherapeutic association held in connection with the American, Philadelphia and New England associations. Papers were read by many leaders in the medical profession demonstrating the use of electrical currents in many diseases.

FOUR WIVES AND ONE HUSBAND GRANTED DIVORCES

Five of the six divorce petitions on the uncontested list were granted in the superior court here Friday morning by Judge C. L. Avery. In four of the five cases the petitioners were the wives.

Rose Kivelovitch Kivel, of Colchester, was granted divorce from Charles Murray Kivel, formerly of New York, now of parts unknown. They were married March 3, 1919. She was given the custody of a five year old daughter.

Josephine Monty Bernard, of Norwich, secured divorce from Joseph Bernard, of 395 Main street, Holyoke, Mass., on the ground of intolerable cruelty since July 4, 1924. She asked for change of name and custody of a 13 year old son, but no order was entered as to custody or change of name. The couple was married Feb. 10, 1908.

Samuletta Wilson, of Norwich, whose maiden name was Migkins, was given divorce from Harry Wilson, who she married in August, 1908, but he deserted her in December, 1915, and has not been heard from since. She was granted change of name to Samuelette Migkins.

Robert McWilliams, of Stonington, secured divorce from Orellie Durette McWilliams, of Lakeport, N. H., whom he married June 30, 1909. The divorce was granted on the ground of a statutory offense with Christopher S. Ledwith, at Stonington, on Dec. 24, 1924. The husband was granted the custody of a daughter, aged 16, and three sons, aged 10, 8, and 6 years.

Marie Kleninger Stewart, of New London, was given divorce from James A. Stewart, and change of name to Marie Kleninger on the ground of desertion on Sept. 1, 1921. They were married Aug. 21, 1915.

Testimony was started in the suit of Marie Hamre Davidson, of New London, for divorce from Frank Davidson, now of parts unknown, but Mrs. Davidson could not prove residence in this state for the time required by law. Her counsel asked the court not to pass judgment and withdrew her from the stand. She sought divorce on the ground of desertion since Jan. 1, 1922. They were married a week before then.

LISTS THREE OFFENSES IN THE SERIOUS CLASS

Three kinds of motor vehicle offenses are put in one classification at the head of a list of "serious offenses" which the state motor vehicle department has sent to the New Haven Chamber of Commerce in response to a request for suggestions to a Traffic Observers Committee formed within the latter organization. They are (1) operating under the influence of liquor, (2) evasion of responsibility and (3) reckless driving of the dangerous type.

"In the next class," says the motor vehicle department's letter, "would come those offenses which are inadvertent but nevertheless dangerous, as for instance: (1) Failure to give right of way, (2) too much speed at crossings, (3) failure to give signals, (4) excessive speed and (5) those which are inadvertent, purely, but might be dangerous if persisted in under some particular set of facts."

The Traffic Observers committee of New Haven, according to information forwarded to the motor vehicle department, consists of a group of responsible, tactful citizens who make reports to their secretary, on cards furnished by the New Haven Safety Council, of such traffic violations as come to their notice. A letter is then sent to the offender by the secretary of the council calling attention to the violation, together with an appeal for help in promoting safe driving. In cases of flagrant violation, reports are referred to the New Haven police or the motor vehicle department. The main purpose of the council, it is stated, is "to arouse in individual drivers a feeling of personal responsibility for safe driving."

Small Chimney Fire

At 6:15 o'clock, Friday morning, the fire department was called out by telephone for a small chimney fire at No. 165 Main street, occupied by Woolworth's Five and Ten Cent store. Burning soot in the chimney was responsible for the call. The building is owned by Harry M. Land and others, and was formerly known as the Alling estate.

DRIVEN INTO STREET BY EARLY MORNING FIRE

A carelessly dropped cigarette is blamed for a $2,500 fire loss at the Marguerite building, corner Main and North Main streets, about 4:15 o'clock Friday morning. The fire department went out on a telephone call, and immediately on arrival at the scene Deputy Chief H. R. Taft ordered Box 223, Main street, near the postoffice pulled in, calling out additional apparatus.

There was a threatening blaze in the stairway at the rear of the Venetian restaurant. Smoke was rapidly filling the building and the occupants had to flee to the street, scantily clothed. Ladders were raised to assist the occupants to safety. A woman and a child hurried out of the building, carrying clothing with them and then dressed on Preston bridge. Most of those forced to flee from the building found refuge in one or two of the stores in the building.

Several lines of hose were laid and well directed streams soon squelched the blaze although it was some time before the firemen could leave the building. The flames broke through the second floor in one or two places but the damage was largely confined to the ground floor. The rear of the restaurant was partially burned out and there was considerable damage in the fruit store kept by Lorenzo Rinella on the Main street side of the building. Mr. Rinella is the owner of the building in which are located five stores and eight apartments. Mr. Rinella's loss is covered by insurance but Angelo Chioda, proprietor of the restaurant carried no insurance.

DEM. SENATORS TO PROPOSE TAX CUT OF $500,000,000

Would Increase Reductions Voted by the Homes on Incomes Between $22,000 and $100,000—Senator Simmons Maintains That the Increase Above $330,000,000 Reduction Limit Set by the House Could Be Accomplished and Still Permit Retirement of the Public Debt at the End of 32 years.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Tax reduction of $500,000,000 this year—or approximately $170,000,000 more than provided by the house revenue bill—was proposed today in a programme drafted by the democratic members of the senate finance committee.

While accepting the reduction in the maximum surtax rate from 40 to 20 per cent., the plan, announced today by Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the committee, would increase the reductions voted by the house for incomes between $22,000 and $100,000.

Repeal of the taxes on capital stock, admission and dues made up the remainder of additional reductions in the democratic programme. Passenger automobile taxes were not touched in th eplan on which they agreed.

Cuts in the normal income tax rates and the increased personal exemptions for income provided in the house measure were accepted, and no reference was made to the inheritance tax, publicity of income tax returns or any of the other rate schedules.

In making public the plan, Senator Simmons announced that it represented the views of democrats only on the specific items mentioned. "Other important matters in the bill, will be dealt with as they are reached," he said, indicating that some of the minority members will fight for other changes in the house measure.

Senator Simmons declared the increase above the $330,000,000 reduction limit set by the house and approved by Secretary Mellon could be accomplished and still permit retirement of the public debt at the end of 32 years, the maximum time now contemplated by the treasury.

He would pay the public debt entirely from the sinking fund created for this purpose but would require that the cost of the sinking fund be ecut by applying to it the annual receipts from foreign governments on account of war debt payments.

"Under the present law," he explained, "the $253,000,000 annually set apart as a sinking fund is raised by taxation and used for the retirement of our indebtedness; and in addition to that, the amount annually received from our foreign debtors, estimated for this year at more than $175,000,000, is likewise applied to the retirement of our indebtedness.

"The minority propose to apply to this sinking fund all receipts from foreign governments arising on account of their indebtedness, thereby reducing to the extent of these foreign payments th eamount to be raised by taxation for purposes of the sinking fund."

Senator Simmons will present the democratic programme to the finance committee tomorrow when it takes up consideration of the rate schedules, but republican members, who have a 10 to 7 majority, have indicated they would vote for the schedules written into the bill by the house, with perhaps some less extensive modifications. The real showdown on the rate fight, therefore, is not likely until the measure is considered on the floor of the senate when democrats hope to draw enough support from the republican ranks to insert some of their schedules in the bill.

Revision of the house surtax schedules on incomes between $22,000 and $100,000, as proposed by the democrats, would increase the tax reduction on this accout by $44,000,000 over that in the house measure, Senator Simmons said. The house surtax reductions were confined to rates applying on incomes between $44,000 and $100,000.

"The average reduction made in the house bill on incomes between $100,000 and $20,000 is 25 per cent.," Senator Simmons said, "upon incomes between $20,000 and $100,000 29 per cent.; and upon incomes in excess of $100,000 is 50 per cent.

"The schedule proposed by the minority will provide for an average reduction upon incomes up to $20,000 of 25 per cent; upon incomes from $20,000 to $100,000 of 24 per cent.; and on incomes over $100,000 of 50 per cent."

Repeal of the capital stock tax applying on corporations would cut government revenue by $34,000,000, it was estimated, while repeal on the levies on admissions and dues would account for $300,000 more annually.

Commenting on the proposed repeal of the capital stock levy, Senator Simmons declared the tax against the weaker corporations and is peculiarly discriminatory is a distinctively a nuisance tax."

Approval by the democrats of the house normal income tax rate virtually means these reductions will become law, since republicans have indicated favor of these as well as the increased personal exemptions also approved by the minority.

The normal rates would be cut from 2 to 1 1-2 per cent. on the first $4,000 of taxable income, from 4 to 3 per cent. on the next $4,000 of income and from 6 to 5 per cent. on the remainder of income. Personal exemptions would be increased $1,000 to $1,500 for single persons and from $2,500 to $3,500 for married persons.

TIDAL WAVE STRUCK THE VILLAGE OF BERNARD, ME.

BANGOR, Me., Jan. 10—(AP)—The tidal wave which struck the village of Bernard, near Southwest harbor yesterday a few minutes after the harbor had been drained to the bottom, was without scientific explanation today, but the hardy mariners and fishermen of the vicinity agred that it was probably what they know as a "bore" wave. The seismograph at Harvard university was reported as having recorded no shock and the theory that a subterranean earthquake had caused the disturbance was discounted by scientists.

EARTH IS TREMBLING AS MOUNT VESUVIOUS ERUPTS

ROME, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Mount Vesuvius, which has been in a state of activity for several days, is continuing its magnificent, and not altogether reassuring displays of fireworks while the Tuscan countryside, in the northern part of Italy, has again been visited by a short trembling of the subsoil. As usual the disturbance sent the population scurrying into the open spaces, but there was no loss of life and only slight damage.

Statement by the Premier of Greece

General Pangalos Declares That Elections Are to Be Held in Five or Six Months.

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Premier Pangalos, who on January 3, announced that he would take over control of the entire government, likened his temporary dictatorship in the course of a conversation today, to a poultice applied for a short time to effect a cure.

"You would not expect an invalid when he had recovered," the premier said to the Associated Press correspondent, "to wear a plaster for the rest of his life. So more will it be necessary for Greece to remain under the present regime when she is healed."

The elections would take place in five or six months, continued the general, and with respect to these he remarked: "The people in several countries of Europe have lost somewhat of their confidence in parliamentary government. This has been due, I think, to the development of a class of professional politicians. Government by them has been inefficient, wasteful and weak on account of unceasing partisan quarrels.

"Greece has suffered from a succession of such governments. Our people are tired of politics and wish for a period of peace and tranquility within the country and they shall have it, with liberty and economy."

General Pangalos alluded to his having saved the country 300,000,000 drachmas in two days by abolishing the ministry of public economy and assistance. (A drachma is worth about 1 1-3 cents.)

"I called a meeting of the cabinet council," said he, "and told the ministers they must cut the expenses by another ten millions. The decree will be issued immediately."

The premier spoke of the profound need and desire of the Greek people for peace. "We have had ten years of war, from 1913 to 1922," he said. "We have suffered more than any other European people. We must have peace, and that longing impelled me to propose a pact between the Balkan states.

"My conversations with the Serbian minister were at first unfavorably received; Serbia preferred an alliance My view was that an alliance was not a preventive of war among a group of neighbors. I am delighted now that Serbia gave its accord to the framing of the pact yesterday."

This eastern European Locarno, he went on, would include Serbia, Greece, Bulgaria, Turkey and later, perhaps, Rumania.

PLANNING DEVELOPMENT OF SARATOGA SPRINGS

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 10.—(AP)—A program for developing the state's mineral spring reservation at Saratoga Springs into a great public watering place that will have a combined hotel and sanitarium and other equipment of the famous spas of Europe, has been formulated by the conservation commission which has had jurisdiction over the property since 1915.

The cost of the suggested expansion, which the commission says will give the people "the full benefit of the water resources," is estimated at nearly $6,000,000.

Of this sum $250,000 would be used in completing the development of Lincoln Park so as to provide at least 3,500 mineral baths and four or five hundred special treatments daily.

Between $500,000 and $600,000 would be required for the acquisition of additional property in the city of Saratoga Springs and the construction thereon of a modern bath house and drink hall.

MORRIS TO SERVE IN THE GILPATRIC COMMITTEE

HARTFORD, Jan. 10—(AP)—Charles G. Morris, tonight notified Governor Trumbull that he would serve as a member of the committee to which the governor appointed him Friday for the complete investigation of "every phase of all transactions of G. Harold Gilpatric as treasurer of the state of Connecticut."

Former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, will make his acceptance known to Governor Trumbull tomorrow, it was announced tonight and Morgan B. Brainard, third member of the committee, said tonight that he will confer with the governor on the matter at the first opportunity. Mr. Brainard intimated that he will agree to serve, qualifying his predicted acceptance with the cited possibility that Governor Trumbull might wish to appoint some one in his place in view of the fact that he has made arrangements for a trip of some length.

RABBI WISE PROCLAIMS LOYALTY TO HIS FAITH

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise whose recent sermon on the life of Jesus aroused a storm of criticism from many Jews, asserted today that so far as he was concerned, the controversy was ended. He promised, however, at some future time to take up the theme touched upon in that sermon in his own way and with freedom of thought.

Dr. Wise branded as diatribes the accusations of disloyalty to his faith because he had extended a friendly hand toward another religion. At the same time, he declared that the proposal for a universal religion, advocated in some quarters on the strength of his views, was unthinkable and unworkable.

As chairman of the United Palestine Appeal, from which some of his opponents sought to depose him, Dr. Wise announced that a total of $1,592,720 had so far been contributed by American Jews toward the upbuilding of the Jewish homeland.

SPEEDBOAT WATER-LOGGED OFF MASSACHUSETTS COAST

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A disabled water logged motor boat sighted during yesterday's storm off Point of Pines on the north shore today proved to be the 40-foot speed boat C-6104, a rum runner, carrying $50,000 worth of champagne and whiskey. Coast guardsmen salvaged the craft and brought it to Boston today. The boat is capable of making 50 miles an hour and is valued at about $100,000. The fate of her crew was not known tonight, but coast guardsmen expressed the belief that they made shore safely after abandoning their boat.

Snow plows and laborers cleared railroads and highways with little delay. For the first time in Vermont's history various towns co-operated in plowing out highways and there as in other states automobiles were running on all trunk line roads. The weather was clear throughout New England.

NAVAL COURT FINDS CITY OF ROME OFFICERS GUILTY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—(AP)—The report of the naval court of inquiry into the sinking on September 25, of the submarine S-51, off Block Island by the steamship City of Rome, of the Savannah line, was turned over to the department of justice by Secretary of War Wilbur yesterday for legal action

The court found that the submarine was rammed and sunk by the steamship, with the loss of thirty-three officers and men, on a clear, moonlight night under circumstances which required the steamship to "keep out of the way." Its findings of fact were made public by the navy department tonight, but its recommendations were withheld because of the reference of the entire case to the department of justice.

At the latter department it was said the report arrived too late in the day to be read, but it is understood either criminal or civil actions, or both, are contemplated against the Ocean Steamship company, of Savannah, Ga., owner of the City of Rome, and officers of the steamer.

Captain John H. Diehl, who was captain of the steamship, and Third Mate Timothy L. Dreyer, were placed on trial at Boston this week before the board of federal steamship inspectors on charges of inattention to duty in violation of the international rules for prevention of collisions, and it is understood that the attorney general assigned a district attorney to watch the proceedings for the department of justice.

The naval report declared the S-51 was sunk at 10:24 o'clock at night, after its white light had been visible to and observed by the City of Rome from a distance of five or six miles The steamship, it was added, failed to provide and maintain an adequate lookout.

The submarine was on the surface availability engins run at the time, and all its officers were "fully qualified to stand a deck watch," the report said.

Within a minute after the collision the S-51 sank, the report stated, while the City of Rome put out only one lifeboat, which picked up three survivors. The steamer's searchlight was said to have been out of commission, so little artificial light was available in the search, and an hour and twenty minutes after the collision she proceeded on her way to Boston without marking the spot and sending any message on the disaster until after midnight.

Neither of the women were injured.

Railroad officials placed a special train at the command of the Durant party and they left immediately after the accident for New York.

WOULD CALL MAINTENANCE MEN FROM THE COAL MINES

Resolution Passed by the General Grievance Committee of District 1, United Mine Workers of America—Objective is to Hasten the End of the Present Suspension—Strike Conferees Are "Working" Seven Days a Week—Two Proposals Were Voted Down, One by the Miners and One by the Operators.

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Jan. 10—(AP)—A resolution asking the tri-district scale committee to call a general strike of all workers employed around the minues, including the maintenance men, was passed by the general grievance committee of District 1, United Mine Workers of America at a meeting late last night. The calling out of the maintenance men is urged as a means of hastening the end of the present suspension. The resolution had previously been submitted to a local union of the district and indorsed unanimously.

The grievance committee also adopted a resolution commending the course in favor of the mine workers of the Rev. John J. Curran of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church of this city, and especially his opposition to the letters sent the heads of the scale committees now in New York by newspaper publishers and merchants and manufacturers. A committee was named to urge the senators and representatives of Luzerne county to support Governor Pinchot in his efforts to end the mine suspension.

COAL CONFEREES HELD FIVE HOUR SESSION SUNDAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Anthracite miners and operators after nearly a five-hour session today, the first Sunday session ever held in the long history of hard coal wage conferences, failed to come to any understanding, and adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The operators voted down a proposition for a night session proposed by the miners. Two proposals were voted down, one by the miners, and the other by the operators.

Chairman Alvan Markle proposed, according to a statement issued, that since the parties could not agree on a contract, the miners' proposal, the operators' plan, and the Markle plan, should all e submitted to Charles E. Hughes, former secretary of state, who would consider all suggestions, and formulate a plan that would be the basis for a contract.

The operators voted "yes" for Mr. Markle's proposal, but the miners voted against it. Mr. Hughes was counsel for the United Mine Workers of America before he became secretary of state.

It is understood that the miners were not opposed to Mr. Hughes himself, but looked upon the latest Markle proposal to throw all plans into a basket and have Mr. Hughes make a decision on them, as a form of arbitration.

The statement issued by the conference said the miners offered what they designated as a "revised Markle plan," the principal provisions were an agreement for five years, which could be changed by a board created under the plan. A board would be established, consisting of two miners, two operators and three representatives to be selected by Ex-secretary of State Hughes The board would investigate and determine whether the operators can reasonably pay a wage increase if the board should determine on an increase it would be retroactive.

Records of miners and operators were to be made available to the board. The board would investigate, determine, recommend means for avoiding suspension of mining, and for assuring the public an uninterrupted supply of coal The board would also investigate and recommend methods for increasing efficiency, and reducing the cost of operations.

Under this revised Markle plan a joint commission, consisting of one miner, one operator, and a conciliator would be created in each of the three anthracite districts, to strive for greater co-operation harmony, and efficiency in the industry. The commission would have the support and co-operation of operators, district organizations, and the international union. The check-off would be limited to $14 a year. The board of conciliation created by the Roosevelt commision of 1903 would be continued to equalize wages.

It is understood the operators did not accept this offer when it was submitted, and probably will act on it later.

The operators voted down a resolution offered by the miners that all future sessions of the conference be thrown open to newspapermen. The miners also offered a formal motion that the meeting recess until 8 o'clock tonight, owing to the necessity of reaching an agreement. The operators proposed a substitute to recess until 10 o'clock tomorrow. This was adopted.

STUDENT'S BACK WAS BROKEN DURING FIGHT

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10—(AP)—The condition of Charles Nicholas Kessler, Jr., 19, of Los Angeles, who is in the Polyclinic hospital here with a broken back was announced tonight as "more favorable," although doctors say his injuries are extremely serious He is a student at the University of Pennsylvania.

Kessler, according to stories upon which police are working, was hurt in a fight in a fraternity house during the progress of a New Year's party. Police say there was drinking at the party, which was participated in by other students and young women. A fight over a girl is said to have taken place and Kessler was struck by a small table thrown during the struggle

The commissioner says that if the increase continues, it will be necessary to put partitions into the larger cells.

THREE BANDITS CAPTURED BY ONE POLICEMAN

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 10—(AP)—Three bandits were captured single handed by a patrolman today after he had wounded two of them, one perhaps fatally in a running pistol battle following their alleged attempt to hold up and slay Samuel Lapinna.

The prisoners identified themselves as Anthony Rizzatto, 25 years old, and Nicholas Calabrone and Albino Principe, both 39 years old. Rizzatto was shot in the left leg above the knee, the bullet shattering the bone. Principe was shot twice through the chest, one bullet piercing his lung. He will die, physicians say.

Samuel Lapinna, a New York Central railroad brakeman, was the victim of the attempted holdup.

GILPATRIC'S BROTHER MAY GET INFORMATION

HARTFORD, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Receiver George M. Coffin of the First National bank, of Putnam, has called upon Walter H. Gilpatric of White Plains, N. Y., to get from his brother, G. Harold Gilpatric, at the United States penitentiary in Atlanta, a statement telling what he did with $200,000 Liberty bonds which should have been delivered to the state treasury in 1919, but, according to auditors, were not.

Walter H. Gilpatric, the elder brother of the former state treasurer and cashier of the Putnam bank who acted as one of his counsel when he was arraigned in the United States district court, and sentenced to serve 15 years in the penetentiary has promised to make the trip to Atlanta, and make an effort to get the information sought.

If the former Putnam cashier supplies the information, it will be the first tangible assistance he has given to those engaged in the work of bringing order out of the chaos he left in his bank when he attempted suicide August 7, 1924, and blinded himself for life.

The $200,000 transaction in question originated with a check which Gilpatric took from the state treasury August 9, 1919, as advance payment for Liberty bonds. Although the state did not receive the bonds it ordered at that time until nearly a year and a half later, and Gilpatric himself made three semi-annual interest payments by check to the state in the meantime, in order to allay suspicion, it has been found that he bought $200,000 Liberty bonds at the National City Company of New York, September 11, 1919, but, instead of having them delivered to the state, diverted them to his own uses.

After he had used these bonds to cover up deficits in his accounts in the Putnam bank and in the accounts of the Putnam Woolen company, and otherwise, he sold $109 000 of them to the First National bank of Boston, between October 15 and October 19, 1920 This has been determined by a careful tracing of his multifarious manipulations. What Gilpatric did with the remaining $91,000 remains to be ascertained, and it is chiefly with that purpose in view that Gilpatric is now called upon to state what he did with all of the bonds of that lot.

MUSSOLINI COMMENTS ON DEMOCRACY OF THE U. S.

ROME, Jan. 10—(AP)—The democracy of the United States is more apparent than real. Benito Mussolini declared in a special interview today. It functions well, the premier went on, because of the nation's immense superabundance of natural riches, which permits a huge and constant waste of energies.

Criticizing the democratic form of of government as inherently a dispenser of energies, the fascit leader said it was workable in the United States where enormous resources permitted "luxury" waste, but impossible in Italy, where poverty necessitated the organization of the nation as "militia unable to lose any battle."

WILLIMANTIC UNABLE TO HOUSE SCHOOL CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 10—The town of Windham scored the largest gain in school children in twenty years during 1925 it is shown in the enumeration figures which Egbert A. Case secretary of the town school committee filed with the state board of education Saturday. The enumeration, which was taken last fall, shows that due to the influx of children, coming with familes who came from out of town to take up employment at the American Thread company plant, there has been an increase of 176 children, enough to overflow present school capacity and fill another eight room school of Windham possessed one. After the opening of the fall term in 1925 a total of 3,640 children were enumerated. In 1924 the number was 3,646. The first and second districts which comprise the entire city of Willimantic, showed a gain of 154 and the Windhams (South, Center and North), 16. Multipiied on the basis of 4.5, as adopted by the state board of education, this would give the total population of the town of Windham as 16,680. The children enumerated were between the ages of 4 and 16. Of the gain, 59 have entered the public schools and 140 the parochial school, a large percentage of this number being registered at St. Mary's parochial school where they are said to be very adept pupils. When the fall term opened there were 457 children, 23 less than in 1924, not attending school. Two hundred and twenty-eight of this number were under five years of age, 59 between five and seven years, 14 between 7 and 14 and 156 between 14 and 16 years. Two-thirds of the older children are working under employment certificates. An account for the large number of children under seyne years of age is given in the crowded condition of the parochial schools, where no children are admitted until they are over six years of age. The urgent need of additional school room is thus pointed out in the fact that 317 children are now awaiting an opportunity to attend school.

Given below is a tabulation of the enumeration figures of 1924 and 1925 for children between the ages of 4 and 16 years.

PLAN TO INCREASE CAPITAL OF GOYER MFG. CO.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 10—A body of erstwhile stock salesmen will consummate organization at a meeting Monday morning to stage a $30,000 stock campaign, being fostered by the Chamber of Commerce, to increase the capital of the progressive Goyer Manufacturing company. General Sales Manager James B. Fullerton who acted in the same capacity for the successful Willimantic Industrial company stock campaign some time ago, stated Saturday that nearly $7,000 of the $30,000 goal had already been subscribed, and with the enthusiasm being shown and the reliability of the investment, he was confident of a successful drive. The campaign will formally open at the close of the meeting and will continue for one week. Mr. Fullerton has James P. Bath and J. E. Sullivan as his aides and they will select five sub-team captains who will in turn select their salesmen. The Chamber of Commerce endorsed the campaign after a committee of members, composed of George F. Taylor, William P. Jordan and John Reilly had conducted a thorough survey of the Goyer company's methods of business, its present financial standing and the possibilities for growth in valued at thousands of dollars could the future. It was found that orders not be accepted by the company due to lack of capital with which to increase the force and machinery at the plant. A. E. Greene, who is at the head of the concern, said that it was incorporated in Hartford in 1919 and for lack of space removed to the old Turner Mill on Bank street, this city, in 1920. The building is owned by the Willimantic Development company, which was also fostered by the Chamber of Commerce. Some 30 men are employed at the plant at present and this number will be increased to 100 immediately when additional facilities for increased production are installed. Last year the company paid $26,857.68 in wages and the low estimate of its expenditures in the city was given as $6,000. It is planned to have between 20 and 25 salesmen selling the stock during the campaign which will last this week.

There are 3,740 subscribers, a gain of 160 in one year, to the Willimantic exchange of the Southern New England Telephone company, according to the mailing list for the winter issue of directories which were sent out last week. A total of 958 subscribers were gained during the past five years. In Stafford Springs there was a gain of 48, making a total of 630 for that exchange and a gain of five at the Lebanon exchange.

Announcement was made Saturday, by E. J. McCabe, of the divisonal headquarters of the Salvation Army, at Hartford, that P. S. Hills had accepted the chairmanship of the 1926 annual maintenance campaign for the local work of the Army. Mr. Hills headed the successful campaign in 1923, and there appears but little doubt that he will meet with the same gratifying results this year.

Believing that his faithful dog was warning him of chicken thieves about daybreak Saturday morning, Mike Dudo, of Quarry street, dressed quickly and joined his dog to see what the trouble was. The dog was barking furiously, not at a burglar, but at a little furry intruder, known as a pole cat to some and a skunk to others. The heaviest snowfall of the year, which came in company with the general storm which swept the east Saturday, left about four inches of snow in its wake. Street Superintendent Irvin M. Ford had his men working during the day clearin gout the streets and sidewalks. The plow-truck was kept on the job up to late Saturday night. With the ground blanketed with snow and the clear sky speckled with brilliant stars, Saturday evening was just one of those romantic winter nights which we heard about in the jingle-bell days, but which we see less and less of in late years.

The unusual antics of the weather-man this season apparently confused a family group of six wild geese and employes of the state highway department Division No. 10 working in this section Friday were startled to see a half dozen of the winged travelers flying northward. About four hours later the group of six had apparently gotten a look at a compass and at an almanac for they came sailing in a southernly direction. They were not seen and very likely they are forging their way through the clouds of mosquitoes over New Jersey on their way to Georgia by this time.

MYSTIC

The monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher association was held Friday evening at Mystic Academy. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Adelia B. Gray. Members of the association are looking forward to the lecture of Dr. Grenfeel in April. Mrs. Gray introduced Frank Hamlen, of Bulkeley High school, who gave a most interesting talk on English. In a concise manner he emphasized the importance of parents speaking properly and using the very best language they are capable of using, for if children hear only mispronounced words and sentences when they go to school the teacher has a greater task in teaching correct English. It is difficult for the child to overcome the habit of speaking incorrectly, formed at home. Another point he spoke if was not to encourage children in baby and cunning. When the child goes to school the first year the teacher has a greater task in teaching them.

One remark of interest to the teachers was that the scholars who go from this school to Bulkeley are the best English scholars they have there. Miss Betty Wheeler and Miss Elizabeth Thorp played plan duets. Sandwiches and coffee were served by Mrs. Louis Knox, Mrs. A. O. Neff, Mrs. E. E. Church, and Mrs. Harry Myers. Mrs. Clarence Wilcox, Mrs. A. Burrows, Mrs. G. Tift and Mrs. H. Williams are the committee to conduct a food sale sometime in the future.

The Monday club meets with Mrs. Alfred O. Colby. The topic will be an afternoon with Kate Douglas Wiggin.

Mrs. Seth Carver of Deep River, who was a neighbor of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgan in Colchester, is visiting them at their home on Church street, Mystic. Miss Ruth Carver, daughter of Mrs. Seth Carver, is supervisor of the older girls at Mystic Oral school.

DANIELSON

CONTRACTS GALORE OFFERED "JOE" SHIPPEE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 10—Here is final proof that Joe Shippee of Plainfield, champion old-time fiddler of all New England, has an indisputable right to this title—he was born in the town of Killingly!

Joe has been in the full flood of the spotlight of publicity since he won his title in competition in Providence the past week. And he isn't going to get out of it right away. He made known Saturday night when he played at one of the regular fortnightly dances at the Hyde district schoolhouse, that he has signed a theatrical contract to appear in New York, and is going down to the big town the first of the present week.

Joe is being besieged with offers to appear in vaudeville, to make phonograph records, to appear in motion pictures and half a dozen other things that would bring him a bale of money if he accepted all. Mr. Mellie Dunham of Norway, Me., Henry Ford's fiddler, has been completely eclipsed by the Plainfield man. Joe has had publicity that couldn't be purchased actually for $100,000, and that being the case there are those who wish to capitalize an opportunity and have Joe place his wares in a big market than they have heretofore enjoyed.

Significant of the manner in which he has attracted attention are the stories that are appearing in print about him. Fifty of his friends crowded about him at the Hyde schoolhouse Saturday night to hear all he might have to say about his sudden rise to fame. Incidentally, they presented him with a gift of $10, in token of their happiness over his achievements.

In view of all of this, the following from a Providence paper of the week end is of very special interest in all the territory hereabouts:

"Joe" Shippee, the 69-year-old Plainfield, Conn., man who won the title of champion old fiddler of New England, in the competition staged here by the Town Criers of Rhode Island, sympathizes with Henry the Fourth, of whom Mr. Shakespeare, who also wrote of fiddlers, said, "Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown." Not that "Joe" feels that his newly-earned crown is slipping, but because of the various ways in which he is being importuned to "cash in" on his laurels.

Before he hardly had a chance to look at the gold medal awarded him Wednesday night, he was offered $100 and expenses to play next week in a Boston theatre. Then came some "phonograph men," who wanted him to play some old-time tunes for reproduction on records to be sold throughout the country. Motion picture photographers begged for a "sitting" and old fiddlers throughout the country wrote and wired challenges almost without number, with aggregate stakes running into the thousands.

The Boston theatre offer was turned down flat by the aged fiddler. He had never been in a real theatre before he came to Providence to compete in the contest at the E. F. Albee theatre, and the big, artificially-lighted stage didn't appeal to him at all. One theatrical experience was enough, he says, yet it may be possible that tempting monetary considerations will lure him back behind the footlights once again.

Among those who have challenged him is John Wilder, of Plymouth, Vt., 50-year-old uncle of the president of the United States, Calvin Coolidge. Mr. Wilder and his 100-year-old violin are filling an engagement at a Boston theatre this week and "Joe" says he suspects the Vermont fiddler's challenge was prompted by the theatre management, instead of really being a personal defi by Mr. Wilder. "Joe" is as canny as they make old fiddlers, yet his is not afraid to meet Mr. Wilder or anybody else in a fiddling match, he says, provided the challenge is a real, honest-to-goodness challenge, issued by and for the challenger himself. The accepted sporting code also provides that a champion has something to say as to where a championship match is to be staged, and "Joe" is in a position to insist upon his rights.

There is one thing "Joe" insists upon. He won't play jazz tunes for anybody. "I suppose they're all right for those that like them," he said last night, "but I won't play them for anybody. I'm too old for that kind of business."

As to how many old tunes "Joe" can play, he doesn't know himself. He says he has got a "reel" in the back of his head, on which these old tunes are recorded, and when the reel starts to revolve, the old tunes come into his mind, one by one. "I could play all night and not play the same tune twice," he said.

"Joe" let it be known yesterday that he once lived for a short time in Providence, while very young, in the home of a colored family. His father and mother seperated, he said, soon after his birth, in Killingly, Conn. The father kept the baby. When Joseph was less than two years old, his father died.

Robert Kershaw Bennett, a native of Dayville and a former principal of Killingly High school, has attracted particular attention and considerable publicity through his stand relative to grammar school graduation exercises. He believes such exercises are apt to be over stressed and to create a wrong impression with the young people who figure in them.

Here is an article setting forth his views:

Elimination of elaborate graduation exercises in the grammar schools of Central Falls as a means of retaining the graduates' interest in furthering their education has been recommended by Superintendent of Schools Robert K. Bennett.

In the opinion of Mr. Bennett and school principals, the students are given the false notion that they have graduated from "all schools" because of the emphasis placed upon their leaving the grammar grades.

More than 40 per cent of the pupils who graduated from the grammar grades last June failed to enter high school, according to the superintendent and of this number only 15 per cent. are of working age. The remainder of the former students who are between the ages of 13 and 15 years are merely waiting until they reach the working age of 15 and as they are not attending school it is believed that they are practically idle.

Under the requirements of the truancy laws graduates of grammar schools, regardles of age, are not required to attend school but are not able to secure working permits until they are 15 years old.

The school committee recommends that the matter be brought to the attention of the Parent-Teacher associations of the city for discussion in order to obtain the opinion of the members on the question.

For the first time this winter state road plows went into service to clear up the snowfall of Saturday. The plows were in some instances busy on Sunday, when the roads were practically cleared of snow and nearly as good to travel over as on a summer day. The state has excellent equipment with which to clear the highways of snow. Big motor trucks equipped with plows are in service in the territory, and heavy inded must be the storm that blocks a trunk line highway for any length of time. These arteries of travel, now almost as important as railroads, will not be allowed to be blocked by the highway department if being on the job and sticking to it will keep them open.

The body of Joseph Brouillard, Jr., 12, who died at the Backus hospital in Norwich following a surgical operation was brought to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brouillard of Moosup, in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy.

Shortly after six o'clock Saturday evening the fire department answered a call for a chimney fire in a four-apartment house owned in School street by Luther Pilling. It was the fourth call of the new year for the department. There was no damage to the property through Saturday night's fire.

About four inches of snow came on Saturday in what at one time promised to develop into an old-time New England snowfall. That it did not, leaves few regrets. The storm left no blocked highwayt or heavily blanketed sidewalks for householders to shovel off. It was not much of a snowstorm, after all.

Though delayed in progress by the inclement season, a force of workers of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company continues as the weather permits to work on the extension of a line that will bring electric lights to Oneco. The work has advanced in such degree that lights for Oneco may be looked forward to in the near future.

Snow that came on Saturday brought coasting on Sunday and a re-opening of a subject that is discussed every winter—the danger of sliding on hills where there is heavy motor traffic or across streets similarly burdened. The young people are inclined to be reckless—there were many instances of this on Sunday, and the suggestion has been made that coasting be restricted to certain streets of the borough and forbidden in others. No motorist would relish killing a child, even though the child be reckless with his sled.

In common with churches throughout the diocese of Hartford, a collection in the interest of the Catholic university at Washington was taken at St. James' church at all the masses on Sunday.

Danielson's town basketball team has developed its game to a point where it will begin playing a winter schedule of games of this week.

Major E. L. Darbie, Captain F. O. Armington and Lieut. Harold E. Greene were at Hartford Saturday to attend a dinner of national guard officers of Connecticut.

THE LOSS OF THE S 51

The S-51 has not been lifted from the bottom of the ocean off Block Island, but the inquiry which has been pursued by the naval court discloses that the responsibility for the sinking of the submarine rests with the City of Rome, the steamship which crashed into the side of the underwater boat on a moonlight night and sent it to the bottom within a few minutes.

There have been claims to the effect that the S-51 was being operated by rookies, that it did not carry lights, that it was crossing the path of the City of Rome and there has been talk to the effect that such government vessels are operated in a manner to cause no end of anxiety to masters of coasting vessels.

Such are not supported by the naval court which points out that the light of the submarine was picked up by the man in the pilot house and by the bow watch on the City of Rome long before the underwater boat was approached, that there was plenty of time to have turned out for the vessel ahead and that the "S-51 was on the starboard side of the City of Rome and the City of Rome was required to keep out of the way."

The inquiry reveals that both vessels were going in the same direction which accounts for the City of Rome seeing neither the red nor the starboard light of the submarine and yet during the five or six miles that the submarine light was seen nothing was done to avoid a collision, and when a whistle was blown and an effort was made it was too late.

Criticism is made of the conditions which prevailed on the City of Rome, the failure of the searchlight, the failure to lower more than one boat, the quick departure from the scene and the failure to mark the spot where the submarine went down. The inquiry will be the basis upon which the government can be expected to act. This needless loss of life created an insistent demand for the fixing of the blame. The hitherto fine record of the commander of the City of Rome has been set forth but from its close study of the facts there appears to have been no circumstances which offered an excuse for a collision on a clear, moonlight night.

PROTECTING THE FARMERS

The farmer is entitled to all the protection he can get and a lot more than he is getting in the opinion of a Massachusetts senator who has introduced a bill in the legislature of that state aimed at those who make a practice of raiding the farms of all kinds of produce.

According to the proposed legislature a jail sentence of not less than 30 days would have to be imposed with no chance of modification, in case a person was convicted of the theft of fruit or vegetables of the value of five dollars—if the guilty person drove an automobile his license would be taken away and the registration of the car would be annulled if the driver was the owner, or if the owner knew what the car was being used for By the provisions of another bill chicken thieves would be dealt with in the same manner.

There are those who seem to think that whatever grows in the country is free if it can be gotten without being discovered. It makes little difference whether it is fruit, vegetables, poultry or even livestock. Too many make a practice of raiding truck gardens, poultry farms and the country places for whatever seems to interest them. If it lies beyond the city it seems to be regarded by some as common property to be appropriated by the first comer.

The automobile has been of great assistance to those who engage in such raiding. They can cover much territory, drop down quickly and get away in a twinkling, or make many frequent visits to especially attractive places.

There is, of course, no excuse for any such practice. It is deliberate and in too many instances there is no restrictions on the destruction that goes with the thefts. There is certainly no reason for leniency to be shown in such cases. The state police make the apprehension of such raiders easier but the farmers are entitled to all the discouragement which can be expected to accompany a stiff law and its full enforcement.

MEXICO AGAIN

After the experience which Mexico has had because of the failure to give proper protection to the interests of aliens it is surprising that it is now engaged in the enactment of new laws which fail to take into consideration those very same features.

When both branches of the legislature in Mexico City approve land laws which apply restrictions to the alien owner they are going contrary to the very questions which it had been hoped had been settled. Mexico is bothered by revolutions and it seeks to discourage those which get a start or encouragement from outside its territory. Thus its reason for desiring to forbid the ownership of land along its borders or seacoasts by aliens can be understood, although it seems to place all aliens in the same category.

At the same time Mexico also seeks to limit the rights of aliens in Mexican corporations which are engaged in developing natural resources. Mexico is in need of capital and yet it is saying to this capital that it need not expect protection from the Mexican government and cannot apply to any other government in behalf of its rights.

Mexico has been told in quite plain words what the attitude of this government is concerning such legislation as limits the rights of its citizens. The Mexican law has not been put into effect. President Calles has not as yet signed it. Representations have been made to him with the idea of preventing this act, or of not bringing about the necessary adjustments that will make the laws satisfactory. We are not trying to tell Mexico how its laws must be made except that the rights of aliens must be respected. The demands are no more than Mexico should expect to receive under the circumstances and unless this point is cleared up at this time Mexico can expect that the disadvantages which will follow will be much greater than the advantages which it expects to receive by the law.

WISE COOPERATION

The experience of Topeka, Kan., is not so different from many other cities. There it was found as the result of various organizations endeavoring to provide Christmas cheer for the poor families that there were some who were bountifully taken care of while there were others who failed to get anything. It was a case where there was lack of cooperation. The different organizations had not worked together and the consequence was that there was a serious overlapping and the even more srious fact that some were ignored.

Topeka worked out an interesting scheme whereby the various organizations pooled their efforts, established a store and determining that there was about $3 that could be provided for each poor person from the funds. Books of certificates worth $3 were therefore distributed and such purposes were made as the store permitted and there was a much better distribution of things desired while it insured all being provided for.

The indiscriminate practice of handing out Christmas presents always encounters certain drawbacks, the worst of which is the failure to reach some of the most deserving ones while a double portion goes to those who have kept their position in the limelight. The combining of the efforts is unquestionably the best method of dealing with this problem. It is the plan which many communities have adopted in dealing with the poor throughout the year and certainly if it works well then it certainly should at Christmas time. The doubling up in certain cases only to neglect others carries its own indictment of the former system.

SUBSTITUTE FOR PERSHING

General Pershing has been granted permission to return to this country for medical and dental treatment. There is a possibility that he will not return to Arica at the head of the plebiscite commission, though that is of course mere guesswork. But it is not the intention of the president that the chairmanship of the commission should be left vacant during his vacation whether it is temporary or permanent. The situation does not in fact warrant it. The feeling already runs high enough between Chile and Peru without removing all such restraint as the chairman of the commission might exert.

As a substitute for General Pershing Major General Lassiter, commander of the Canal Zone, has been picked and the war department has indicated its willingness to allow him to undertake those duties.

General Lassiter is a man of large experience, a soldier who dealt with large problems and the fact that he has been picked for the duties indicates that he possesses the ability to shoulder the responsibilities and do credit to the unenviable office.

Whether he goes to Arica to relieve General Pershing permanently or whether it is only for such a time as is required for the latter to repair his physical condition there is confidence that the selection is an excellent one and that the duties will be placed in efficient hands for administration

The Tacna-Arica dispute has prevailed too long for an easy settlement but there are some discords which from a distance seem entirely needless.

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Paint the guilt frames carefully with white of egg, using a camel's hair brush. It will renovate them beautifully.

Varnish every other step so the stairway can be used while being renovated. When dry, paint the remaining stairs.

Grate breadcrumbs into the pan before putting in the batter and your cake will never burn on the bottom.

Leftover meat, even if there is very little, will make a tasty supper or luncheon dish if it is added to scrambled eggs, omelets or rice.

Vegetable refuse, such as potato peelings and cabbage leaves should be burned at the back of the kitchen fire They burn well and save coal.

Sew weights (such as are used in women's coats) in the corners of drapes that turn up. They are easily concealed and make the drapes hang straight.

Dry your orange peels and grind them to a coarse powder. This can be used to flavor, etc. Lemon peels may be used the same way.

If you have a waxed finish on the living room floor and wish to clean it, put a few drops of crude oil on a soft dry cloth and give the surface a light polishing after having dusted it well with a dry cloth.

Put a little butter under the spout of the cream pitcher before placing it upon the table. The cream will not drip over the butter line and greasy spots on the linen will be avoided.

Never use soap and water for washing a marble mantlepiece. Use plain water to which a little ammonia has been added, and polish with a soft luster.

Make an inner covering for sofa pillows of oilcloth, and an outer cover Such pillows can be left on the lawn or porch during a rain and will not be ruined.

Rugs that have become torn and frayed can be made neat again by turning back the edges with a wide strip of adhesive tape. This makes a flatter and neater edge than sewing.

A CHANGE FOR GEMS

For a change from the ordinary muffins or gems, add to the ingredients called for by any good recipe, fine chopped and floured currants, raisins, figs, dates, sugared ginger, or orange peel nuts or any mixture of the above that pleases you, in the proportion of one-fourth as much as the amount of flour used.

CLEANING WINDOWS

When you are cleaning a room make some powdered whitening into a thin paste with cold water and smear this mixture over the panes with a piece of rag. When dry lightly rub off and polish the glass with clean dusters. The window is thus cleaned easily and quickly.

CANTELOUPE

Cantaloupe should not be prepared until one is ready to serve it. If it is cut and allowed to stand for any length of time with cracked ice in it, the flavor is entirely destroyed. If special chilling is desired, pack the cantelope in cracked ice without cutting and let it stand for a few hours.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A child who starts out in life handicapped by poor or painful vision has a constant and losing struggle.

In case of burns be sure that your own hands are scrupulously clean and that nothing unclean touches the injured skin surface while you are dressing it. Burns are easily infected.

The middle ear is a small cavity in the bone of the head at the inside end of the opening in the ear. It is connected with the inside of the nose by a small tube called the Eustachian tube. A thin membrane forms the outside end of the middle ear This is called the drum of the ear. The ear-drum is so delicate that casual insertion of hairpins and toothpicks into the ear to stop a tickling sensation should never be permitted. Ear-drums not infrequently are punctured by such carelessness, and suffering, and even deafness, are the result.

Massage with cocoa butter to feed the skin. If you have trouble with the stiff butter, melt it and mix with the same amount of cold cream: this will give you a cream easier to work into the skin though not quite so fattening. Scrub the shoulders and chest first with hot water and soap and rinse with hot water, so the pores of the skin are open and ready to take up the butter. Pin a soft cloth over the skin to protect your underclothing for some cream is sure to work out after a massage.

PLAN RESTFUL COLOR SCHEME

The ideal bedroom should be comfortable and at the same time be particularly suited to the personality of the occupant. A color scheme that is restful and soothing as well as artistic is advisable and in this way complete relaxation of the mind and body can be obtained.

This does not necessarily entail a great expense, as delightful rooms can be decorated with very little expenditure if carefully planned. For the curtains, drapes, bedspreads, dresser scarfs and other accessories which go far toward making a room individual and lovely there is nothing more adaptable than cretonne, colored voile, linen, chintz and unbleached cotton with applique of colored gingham or crepe.

ABOUT WASTE BASKETS

Just because it serves as a receptacle for discarded odds-and-ends is no reason why the waste-basket should itself look like something that has been left behind by the moving men. It may with entire appropriateness be given a decided decorative value of its own.

For the bedroom, boudoir type of waste-basket, few raw materials are better than the hatbox. With the addition of cord loops at the side, and figured wallpaper or old prints or lithographs pasted on its outside and shellacked, this humble container takes on a new spirit. If in addition it is lined with a small all-over patter wallpaper, its transformation becomes complete.

SHADE TO LIGHT DARK CORNER

A colorful lampshade, which is especially adaptable for a dark corner, is the one which has a light weight material over a brilliant lining. For example a frame can be covered with a bright and strong colored yellow and then stretched over it a light green theatrical gauze. The effect is soft but at the same time highly colorful.

DICTATES OF FASHION

A tailored dress of gray kasha cloth is interestingly trimmed with raspberry colored velvet.

Floating panels of chiffon or very delicate lace are a popular trimming for chiffon evening gowns.

The satin coat for winter is often lined with wool, particularly with light colored kasha cloth. Inevitably it is fur-trimmed.

Canes are growing in popularity, both as trimming for coats and as separate garments. Often they are gorgeously lined.

Charming little garters which any girl can make herself are of silver lace with flat flowers made of different colored ribbons.

The sash is of increasing importance, and is frequently the point at which the trimming and color of a frock is concentrated.

Silver tissue combined with wide flounces of silver lace fashion the most enchanting dance frocks for the debutante and her younger sister.

With a molded bodice and smart uneven hem-line, the new frocks of black velvet for the young girl gain in chic by the addition of collars and cuffs of cream lace.

Turbans of felt made on close high lines are the creation of one of the foremost milliners of Paris. They have been taken up by the smartest women both in Paris and Amerlea.

Windbreakers, just like a grownup's are of soft suede in shades of rose, pencil blue, gold and sand. The collars, cuffs and hip bands of these sport jackets and hand-knitted of wools in jacquard designs.

Although a model of metal brocade lined with velvet and collared with chinchilla is defined as the newest version of the hostess gown it is difficult at first glance to decide whether it is a negligee or an evening wrap.

Evening bags, which are smaller and of better quality than ever before, look like handfuls of jewels. Most of them, square or oblong, are studded solid with rhinestones, pearls or imitation colored stones.

NEW HATS SHADE SHOULDERS

The large hats are not being overlooked during the winter resort season. Indeed there are of such size that it is impossible to overlook them The majority are of hair braids but some models have been designed in satin. They will not attain the dimensions of six feet but the brims will be extensive enough to keep the shoulders shaded.

MUFFS AND CUFFS

Muffs and cuffs are so much alike today as to be almost indistinguishable. The new evening coats worn at recent first nights have cuffs of white fox or ermine extending from thumb tip to elbow and so wide as to allow plenty of room for both hands to be slipped within them. Fur collars are so wide that they would protect a giraffe if turned up to the fullest extent.

SKII SOCKS TURNED DOWN

The stockings worn for skiing and snow shoeing this winter are of very heavy wool and come only a little higher than the shoe tops over which they are turned. They have a rolled top with bright colored design, a good deal like the golf stockings. Into these tops go the trousers of the skiing suits or the water proof puttees which are used if breeches are worn.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Iron frills, lace, sleeves and collars of blouses first.

Iron lace and embroidery on the wrong side only.

When sewing instead of being obliged to put the material on a table, have a tapboard made of heavy cardboard or light wood.

Irons will be kept smooth if washed in strong soapsuds and well dried. If they are kept in the kitchen or where there is much steam they will rust on the upper sides. It is best to keep the irons in a box.

Instead of the clothes basket of wicker or a like material, metal laundry boxes are being substituted in some instances. The inside of the box is undecorated and the outside can either be plain or covered with a patterned fabric.

When sprinkling flat pieces, such as towels, pillow-slips, napkins, curtains handkerchiefs, and so forth for ironing, dip one article in five in clear water, squeezing, not wringing, as dry as possible Lay flat two dry articles, then one wet one, then two dry, and so on, rolling tightly when all are done There will be no dry spots and every piece will be a good, even dampness. It is a pleasure to iron clothes sprinkled this way.

ECONOMY IN NET CURTAINS

Often the service of the short net curtains is curtailed by the almost inevitable shrinkage of the attractive fabric after laundering. As the curtain is usually gathered on a rod, it is the length which is noticeably effect. Do not throw such curtains into the discard for there is a very satisfactory remedy Make an entire new hem of net and then disguise this fact with several rows of darning stitch in bright-hued wools to harmonize with the other furnishings in the room. This border can be repeated in the bottom of the hem if desired.

BLACK BOWLS IN VOGUE

Black lacquer bowls for flowers and fruit are quite the vogue. A black bowl looks particularly charming with white table linen. Such a bowl filled with flowers and balanced on either side with black lacquer candlesticks makes a very pretty table decoration for a luncheon or dinner.

BRINGING HOME THE HANKIE

Pockets in the little girl's dresses are a joy to her and to her mother also. For the young lady is far more apt to return home with her handkerchief if she has a convenient pocket for same.

CHANGE THE CREASES

If table and bed linens are done up at home, change the creases occasionally and iron them in entirely different folds. It means longer life.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Ohio has the only mortgage company in the country organized and run by women.

Twenty-three women in England are known to earn their livelihood as chimney-sweeps.

Miss Elizabeth Evans, three years out of college, has achieved brilliant success as an architect in Kansas City

Mrs. Edith Dohyns of Cincinnati is believed to be the only woman in the world who runs a sand-blasting company.

Thirty-five women students are taking engineering courses this year at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

English railways employ nearly 1,800 women as switchmen, crossing tenders, porters, painters, yardmasters and station agents.

In Lawford, an English village of about 800 inhabitants women fill the positions of tax collector, church clerk, postmistress and letter carriers.

DON'T SCRAPE

Avoid scraping pans to remove food that has stuck. Soak for a while and then use cleanser or wire wool. Scraping with knife will prove injurious to any sort of pan.

CLEANS TAN SHOES

To clean tan shoes thoroughly wash them with warm water and castile soap. Let them dry, then polish in the usual way.

RECIPES

Cranberry Trifle: Pick over and wash one pint of cranberries, add one-half cup of raisins and one cup of cold water. Cook until the berries are soft. Rub through a sieve; there should be three-fourths cup of pulp. Add one cup of powdered sugar and one-eighth teaspoon of salt. Chill mixture. Turn into a bowl set in fine crushed ice add whites of three eggs and beat with a wire whip until mixture holds its shape (about thirty minutes.) Chill and serve in stemmed glasses with roast turkey.

Glace Dates— Remove the stones from one pound of dates by making a small incision in each one with a sharp knife. Stuff each date with a half walnut; about one and one-fourth cups of walnut halves will be needed. Put two cups of sugar and one-fifth teaspoon of cream of tartar in a saucepan and cook until the sugar is entirely melted, stirring to keep it from burning. Dip each date in the sirup and place on a well greased pan to harden.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

James H. Hustis, whose resignation of the presidency of the Boston & Maine Railroad has just been announced, is 62 years old today. Mr. Hustis is typical of the many men prominent in American railway circles who have risen to high positions by hard work and gradual advancement. He is a native of New York city, who, after the schooling which a 14-year-old boy gets, entered the office of the superintendent of the New York Central and Hudson River road, and from that day he has been climbing. The year 1907 found him general superintendent of the western division of the Central, after which he was assistant general manager of the Boston & Albany road. In 1913 he became president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford and two years later was appointed executive head of the Boston & Maine system.

Stories That Recall Others

They Removed Their Hats

Bob, age six, accompanied by his parents and three year old brother, entered the elevator. One man and several women were in the car. Bob and his father removed their hats but, much to the youngster's surprise, the other man kept his hat on.

Bob looked at the man a moment and then turned to his little brother, saying loud enough for all to hear: "Jimmie, take off your hat." Jimmie took off his hat and so did the man with a grin of appreciation spreading over the faces of all the elevator's occupants.

Didn't Have to Flag It.

A friend had offered to take a traveling man to a neighboring town, but he knew he would be obliged to take the train back. He completed his errand and rushed for the station only to see the train go rushing through. He waited until he heard the next one coming and sauntered onto the platform but about that time he saw the engineer open the throttle wider and he was left standing.

He was disgusted, but asked of a youngster who sauntered by with an all day sucker in his mouth, "Say, boy do you have to flag all trains that stop in this town?"

The youngster looked at him a moment, and finally took the sucker out of his mouth. "Naw, yer don't have to," he replied, "You can stand like a darn fool and let 'em go by if yer want to."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Pensions

Mr. Editor: I understand that the next postal bill will call for an increase of pension allowance to $100 per month, now $60.

By what divine right did congress obligate the American people to guarantee to make good any deficiency in their pension fund of the members of the Mail Clerks association any more than any other association in these United States of America!

Are the mail clerks any more important to the people than farmers, carpenters, shoe-makers, clothing makers, miners, railroad men, etc?

Can congress single out any class for special favors without grafting the remainder of the American work-people?

Will some one of our brilliant New England statesmen please answer the above question? He must be a statesman who has been making distinctions. He will soon be called upon to make the remarkable distinction of $88 per month between the old soldier and the old mail clerk in favor of the mail clerk!

The old soldier earned his pension by submitting himself for the supreme sacrifice, patriotically, for his country.

The old mail clerk never earned his pension any more than any other class of work-people, but had a better chance to make good than any other class of work-people. He never suffered from a crop failure, waiting for work, or "hard times." He always received in the past three times as much as the farmer and now he receives six times as much for income. The farmer works 16 hours per day and the mail clerk eight.

In view of the above statement of particulars what can we think of our statesmen who obligated the people of little chance to carry the people of the biggest chance, even without investigating the capability of the mail clerks to take care of themselves! Moral: Send educated business men to Washington and keep them there but one term!

From Small Beginnings

Henry Bone, who Could Paint the Smallest of Pictures

Hokusai, the Japanese artist, made a picture about 50 feet long and 30 feet wide, and slapped the paint on with a broom that he dipped in a pail of coloring. That is one way to paint. Henry Bone, the English artist, painted pictures so small and so delicate that he used the very smallest and finest of tiny brushes, the least microscopic bit of paint, and had to employ magnifying glasses to see what he was about. That is another way to paint.

Henry Bone, the English artist, painted miniatures not only to the king's taste but to the taste of many kings. He was the official miniature painter to three kings and one prince, which is almost equal to holding four of a kind, as the initiated say! The Prince of Wales liked him; George the Third smiled upon him; George the Fourth admired him, and William the Fourth delighted in him Victoria, the Queen, would have done much for him, but, unfortunately, he died three years before she became Queen Still, with so much royalty smiling upon him he should have felt satisfied.

Henry Bone's father made furniture, and brought up the son to do good work with wood The boy liked it, and he liked especially to do really artistic work. He began to draw pictures and so the father sent him to an artist for instruction Somehow the boy became interested in enamels and began to paint on enamel. He married after a while, looked at his wife's bright eyes, and said: "Just the thing." So he set to work and painted a picture of the bright-eyed lady on a small button-like piece of enamel It was a beautiful picture, colored partly by love and partly by art. For the rest of his life Henry Bone was busy painting miniatures. No one ever excelled him. When he was 76 his close work made him blind, so for three years he lived in darkness. Love of his wife helped to make him famous!

MRS. O'BRIEN CERTAINLY APPRECIATES THE VALUE OF FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

Says She Depends On It To Keep Her Children Free From Colds

Mrs. P. O'Brein certainly appreciates the value of Father John's Medicine for her children. Writing from No. 30 Donnacona Ave., Montreal, Mrs. O'Brein states: "I am greatly satisfied with the results of using Father John's Medicine. It rid my daughter, 13 years old, of an attack of Bronchitis. It was only after using other medicines without satisfaction that a friend recommended Father John's Medicine to me and now I recommend it to my friends."

A child's body is like a stove in one respect. The stove must have a constant supply of fuel, to give out plenty of heat. The child must have a constant supply of certain food elements, in an easily digested form, in order that the body may be well-nourished and the strength and vigor kept up.

Colds, coughs, bronchitis fasten on under-nourished children.

And these dangerously weakening troubles hang on as long as the child does not get the kind of food that is needed for strength.

But—when Father John's Medicine is given to the pale, weak, run-down children, they gain weight, gain color, gain the strength to throw off the weakening dangerous coughs.

The reason why Father John's Medicine is such a dependable body-builder is because its basis is pure cod liver oil so blended with other valuable ingredients that its food elements are readily taken up even by those who are weak and run-down.

MADE QUICK WORK IN CLEARING OFF SNOW

Street Commissioner John C. Donovan got to work promptly on the snow in the streets Saturday night, starting his men in at 9:30 and keeping at work until 5:30 Sunday morning. Streets all over the city were ploughed out by the use of the motor plough and in the business streets the snow was carted away by the wagon load and dumped into the river at Rose place.

When the Sunday morning travel began, motor operators found the streets in excellent condition for their use, and much satisfaction was expressed with the promptness and efficiency with which the street commissioner had tackled the problem of the removal of the snow.

$4,000 FIRE DAMAGE TO WATER TANK AT THE INEBRIATE FARM

The 25,000 gallon water tank and standpipe at the inebriate farm, connected with the Norwich State hospital for the Insane, was so badly damaged by fire early Sunday evening that it will have to be replaced with a new tank. The damage was estimated by Superintendent F. S. Wilcox, at between $3,000 and $4,000. The fire started shortly after 7 o'clock Sunday evening when a small kerosene stove, used to keep the pipes from freezing, either exploded or became overheated

The flames spread to the wooden trough which houses the standpipe and spread to the wooden work around the tank. A telephone call for help was sent to central fire headquarters in this city, and although the location of the fire was several miles beyond the city limits, Engine No. 1, and Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft responded.

In spite of the fact that they were somewhat handicapped by the available water supply, the firemen did excellent work in extinguishing the blaze. The tank stands 150 feet in the air and owing to the water pressure it was impossible to get a stream to the top of the tank. The wood work was badly damaged by the flames. It was close to 9 o'clock when the fire was finally extinguished.

The huge tank remained upright but it is thought that the supports may have been weakened. The tank will have to be replaced. The local firemen arrived back at central station shortly before 9:30. The tank was erected about a year ago after its predecessor had blown down.

Dr. Wilcox spoke in the highest terms of the work of the Norwich firemen. To reach the location of the fire they had to travel an almost impossible road, and when they reached the spot they worked like heroes to get water on the blaze and their work was responsible for saving the water tank from being burned to the ground.

ST. JOSEPH POLISH PARISH HAS MOST SUCCESSFUL YEAR

There was $8,936.07 in the treasury on Jan. 1, 1925 and $59,000 was borrowed towards the erection of the new school, making a grand total of $111,249.15.

The expenses were as follows: Salaries $5,860, improvements and repairs in church, rectory, convent and grounds amounted to $7,518.71, diocesan collections $609.63, paid on the new school building $89,804.68, water, light, insurance, interest and other expenses amounted to $7,081.62. After paying all bills a balance of $374.51 was left in the treasury. Father Iciek also announced that the Aubrey property, on the corner of Cliff and Oak streets, had been bought, and perhaps in time would be turned over for playgrounds for the school children.

The revenue of the St. Joseph parish for 1925 was nearly three times that of the best previous year. The congregation was well pleased with the results. On the fifteenth of this month Fr. Iciek will celebrate his first anniversary as pastor of the parish. The new school is rapidly nearing completion. It will be ready for occupancy by the end of the month. A public announcement will be made when the new school and its community features will be completed and opened for inspection and occupation.

Just as soon as the children are moved into the new school building, the old school will be remodeled for a meeting hall, club room for the young ladies, and a domestic science room, both the bowling alleys, pool room and club room in the new school as well as the club room for the young ladies and the domestic science room will be available to the general public.

GRAND OFFICERS COMPLIMENT NORWICH U. C. T. COUNCIL

Arthur L. Hewett, of Boston, grand councillor of the United Commercial Travelers, paid his annual visitation to Norwich council, No. 309, U. C. T. Saturday afternoon and evening at New London. Grand Councillor Hewitt was accompanied by H. H. Hill, Boston, chairman of the grand jurisprudence committee. The business meeting of the council was held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at Odd Fellows' hall, New London. Both Grand Councillor Hewitt and Chairman Hill spoke at some length commenting very highly on the splendid work being done by Norwich council. They complimented the officers and members of Norwich Council on paving the way for the greatest civic enterprise ever attempted by any council in the order.

Three candidates were initiated by the degree team of the council in their usual commendable manner. There were 50 present at the meeting, including twelve past councillors. The meeting adjourned to the Mohican hotel where in the main dining room a splendid banquet menu was served to the traveling men, their distinguished guests, and the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Norwich Council. Rev. J Romeyn Danforth of New London said grace. The menu was as follows:

Vegetable Soup
Fried Scallops Tartar Sauce
Fried Chicken
Mashed Potatoes Boiled Buttered Onion
Mashed Squash Green String Beans
Cranberry Sauce Rolls
Ice Cream Fancy Pastry
Demi Tasse
Cigars Cigarettes

The table was prettily decorated and there were boutonnier souvenirs. During the menu a splendid musical programme was given.

Mayor Fox of New London extended a very cordial welcome to the visitors to New London. He proved a very witty speaker. City Manager William Holt of New London, a member of Norwich council, also made an address of welcome. Senior Councilor James E. Campbell of Norwich council extended a very hearty welcome to the visiting grand officers and other guests, as did Mrs. Ernest A. Bean, of this city, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Norwich Council. Grand Councillor Hewitt stated that this was the first time he had ever received such a welcome from the ladies auxiliary while he was visiting councils of the order. The grand officers expressed their delight at making the visitation to Norwich Council and stated that they had looked forward with anticipation to the visit, as Norwich Council is setting the pace for other councils of the order.

Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London, was heard in a splendid address. His rapid fire run of wit kept the audience laughing for some time before he finally settled down to the real message he delivered to the traveling boys and their guests. A splendid musical programme was given with Prof. Fred White of New London at the piano. Impersonations and story telling numbers by Charles D. Wicks of Niantic added to the attractiveness of the programme.

The toastmaster for the evening was Herbert R. Branche of this city, secretary of the executive committee and editor of the Eastern Conn. U. C. T. Monthly. After welcoming the guests Mr. Branche said that from the beginning of the settling of America by the Pilgrims commercialism immediately took root here. In less than seven years time the colonists were shipping furs, salted fish, barrel staves, etc., to England in ships aggregating 200 tons burden, built in ship yards erected by the colonists. Ten years after they landed there were five vessels despatched at one time, three of which were built in Massachusetts.

This I call commercialism. The first settlement in Connecticut was of a commercial nature, first at Windsor, second at Saybrook, third at Trading Cove, Norwich, and fourth at Pawcatuck. These were all trading posts from which the permanent settlements sprang. The first sawmill opening early in the 17th century right in New London and the first paper mill was turning out finished product in 1766 in Norwich.

Three streams, Shetucket, Quinebaug and Yantic, combining to form the Thames river, gave to eastern Connecticut an industrial advantage. Industry and commercialism have ever gone hand in hand. In closing Mr. Branche again extended a hearty welcome to the grand officers and guests of the evening. Following the after dinner programme the remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing in the large dance hall at the hotel.

The arrangements for the banquet were in the hands of the regular entertainment committee of the council, A. F. Rogers, chairman, G. W. Mitchell, P. H. Sheridan, Merton Johnson, F. R. Smith, W. P. Ward and H. A. Perry. The officers of the council are:

Senior councillor, J. E. Campbell; junior councillor, A. F. Rogers; secretary and treasurer, C. W. Pearson; conductor, Ernest A. Bean; page, G. W. Mitchell; sentinel, Merton Johnson and chaplain, C. S. Peckham.

MANY INTERNATIONAL SPORTS ARE CEMENTING A BETTER FRIENDSHIP

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—Better understanding through close association in sports of the nations of the world, today appears to be something tangible. Never in history, except in the years of the Olympic games, has such a series of international competitions been in prospect. Within the past few days America sent her greatest woman tennis player to appear upon the courts of Europe, perhaps against the remarkable French star, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen. Although Miss Wills' visit to Europe is primarily for the study of art, she carried 30 racquets with her brushes.

Six tournaments at Cannes, two at Nice and one each at Menton, Beaulieu and Monte Carlo are before Miss Wills if she cares to participate. Mlle. Lenglen's quick recovery from a cold this week indicates that her condition is ready for a crucial test against the American champion. Following the French tournaments Miss Wills intends to compete in the British championships at Wimbledon, England.

Late in May other women players of the United States will join Miss Wills in competition in England for the Wightman trophy. Two leading American men players, possibly including the champion, William T. Tilden, will appear at Wimbledon, and team matches in other countries are in prospect. Borotra and LaCoste of France are expected to appear in the American indoor title play.

Track

Track stars of Europe, Olympic champions all, are arriving weekly to appear in American indoor competitions.

The latest arrival is the youthful Charley Hoff of Norway, who leaps almost 14 feet in the pole vault—a man who speaks English well and is expected to supplant the remarkable Paavo Nurmi as a favorite this season of track followers. Ubert Houben of Germany, conqueror of Paddock and Murchison; Paulen Holland's great middle distance runner, and Goodwin, recordbreaking walker from England, will be among the internationalists in the indoor meets.

Once again athletes of Oxford and Cambridge in England have been invited to participate in the Penn relays this spring. Lord Burghley, hurdler, and Porritt, dash men, made impressive showings last year, both in the relays and in the special collegiate summer events.

At the same time international golf takes on new lustre, with the prospect that American amateur champion, Bobby Jones, will again visit England. On Jones' last visit to England his temperament was commented on by critics, for he tossed clubs around once in a while. But this year England will see a new Jones and from all reports the British enthusiasts are anxious for the opportunity.

Jim Barnes undoubtedly will go back to defend his British open title and possibly Walter Hagen will go with him. Then the Walker cup team led by President William C. Fownes of the United States Golf association, will cross the Atlantic.

The U. S. G. A. may adopt an old English tournamgpt system with the amateur championship this year, eliminating the qualifying round and starting a picked field at match play. Only men of calibre, their prowess proved by cold figures, would be elegible for the title play under this plan The sixteen-qualifier idea, which caused many heartaches at Oakmont last September, has been cast out.

Billiards

Jack Schaefer, described by the former champion, Willie Hoppe, as the greatest of 18.2 balkline billiard players, regained his championship from Edouard Horemans of Belgium last week at Chicago by overwhelming victory in their 1500 point match. Eric Hagenlacher of Germany is Schaefer's next challenger, and the match probably will be played in March.

Boxing

Another international victory scored by American the past week was that of Dave Shade, of California, over the former middleweight boxing champion of England, Roland Todd. Todd will have another opportunity when he faces the champion, Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, in Toronto.

For a time Tommy Milligan of Scotland is denied his chance at Mickey Walker's welterweight title through the New York boxing commission's interference. Walker, by his refusal to appear in the Christmas fund matches for a reasonable fig ire, incurred the commission's displeasure.

Skating

Clas Thunberg of Finland, Olympic skating champion, faces his first great American test on Thursday night at Madison Square Garden when he matches blades with the lightning-fast Joe Moore in a three-mile event. Bobby McLean, remarkable little blade man himself, believes Thunberg is one of the greatest skaters ever developed.

AGGIE BASKETBALL TEAM PREPARING FOR STIFF GAMES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Jan. 10—Following their impressive victory over Norwich last Friday in the season's first basketball game, the Connecticut Aggies will tomorrow resume practice in preparation for a string of five games that will be played this month.

Tufts, Wesleyan, Union, Springfield and Harvard, in the order named, are the teams that Coach Dole's charges will meet between now and January 20, with Tufts first next Saturday at Storrs.

After watching Tufts defeat Wesleyan at Middletown last night, Coach Dole today remarked that his team will be severely tested in meeting the Jumbos from the Bay State. Any team that can turn back Wesleyan on its home court is good, and the brand of ball played by Tufts last night was all of that.

Coach Dole plans to give his team an intensive drill this week, with scrimmage tomorrow and Wednesday. On Friday the varsity will rest in order to be in prime condition for Tufts.

Connecticut followers were pleased with the showing of the team against Norwich. While the game was an easy one for the Aggies, the team showed clever basketball to indicate that Sumner Dole has another strong team in the making. Offensively, the Aggies were unstoppable, and their five man defense effectively held down the Norwich attempts to score. A lack of experienced reserve material is Coach Dole's chief worry at the present time.

Wesleyan will be met at Middletown by the Aggies Jan. 20, four days after the Tufts game. This is one of the objective games on the Connecticut schedule, and the Storrs team will be out to break the jinx that has been ever-present in its court games with the Red and Black. Last year Wesleyan was the only team to defeat the Aggies on its home court. Union will be met at Schenectady, Jan. 23, Springfield at Storrs Jan. 27, and Harvard at Cambridge Jan. 30. The team will then lay off during the mid-year examination period, starting the campaign again with Trinity at home Feb. 9.

Schalk to Coach Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 10—(AP)—Virtual assurance that Ray Schalk, Chicago American catcher, will coach the University of Wisconsin's baseball squad was reported following his conference with athletic officials. George Little, director of athletics, declined to make a statement pending a meeting Monday with the athletic council.

N. E. CONFERENCE BASKETBALL GETS INTO ACTION THIS WEEK

STORRS, Conn., Jan. 10—(AP)—New England conference basketball will get under way in earnest this week, with the teams of Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Connecticut Aggies, all scheduled for contests.

Massachusetts Aggies and Connecticut Aggies opened their seasons with victories last week, Massachusetts downing Norwich at Amherst, Thursday by a 36-21 count, and Connecticut Aggies overwhelming the same team the following day at Storrs by a 48-16 score. Massachusetts won its second game last night, defeating Worcester Tech at Worcester by a 27-14 score.

Both Massachusetts and Connecticut looked good in their opening games, and followers of the two agricultural institutions are looking forward to successful seasons for their respective fives. It is interesting to note that three members of the first All-New England basketball team for last year are found on the "Aggie" fives of this year, Tompa and Parkenheimer, who play forward for Massachusetts this season, were picked for forward and guard respectively a year ago. Schofield, of Connecticut, was picked for forward, a position he now fills. Captain Makofski, of Connecticut, was selected for a guard berth on the second All-New England team.

TONY WEST IS REINSTATED BY BALTIMORE ORIOLES

Tony West, local boy, along with Rube Parnham, two pitchers suspended last season by Jack Dunn of the Baltimore Orioles for not reporting at the beginning of the season have been reinstated by Dunn according to a recent announcement.

West refused to report to the Orioles last season because of an injury to his arm which he thought would prevent his making any kind of a showing. West pitched good ball for Riverview during the summer but his arm bothered him during the greater part of the season and it was not until late in the year that he was back to old time form. However, West expects to go to Baltimore this spring and will go south with the club.

GRANGE STARS AS PEARS BEAT SOUTHERN ALL-STARS

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Harold "Red" Grange and his Chicago Bears, exhibited their football skill before a crowd of 6,000 persons by defeating the Southern All-Stars, 14 to 8 here today. The contest, marked by numerous penalties, was played on a muddy field.

Grange supplied the biggest thrill of the game in the last quarter when he side-stepped a half dozen players and returned "Moon" Ducote's punt 51 yards to the six yard line. A fifteen yard penalty was imposed on the Bears on that play for clipping. Line plays by Walquist and Knop gained 12 yards and Grange plunged over the line for a touchdown.

E. Vick scored the Bears' first touchdown in the second quarter by a punt he had blocked behind the goal line. Sternaman drop-kicked goals for the two points, after touchdowns.

Grange's runs almost always netted five yards. A 20 yard gain was the "Galloping Ghost's" best from scrimmage and nine yards his next best. He carried the pigskin 16 times from scrimmage for a total gain of 72 yards, an average of four and a half yards per jaunt. He was thrown for losses twice, once for two and again for six.

"Brother" Brown, Tulane star of other years, was the outstanding player of the All-Stars, ripping around the Bears' right end in the first quarter for 36 yards. Lester Lautenschlaeger ran his team well and returned several punts from ten to thirty yards.

TWO FAST INDOOR GAMES AT ARMORY TONIGHT

This (Monday) evening the games in the Norwich Indoor League should be very fast and interesting as the Battery B and Nutmegs meet at 6.30 while the Stars, who are forging ahead rapidly in the league race and the Tigers meet at 9.30. These games will be the first meeting between the above named clubs and there should be action throughout the entire innings.

In the 6.30 game, the Battery with the regular lineup that was cleaning up until the Stars were met last week, will face the Nutmegs. The latter line up will be chosen from the following men: Kelly, J. Tombari, J. Burns, W. Burns, Gross, Healey, Kampf, Segal, Falcone, Brown, Couture, Nevins, Lambert, Bonville, Winters and Fenton. Bonville and Fenton are new additions to the club's roster and should add much needed strength.

In the 9.30 game the Stars who are making a strong bid for leadership will meet the Tigers. The latter team is out to win at any cost and have several well-known performers in their lineup.

The following is the league standing to date:

	W.	L.	Pct
Battery B	4	1	.800

ENGLAND ACCEPTS AMERICA'S SPEED BOAT CHALLENGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10—(AP)—England has accepted the challenge of Carl G Fisher and D. P. Davis of New York for the duke of York one and one-half liter speedboat trophy, the American power boat racing commission announced today.

Harry Greening of Hamilton, Ont., will compete for Canada and French and Italian entries are expected. This will be the first appearance of American speedboats in British major events in more than five years.

Three craft, less than 18 feet long probably the smallest ever built for racing in America, are under construction. They are to be fitted with engines of the type developed in the Indianapolis automobile speed races.

England is expected to return the visit with representation in the gold cup races in New York waters next August. The duke of York event is set for July.

JEWTRAW BREAKS ANOTHER N. E. SKATING RECORD

HARTFORD, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Racing before the largest gallery that has ever witnessed an outdoor athletic contest in this city, Charlie Jewtraw, Lake Placid skater, shattered the New England record for the 220 dash by negotiating the distance in 19 and 3-5 seconds, beating the mark of 20 1-5 seconds which he established in Springfield on the previous day. The "blue streak derby" open to milers of Hartford county was won by E. C. Milton although Peter Paul, of New York, who was ineligible, beat Milton to the tape by a headlong dive.

Fifteen thousand spectators witnessed the afternoon's racing.

NEVERS IS RESTING COMFORTABLY AT HIS HOTEL

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Ernie Nevers, fullback from Leland Stanford university, was resting easily tonight in his room at the Mason hotel. The Giants won 7 to 0 from Nevers and his Jacksonville All Stars eleven.

Nevers will not be able to play again for at least a week, the attending physician said.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Everett McGowan, St. Paul professional skater, defeated Francis Allen of Chicago, in four races here today. The victory entitles McGowan to meet Bobby McLean of Chicago for the world's indoor speed skating championship.

WESTERLY

REV. ERNEST E. MORRILL TENDERS RESIGNATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 10—The resignation of Rev. Ernest E. Morrill, pastor of the Pawcatuck Congregational church was read Sunday morning, following the regular notices of the week. It is to take effect on April 15th, 1926. Action will be taken upon it at the annual church meeting to be held on next Thursday evening at the church in Pawcatuck.

Coming to the Pawcatuck Congregational church, Rev. Mr. Morrill began his pastorate on September 1, 1923. He was a graduate of Dartmouth college and of the Hartford Divinity school. With his wife he was for two years a missionary in India. He has held pastorates in Millbury, Mass., Orange, N. J., and western New York state. Rev. Mr. Morill followed Rev. Frederick A MacDonald, who resigned to take up the pastorate of Old South Congregational church, in Worcester, Mass.

The first real snowstorm in which any amount of snow fell, was that which began in Westerly, shortly after midnight on Friday night, but did not come down in any great quantity until 8 o'clock Saturday morning. During the day Saturday and Saturday evening snow flurries of greater or less intensity occurred wibt the result that between four and five inches of snow covered the ground. This was the fifth storm of the season and the first of the new year. It required the use of snow plows on the state roads and the Westerly Highway department workmen were engaged in carting the snow to the river from Broad street and High street. The hills about Westerly were the mecca for youngsters with sleds until they were driven away by the members of the Westerly police department, who feared that mixups with automobiles might have a fatal termination. A safe and sane sliding place has been provided in Wilcox park. The walks from the Grove avenue and Granite street entrances to the park have been closed to pedestrians and the youngsters are allowed to go to it. Automobiles have packed the surface of the streets, so that a sleigh, which made its appearance with a party of young people, experienced no difficulty on the travelled thoroughfares of the town.

The funeral of Mrs. Fannie (Lanphear) Howard, who died in Howard, R. I., on Tuesday last, was held from the Gavitt Home, 46 Granite street, on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Arnt L. Schoning, pastor of the Broad Street Christian church officiated. Interment was made in River Bend cemetery, the bearers being, John A. Berg, Arthur E. Thompson, D. Everett Hoxie, William H. Browning, Charles M. Lamb and Nathan B. L. Church.

On Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, from the home of her parents, in Pitchburg, Mass., was held the funeral of Mrs. Clifford Gourlay, formerly Miss Anna Wenzel, and at one time a resident of Westerly. Mrs. Gourlay, who was manager of the Fitchburg office of the Postal Telegraph company, was taken ill on last Tuesday with the flu, pneumonia developed and her death occurred Friday. Mrs. Gourlay for several summer seasons was the manager of the Westerly office of the Postal Telegraph company.

Arthur Frances, 25, of Commerce street, failing to secure $1,000 bail, remains confined to the Liberty street lockup, where he was taken by Connecticut State Policeman Giles Watson of the Groton barracks, following his arrest Saturday night in a raid at the place of Guiseppe Savona, 36 Cherry street, Pawcatuck. This was the third raid made upon the place recently, the last one being on New Year's eve, when Guiseppe Savona, alleged proprietor, was arrested on a complaint of keeping intoxicating liquors for sale. Savona is now at liberty on $2,000 bail for which Thomas Durkin and Salvatore Savona became surety, trial being set for Monday, January 18.

Frances will also be arraigned in the session of Stonington town court, before Judge William A. Wilcox, on January 18th, to answer to a possible complaint of keeping hard liquors for sale, it being reported that he had taken the same to the premises with him. Trooper Watson is called to Washington, D. C., on business and his absence is the cause for both cases being continued.

Pawcatuck Board of Trade, Frank L. Furness, president and Paul H. Rietzel, secretary, holds its first annual meeting and dinner this (Monday) evening in Pawcatuck.

While there will be no distinguished speaker present, the needs of Pawcatuck will be considered and among the more important matters will be the widening of the West Broad street underpass of the New Haven railroad and the widening of that section of the Boston Post road, extending from the railroad bridge to the Pawcatuck River bridge. Committees have been busily engaged in looking into these projects and it is expected that considerable data will be available for the members of the Pawcatuck Trade body.

The reception for Rev. Fr. J. J. Keane, of New Britain, which was to have been held in the Central theatre Sunday evening, had to be postponed to a future date. Word was received by members of the committee, late Sunday afternoon, that due to illness Fr. Keane would not be able to attend.

Christ Episcopal church choir held its annual election in the church school room on Friday evening. The following members were elected for the coming year: President, David A. Lowry; vice president, Marion K. Schwenk; secretary and treasurer, Earle C. Saunders; librarian, William Morey; assistant librarian, Susan Brucker; advisory committee, William Weeden, Charles Larkin, Lillian Thorpe; camps committee, Mrs. Charles Larkin, David A. Lowry, Marion K. Schwenk, Earle C. Saunders; entertainment committee, Margaret Palmer, Esther Taylor, Leverett Andrews.

The Cooley Finishing company, which it was erroneously announced in Saturday morning's Bulletin as locating in Pawcatuck, is to be established in Pawtucket, R. I. Arthur P. Cooley, of Pawcatuck, formerly superintendent of the Eastern Finishing plant in Kenyon, R. OVER A SCORE OF NEW LONDONERS HELD FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10—The state police, with the assistance of members of the municipal police made a clean-up of persons who have been selling liquor in this city of late, it is alleged. They had their plans carefully laid and they carried them out to perfection. Not a person or place the officer desired to get escaped. They included old offenders and new ones, and the officers claim they have evidence to convict all the men and women accused, the latter Victoria Colman of Tenth street. The raid was planned and carried out by the state police and they meant that there should be no such blunder as was made when one McCarthy, an unreliable, was hired to do the work for the state police for some time ago, and when he was very uncertain of what he did or what he had bought and who he bought from. The state police brought other state police officers here and they worked in civilian attire, and who experienced no trouble in carrying out their plans to get liquor where and from whom it was sold. The New London authorities were aware what was going on and whatever assistance was asked from them was cheerfully given. The officers who bought the liquor are men to be relied upon and they did their work thoroughly and to their satisfaction. No such extensive raid has been made in this city nor has the volume of liquor seized measured up to the volume that is stored in the police station—in the cell room, the retiring room of the police court and in the squad room. The raiders brought in "stills" used in the manufacture of the alleged liquor, and appliances for making beer. There are barrels of wine in the lot of seized stuff, also, showing that the big quantity of grapes that has come east from California reached this city in quantity. When the raids were actually made a phalanx of state officers were in the job. They designated the police officers they desired to assist them and these were furnished at once and a detail went to seize liquor where it was known to be in storage for immediate use, while another detail secured search warrants for the places where they were to be used. This consumed a little time, but only a little so that the raid was consummated in short order. Some of the places have been reputed to be such as liquor could be obtained in while the arrest of some of the offenders was in the nature of a surprise. It was a thorough clean-up and the arrests are likely to get the city and the state a considerable sum of money, if indeed some of the accused are not sent to jail and others to state prison. It will be recalled that "Big" Dan was sent to state prison when convicted in the superior court last week as an offender several times. Some of the men arrested here Saturday have been convicted several times and they may get the penalty that was meted out to Dan. To get such punishment, however, the accused must be convicted in the superior court as that penalty is not within the jurisdiction of the police court. But the latter tribunal may fix a penalty that is quite as severe and may fine the convicted persons $200 on each count and may order them confined in the county jail for a term of six months. What sort of reasoning the accused used in their selling when they have been fined and incarcerated heretofore for their offenses no man can explain. One of the accused is a cripple—paralyzed in his limbs and unable to walk without assistance. He is of powerful physique and a man whose appearance is noticeable. His mother, who is looked after by him, is bedridden and needs constant care. She is unable to move except as she has assistance. This man is John Quinn, and he has been in jail for a term which was to serve a sentence imposed upon him in the common pleas court. There are other charges against him in that same court which have not yet been pressed to a consummation. It is understood that the city's charity department has been providing for the mother during the time John has been in jail.

Another offender is Rock Diptula, who has been punished severely in the past, but who appears to learn nothing from his experience. He has served time in jail for selling, but that has not taught him what the law is intended to teach—that he must abandon the business and that it is unlawful to sell liquor as he has sold it. The negroes are a comparatively new element in the bootlegger class, but they now have joined that element and they come to judgment as offenders against the laws of the land. Another of the offenders is said to have once carried the badge of a constable, but that was taken from him some years ago. In the list of alleged law violators scooped in the police net for the sale of liquor are several taxicab drivers, men who are said to have carried on the business with parties who hired the cabs. Actual sales are alleged against these persons. Some of them deny emphatically that they have sold any liquor but the state police sneer at these claims and declare that they have the evidence to show all that is claimed. Another offender is the father of eight children. He is understood to admit his offense, as well he might, for a still was seized at his place. He declares that he was hard pressed to provide for his children and says he resorted to the sale of liquor that he might obtain the money he was in actual need of. The accused parties have generally secured lawyers to represent them in court. There are twenty-six persons accused and they resided in all sections of the city, from east New London to the fort section and to Shaw street. They represent a league of nations so to speak, though the greater number are Poles and Italians.

Daniel must come to judgment in the police court tomorrow. In this case the Daniel is Holloway. He was found drunk on Douglas street today and was locked up. Albert McNulty was in the same condition and he too will be presented in the police court tomorrow for intoxication.

Thomas Connors and his wife do not dwell in harmony and the fault is all attributed to Thomas. He beat her and she complained to the police instead of shying a stove cover or a kettle of hot water at him. Mrs. Connors did not appear in the police court Saturday, when her husband was arraigned for his brutal conduct, so the case was continued until next Wednesday.

The street department of the city council had its first experience of the winter with the clearing of snow from the streets Saturday and made a fairly good job of its work. A power snow clearer was put into operation that carried the snow from the center to the sides of the highway and there left it. This opened a way for automobiles and teams to pass, but it left high ridges of snow to be cleared away.

"My. But that water's cold," said Pat Reagan when he was hauled from the river at the state pier this afternoon. Pat was drunk, but the water overcame the drink he had taken and he was chilled to the marrow. He resides at 44 Center street, but he was taken to Lawrence hospital that all possibility of pneumonia should be averted if that was possible. Reagan is establishing a reputation as a drunk for he has been in the police court frequently of late.

Samuel Davidson celebrated the anniversary of his marriage today with his family and a few relatives. He has been a resident of New London many years and has enjoyed the esteem of a host of acquaintances all that time.

An expensive sewer proposition confronts the city to take care of the section west and south of Bronson hill. It is proposed to build garages there and the city council has been asked to provide sewerage for that section. Three plans have been suggested to the council by the city engineer, namely, the extension of the Coleman street sewer, the laying of a sewer in Cedar Grove avenue and the extension of a sewer on outer Broad street. The Coleman street extension is favored by the engineer and the board of compensation, but it is the most expensive of the three propositions. The sewer, once laid, will take care of all the sections on the west side of the city and that work must sooner or later be attempted.

Railroad employes in this city attended a meeting of the Veteran Railroad Men's association at New Haven today. President Pearson of the New Haven railroad, was a speaker before the body and he talked to the men in a way that showed that the management of the road was disposed to favor the employes and to do what reasonably could be done for their benefit.

The condition of Daniel H. Troland, formerly of Norwich, who is in Lawrence hospital ill with pneumonia, is slightly improved tonight, but his conditions is serious. He has been in the hospital four days now.

NEW LONDON WANTS MONEY FROM ARRESTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10—Members of the city council are asking today why it is necessary for the state police to come into New London to catch the violators of the liquor law. They ask why the local police cannot do that work and save a lot of money for the municipality, as half the fines imposed in cases of liquor law violation in which the state police are the arresting officers and in which the state police secure the evidence is understood to go to the state police department. Of course, the local police cannot buy liquor because they are known to the sellers of booze to persons who are to cause their arrest. There have been occasions where what are known as "stool pigeons," men brought here for the purpose, have secured evidence of liquor selling. That has been the favorite method of the state police in getting their evidence. That was the method used that brought about the arrests Saturday—more than a score of them, but in the cases that are to be prosecuted tomorrow, the so-called "stools" are members of the state police who are unknown here and who are strangers to the persons they bought liquor from. Assuming that convictions will be had in the cases that are brought to trial Monday and fines of $200 are imposed in each case it is a matter of figures that the state will receive some $2500 for the labors of the state police. That is a tidy sum for the city to hand out for work that might have been done by the local police. The fact that such a possibility looms has made the members of the council consider what is possible for the local police to do for it goes as a fact that if the state police can hire men to secure evidence against violators of the liquor law the city can follow the same course and secure the same results. Be that as it may, there is a probability that the state police will not have the opportunity of getting so much money as seems to be on the way to them in the immediate future. The prosecutor, the city manager and Captain of Police Pinney are likely to be asked to consider the matter of bringing about a change in this regard.

NEW LONDON MASONS TO CONSIDER TEMPLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10—Whether the Masonic bodies of this city will get together and erect a building that will accommodate all the affiliated bodies of that fraternal order is yet uncertain. Brainard Lodge Corporation some time ago acquired the Mercer property next south of the county court house that it might be used for the purpose mentioned. But there has been some hitch always between the Brainard and Union lodges as to joining in the movement for the procurement of one building that would serve as a temple for both lodges and their affiliated bodies. Mr. Mercer is understood to have disposed of the property to Brainard at a price that was most attractive, and he has since offered to repurchase the property at a figure much larger than he sold the property to Brainard for. The site is one of the best in the city. It overlooks State street and is convenience to business and residential sections. The financing of the plan for a temple may enter in to the project, but that can be overcome without any doubt. At present both Union and Brainard lodges have separate buildings and in that respect are subjected to greater expense than would attach to the maintenance of a single structure for their use and for the accommodation of all other Masonic bodies. Next Thursday evening it is understood the question of securing the proposed new building will come up for consideration.

CLAIM NEW LONDON HAS TOO MANY STORES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 10—There is a growing notion prevalent here that there are more stores than there should be and more than can be successfully operated in this city. Yet when ever property changes are made on the principal streets more store accommodations are provided. Someone who has canvassed the situation declares that there are a greater number of stores in the city now than there were during the period of the war when there was several thousand more inhabitants in the city than are numbered here today. What the city is in need of is an extension of industry so that there will be more employment for the people. That would bring a patronage to the stores that would maintain them, but until such time as it comes there are said to be more stores than are needed.

JEWETT CITY

JEWETT CITY CHAPTER HAS HONOR RED CROSS FLAG

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 10—The honor flag sent by the Red Cross national headquarters to the Jewett City chapter, has been placed in the Trust Co. window, and is guarded by a small Red Cross nurse. This flag is given the chapter because it has exceeded its last year's roll call. The chapter now has over 800 members who can view the honor flag with pride, as having helped gain it. The amount given the canvassers was $321.75. The members live in Griswold, Voluntown and a part of Lisbon. These places were divided into 36 districts. Miss Bertha Lewis had charge of Voluntown, and her assistants were Mrs. Benjamin Gallup, Mrs. E. E. Clarke and Margaret Tauner. The amount received there was $85. The amount received from Lisbon was $51, and the canvassers were Mrs. William Phillips, Clara Hyde, Edward Thornton, Benjamin Schleifer, Endor LeClaire, Everett Thornton and Charles Parkhurst.

Every canvasser was very faithful and to their efforts is due this fine result. Four hundred twenty dollars and seventy-five cents will be added to the chapter treasury and $40 will be sent to national headquarters, as $20.75 came in as contributors to the chapter and will be kept in the treasury.

The committee which had charge of the roll call comprised Mrs. E. H. Hixon, chairman; Miss M. A. Burdick, Mrs. J. H. Tracy, Margaret Driscoll, Rosanna DesJardines, May Driscoll, Catherine Barnett, Mrs. Alice Anthony Elsie Lord, Ethel Rood, Bertha Lewis, Mrs. F. L. Ray, Mrs. E. B. Cheney, Ida I. This committee furnished a supper to the canvassers at the opening of the drive, the Baptist church giving the use of the vestry for the purpose. Finn Bros and the Trust company gave the use of their windows for displays, and Lionel Boucher and Stephen Foley distributed the canvassers' material in the outside districts.

In Jewett City, the largest amount of money from any one section was $62.50, from Slater's section, Mathewson street and Railroad avenue, came next with $61.50 and Main street, from the railroad crossing to Tracy avenue was third with $53.25.

The Massachusetts weather prophet's snowstorm arrived in the first week in January as he prophesized. It was a small blizzard in this section Saturday, snowing steadily for nearly twelve hours and with a blustering wind most of the time. Miss Peggy Ballon enjoyed a sleighride, the jingle of the old fashioned bells being a very welcome but unusual sound, for there are very few sleighs in this vicinity which make their appearance in the winter.

George Roode, who died Friday, in Norwich, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Jackson, lived in Griswold the greater part of his life. For years he lived with his father on the Rood farm, now occupied by Joseph Rood. Later he owned an adjacent farm. He had an unusual experience ago, when he was actually struck by lightning and was not killed. body was taken to Packerville Sunday for burial

Getting Ready for Big Dance With Joe Shippee's Old Band

Folks down Plainfield way don't intend to let Joe Shippee's winning the fiddling championship up in Providence pass without recognition in his home town, so they have picked out next Wednesday, January 13th, to show him how much they appreciate the honor he has won in musical circles and the reflected glory in which the town shines.

Plans are pretty much in the air as yet, but a big committee is hard at work, laying out the programme and getting set to put it over. The one thing that has been settled, however, is that they are going to have a real old fashion dance with waltes, polkas, quadrilles, Portland fancies "and sich" and swing their partners to the music of old Joe's band, which is going to get together to fiddle for them that night.

Broadway Theatre

News of value and of the times travels very fast in this age and when the Broadway management announced the appearance of New England's Champion Fiddler at that popular playhouse, many messages of congratulations were received for this great "scoop" for Norwich, to see the already great prize winner appear here before the big city theatres.

Although "Uncle Joe" Shippee has received numerous and wonderful monetary inducements to start an immediate tour of the large theatres of the country, he is first going to fill a three day engagement at the Broadway Theatre, this city, starting Thursday evening of this week.

The townspeople will perhaps never again have such a rare opportunity as is now offered at the Broadway.

The Elshuco Trio and Chamber Music

Most chamber music organizations are quartets, but there is a large and important literature of music for three instruments, the violin, 'cello and piano, which has suffered much neglect, and yet the great masters of composition never took greater pleasure than in writing trios.

A long step toward making familiar this fine literature was taken when the Elshuco Trio, which is to be heard in New London Monday night, June 13 at Bulkeley auditorium, was organized a few years ago and the success that the three artists composing it have had, shows that its organization filled a very decided want.

The three members of the Elshuco Trio are all of them artists of the very highest calibre. The moving spirit in its organization was William Willeke, the eminent Dutch 'cellist, who was the violincello of the Kneisel quartet during the last dozen years of its existence. William Kroll, the violinist, will be remembered by his performances in New York last year with the special quartet of Dr. Richard Strauss, in which he showed his versatility by playing the viola. Aurelio Giorni, the pianist, is famed both for his pianistic accomplishments and as an eminent composer.

Ticket sale begins at Starr Bros. drug store, State street, Wednesday.

At the Breed

After viewing "The Merry Widow," the Metro-Goldwin-Mayer picture which opened at the Breed theatre last night, the audience could hardly bring itself back to an ordinary degree of existence. The picture is as exhiliarating as champagne, its beauty breath-taking, and its drama not relieved, but intensified by the most human comedy ever seen on the screen.

Von Stroheim has produced in "The Merry Widow" a milestone in screen entertainment. The picture has all the Continental mien of his "Foolish Wives," all the realism for which he is noted, and a sense of humor which is delightful.

Mae Murray always a favorite, has doubled her claim to immortality in the hearts of picture-goers, by her portrayal of title role. While Miss Murray has always been considered a vital personality and a capable actress, as the "Merry Widow" she rises to emotional heights that have seldom been equalled on the screen. She lends to the role all the charm for which the part has so long been remembered, and gives it her own personality.

John Gilbert plays "Prince Danilo" with the dash and vivacity which is largely responsible for his sudden rise in popular favor. This part will probably make him one of the most popular stars on the screen. Seldom is there such a happy combination of acting ability, personality, and masculine handsomeness as this man possesses. Under the direction of von Stroheim, he makes "Danilo" a happy-go-lucky, devil-with-the-women sort of fellow, and always manages to hold the sympathy of his audience.

If you would see the finest in screen entertainment and one of the most artistically beautiful pictures ever produced, don't miss "The Merry Widow."

Victor Leon, Leo Stein and Franz Lehar wrote the stage play around which the scenario was written by Erich von Stroheim and Benjamin Glazer.

PLAINFIELD

PLAN RECEPTION FOR UNCLE JOE SHIPPEE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 10—A reception and old fashioned dance is to be given on Wednesday evening at the Community house, in honor of Uncle Joe Shippee, by the town of Plainfield. Mr. Shippee has consented to play for the dancing, and will be assisted by his original orchestra. An army of newspapermen, photographers, and friends, have enlarged the home of Uncle Joe for the past few days and he has received a literal swarm of mail and telegrams. But nothing less than an earthquake could prevent him from playing at the Hyde dance in Canterbury, on Saturday night, where it has become part of his life, to officiate, at the old fashion dances on Saturday nights.

Miss Ruth Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hall, of Plainfield street, has returned to Rose Mary Hall, Greenwich, Conn., to resume her duties as an instructor, after spending several weeks with her parents.

The Central Village Fire company held a dance on Saturday night, in the town hall. A good attendance was recorded, including many people from Plainfield.

The Lincoln club holds its first meeting of the year, tonight with the new president, Cecil L. Butler, in the chair. The chief speaker for the evening will be Ralph C. Jenkins, of Putnam. The entertainment will consist of musical sketches by Ray W. Greene and Earl S. Butler, and charcoal cartooning by Raymond Roode. The club will also be honored by the presence of one of its old members, Joseph Shippee, who will play one of the selections he played last week when he won the championship of New England fiddlers. Mrs. Otto Opperman will accompany her father at the piano.

Owing to the construction work, on the addition to St. Paul's church, the weekly meeting of the women's auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. Eugene Currier, 238 Eighth street. After the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess. Mrs. Lister has extended an invitation for the meeting next week to be held at her home, No. 9 Lawton avenue.

W. C. Hill, who has had charge of the local Y. M. C. A. group in the past was chosen leader for the coming year at the re-organization of the group. The officers chosen are as follows: President, William Baker; vice president, William Williams; secretary, Danforth Wells; treasurer, Charles Roper. Mr. Childs, the temporary county secretary, was present and assisted with the work of re-organizing.

POETRY

A Child's Prayer

God, make my life a little light
Within the world to grow;
A little flame that burneth bright,
Wherever I may go.

God make my life a little flower
That giveth joy to all,
Content to bloom in native bower,
Although the place be small.

God make my life a little song
That comforteth the sad;
That helpeth others to be strong,
And makes the singer glad.

God make my life a little staff,
Whereon the weak may rest,
So that what health and strength I have
May serve my neighbors best.

God make my life a little hymn
Of tenderness and praise;
Of faith—that never waxeth dim,
In all His wondrous ways.
—Matilda B. Edwards.

Kyrielle

A lark in the mesh of the tangled vine.
A bee that drowns in the flower-cup's wine.
A fly in the sunshine,—such is man,
All things must end, as all began.

A little pain, a little pleasure,
A little heaping up of treasure;
Then no more gazing upon the sun,
All things must end that have begun.

Where is the time for hope or doubt?
A puff of the wind, and life is out;
A turn of the wheel, and rest is won.
All things must end that have begun.

Golden morning and purple night,
Life that falls with the falling light;
Death is the only deathless one.
All things must end that have begun.

Weary waiting and weary striving,
Glad outsetting and sad arriving;
What is it worth when the goal is won
All things must end that have begun.

Speedily fades the morning glitter;
Love grown irksome and wine grown bitter.
Two are parted from what was one.
All things must end that have begun.

Toil and pain and the evening rest;
Joy is weary and sleep is best;
Fair and softly the day is done.
All things must end that have begun.
—John Payne.

Some of the thinnest films on water ever subjected to scientific measurement were recently described before the National Academy of Sciences by Professor W. D. Harkins and J. W. Morgan, of the University of Chicago. They are composed of only one layer of the molecules or building bricks of material substances, and some of them are so very thin that ordinary X-rays could not do their vibratory dance within the thickness if such a location were selected for their performance. Numerically, the thickness of some of the films was found to be twenty-four-billionths of an inch. Professor Harkins explained that such thin, films can be easily formed by simply spreading the proper kind of organic substance upon water.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Chief financial interest this week is centered in the raising of the New York federal re-discount rate from 3 1-2 to 4 per cent., bringing it into line with the charge in other central institutions of the country.

While unexpected at this particular time, bankers agreed that it could not have been timed more advantageously for all concerned, coming as it did when the New York market was flooded with surplus funds representing returning year's end dividend and interest payments, and the danger of heavy gold imports from England had been removed.

The stock market successfully withstood the shock of selling pressure inspired by the higher rate, the decision of the New York clearing house committee not to increase the maximum interest rate on deposits in member institutions apparently acting as a steadying influence and time money rates was likely to result. Call money rates probably will advance on Monday, however, because of the sharp deficit in reserve shown in today's clearing house statement.

Confused price movements, reflecting the readjustment of speculative accounts, characterized the week's stock counts, characterized the weeETAOIN market. The average of 20 leading industrial issues showed a slight fractional gain on the week, but the railroad averages declined over a point. Trade news was largely favorable, the principal items being an unexpectedly large increase in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation for December, and indications that this seasonal slowing down of business was less marked than usual. Bond prices lost ground.

Irregular movements developed in the commodity markets, wheat futures lost ground after a series of highly erratic fluctuations resulting from the uncertainty regarding foreign crop estimates Cotton futures closed slightly higher on buying influenced by reports of substantially increased world consumption of the product this year. Coffee moved higher in reflection of the successful flotation of a Sao Paulo coffee loan in London, and the apparent abandonment of the proposed official investigation into coffee prices in this country.

TAFTVILLE

At the regular Sunday evening meeting of the Young Peoples society of Christian Endeavor held in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church, Victor H. Davis was the leader and the discussion was on Prohibition.

Miss Helen C. Aberg has resumed her studies at the Willimantic State Normal school after spending the week end at her home on North Third avenue.

Mrs. Thomas Newsham has been confined to her home on Norwich avenue with injuries resulting from a fall.

The valuable shepherd dog puppy owned by Aubrey Potter of Ellisville road succumbed to distemper this week and many more pedigreed animals in the village are afflicted. It has been said by dog owners that the disease was never more prevalent than at the present time and this is true in practically all parts of the country. Dr. John E. DeMund, president of the American Kennel club has issued a bulletin appealing for cooperation and funds to fight the disease. Some of these bulletins have reached Taftville and are being circulated among the dog owners. A few of the "high spots" of Dr. DeMund's article read as follows:

"Distemper is the dread menace that compels fanciers to meet upon a common ground. Whether you own a pure bred dog or just a mongrel, the fact remains that you are vitally interested in the disease. It is the one mystery of canine life and death that has baffled completely the cleverness of man. It is therefore interesting to know that some of the best medical brains in the world are trying to solve this important problem. What man can visualize, man can accomplish. Also what man wants to know man in the end will discover. A cure for distemper must be found, and that it will be found is the belief of fanciers throughout the world.

It is the general belief in the dog world that when the cure is found, it will be discovered by the Field Distemper council, whose experts are working at the laboratories of the Medical Research council in Mill Hill, Middlesex county, England. The battle is only beginning. Your dogs are still in danger. Today the dread disease may sweep your kennels and tomorrow your dogs may be no more. No dog is safe until distemper has been conquered. You know it. Why not carry on and do your part?

A dog is man's most faithful friend. He asks but little and he gives his all. Willingly would he lay down his life for his master. Still many a master is unwilling to spend his dollars for his dogs. Do not be like that. Give, not because you should, but because you want to."

State Hospital Trustees To Meet

The regular quarterly meeting of the trustees of the Norwich state hospital will be held today (Monday). There is little but routine matters to occupy their attention.

DR. JOHN EVANS RELATES WHAT WAS DONE IN NEAR EAST RELIEF

At the Sunday morning service at the First Congregational church, Norwich Town, the address was given by Dr. John H. Evans, who spoke with great interest of Near East Relief activities in the Caucasus. Dr. Evans, with his wife, was engaged in this work for nearly four years, chiefly in the Caucasus.

Preceding his address the church service was opened with the Scripture lesson from the tenth chapter of Luke, two anthems by the choir with Miss Bernice Underwood sustaining the solo parts and prayer by the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey.

Rev. Mr. Bailey introduced Dr. Evans, who held the close attention of his hearers as he related things of interest along lines entirely new to many in the congregation.

After completing his work in the Near East, Dr. Evans was decorated by the Russian government. At this elaborate ceremony which was decidedly formal in every detail, Dr. Evans won first class honors for service in that land. There are three classes, and on two previous occasions Americans had been honored in the second and third. The authority concerning this unusual event was granted by the Central government in Moscow, from the Republic of Armenia.

DR. JOHN H. EVANS

In part Dr. Evans spoke as follows:

Without knowledge of what other Near East Relief speakers have told, it is a little difficult to select a subject — that you have not already been bored to death with. Describing Near East Relief activities in the Saucasus, in a twenty minute talk, is about as difficult as to describe the "fall of Rome" in a ten word sentence. The work has been so overwhelmingly large, involving in the Caucasus branch alone, millions of dollars, and the destinies of 25,000 children, and over 100,000 adults—that it does not lend itself to brief description.

This talk will not concern itself with soliciting money, nor will it massacre too many Armenians; I will try to tell you some of the things that might interest you—that you would ask—if one of your friends had returned after nearly four years' service in relief work. It must be remembered that our work has been wholly in that part of Soviet Russia, known as the Trans-Caucasia, comprising the republics of Georgia, Azerberjan, and Armenia, and we have no personal knowledge of the work in Greece, Syria, Palestine and elsewhere. You will remember that these three republics extend from th Caspian Sea to the Black Sea and south as far as the Persian and Turkish frontier. Russian Armenia, as distinguished from so-called Turkish Armenia, is the most southern of the three states, is subject to the central government at Moscow and is where the greater part of our work was located. When we arrived in 1922 there were 25,000 orphan children in this region, and 100,000 or more adult refugees, all being cared for by the Near East Relief and nearly all being Turkish Armenians, who had fled to Russian Armenia. At the present time, there are in round figures, 10,000 orphans cared for in Near East Relief orphanages at Leninakan, about 6,000 more, the older ones, are maintained in Armenian homes, with or without subsidy from the Near East Relief, but invariably under their supervision. The refugees have been absorbed, into the normal population, and no longer exist as a relief problem. The 10,000 orphans that are still maintained in orphanages are located at Leninakan, a city of the size of Norwich, and occupy barracks that belong to the Russian army, that are located in two groups, two or three miles from the city.

At one post called Seversky there are 5,000 girls, and at Polygon, as many boys. These children average about ten years old, though some are younger and a few are older. The problems faced are many, but are essentially, such as you who have children, also face; that of education, of food and clothing, of health and cleanliness, of vocational training, added to some others you do not have., such as transportation of supplies, elaborate accounting system, and keeping in the good graces of the bolsheviki government.

You who have one, two, or even six children, will get the idea of what a family of 10,000 is like; how fast they wear out shoes, how many mouths to feed each day, how many beds must be made, the problem of bathing, of washing clothing, sickness, school books, infectious disease, and so on to infinity. Visualize the activities taking place in two story stone buildings that house from four to seven hundred lively youngsters, and perhaps you will have a little insight as to the things that have engaged our minds in the last seven years.

Added to the problems mentioned, and not permitting you to forget that many are passed over, is the one of keeping in good liason with the various departments of socialistic Soviet Republic of Armenia—as to education, medical care, citizenship of our wards, etc., that the assistance extended us by the three federated republics may continue and not render the work impossible of performance. In this connection I must mention that the Near East Relief has no ambition to develop in Russian Armenia, Armenians into Americans; on the contrary, every effort is made that they become good Armenian citizens of the Armenian Republic and of Russia.

Just what will interest you, I am at loss to say, and if to go into details, concerning the 1,000 students, agricultural school at Djalal-Oghli, the nurses' training school, the first in Russia, and with the agricultural school, to be maintained by the Armenian Republic, when the Near East Relief withdraws, or the medical service with its thousand bed hospital, and its district nursing service, also the first in Russia, and making considerable of a hit with Russian medical authorities, the labor problems of our 1,500 employes, serving us under the experiment of a government with a laborers and soldiers dictatorship, how the work in the Caucasus is to a very great extent financed by gifts of old clothing from America, the problem of developing children properly when herded in such great groups, or the question if the work should continue, or has the republic reached the stage when it can take over our job.

Perhaps the best way to get at what you would really like to hear about is to request that you ask questions that I will try to answer. It has been my fortune to command the Erivan district for a year and a half, to act as medical director for the work in the three republics, to perform over 2,000 major surgical operations in Armenia, as well as to serve on the administrative, finance and farm committees, from the time they were organized. These positions have put me in contact with not only Near East Relief work, but with Russian, Georgian and Armenian officials of every department, giving me a viewpoint a little different, than would be the case in a worker more restricted in his activities.

Before I close I want to pay tribute to the greatheartedness of Americans who have furnished the money, supplies, and energy that has made the work possible.

In all the world's history, never before have such tremendous numbers of orphan children been cared for, in one place, nor relief work extended over the number of years that the Near East Relief has operated. In history this great unselfish effort the pouring out of the resources of a great nation, to aid a group of people, half around the world, whom they will never see, without thought of reward, or even thanks, has never been equalled, and will stand out far greater than the crusades. This has all been done by a people, often accused of having no thought but the al-mighty dollar, of being grasping, hardboiled, uncultured, and without sentiment.

After living in Russia so long, the wealth of this land is absolutely appalling. We have the money; lets finish the job we started, even if we are a little tired of being implored to help the "starving" Armenian. He is no longer starving, thanks to America, but ten thousand orphan children will lose their chance in life if we pull out now.

"And they shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolation, and they shall repair, the waste cities, the desolation of many. And strangers shall stand and feed your flocks, and the sons of aliens shall be your ploughmen and your vinedressers." (Isaih LX1-45.)

MAKES ADDRESS TO PRINTER APPRENTICES

The value and importance of the plan of supplemental education for apprentices was stressed before Norwich Typographical Union, No. 100, at its meeting Saturday evening in Carpenters hall, when it had as visitors, John McGowan, I. T. U. representative from New Haven, and W. C. Trump of West Somerville, Mass., a member of the International Typographical Union committee on apprentices and supplemental education.

President Joseph P. Sullivan of the local introduced the speakers, who were given a warm welcome, especially Mr. Trump, as he had formerly been a resident in this city when he was employed by the Bulletin Co.

In part Mr. Trump spoke as follows:

In bringing to you, members of No. 100, the greetings and well-wishes of the bureau of education, it might be well to outline briefly the wonderful progress made by this educational department of the International Typographical Union.

On Nov. 1, 1924, just a little over one year ago, President James M. Lynch, on assuming office, found there were less than 1,000 students actively enrolled in the bureau. Today there are nearly 7,000 young men and women in the United States and Canada actively engaged in working out the problems provided by the bureau to its enrolled students.

As the ultimate success of all human endeavor is based on service, so will the measure of our organization's success be gauged by the quality of service rendered. In making for that service, however, we should always bear in mind that the stability of our structure almost entirely depends upon its foundation, and that if in the building we slight the grounding, it surely will follow that that which we builded cannot endure.

It was because of the fact that for some years previously too much effort had been expended on the superstructure and too little on the base that President Lynch was convinced this educational feature was too valuable for the future success of the organization to allow of its remaining at such a low ebb. He realized that no problem confronting him was more important to the ultimate success of our union than the proper training of apprentices, and that the highly trained craftsman would greatly simplify our future progress. In securing the services of John H. Chambers to serve as director of the bureau, Mr. Lynch was signally fortunate. Of wide experience and nationally recognized as an authority in the educational field Mr. Chambers has certainly made the influence of his department felt throughout the entire jurisdiction.

The question of education is one that should appeal to the employers as well as the employes in the printing trades. If it were not for printing, the world in two generations would return to darkness and ignorance. We all know that doctors, lawyers, bankers and, in fact, all professional and business men receive their education from the product of the printer. Every textbook, whether it treats on the subject of law, medicine, finance, history or art, first passes through the hands of the printer before it serves the purpose of education in these various channels.

It is quite apparent, then, that the printer should be an intelligent craftsman. Our first concern should be the selection of the boy or girl to be indentured, and we should see to it that he or she is mentally and physically fitted to the needs of the trade require that they at least have the equivalent of a grammar school education. When this is assured, it then devolves on us to protect the apprentice in such a way that he will be given every opportunity to master each process of the composing room.

I have visited many printing offices throughout New England, and while it is true nearly all eligible apprentices are enrolled in the I. T. U. course of lessons, it is also true that because of indifference or neglect, or both, many of the boys and girls are not progressing as well as they should. We find it has been everybody's business to look after the beginner, and, consequently, nobody's business. The bureau is endeavoring to remedy this counteracting condition through the "Big Brother" plan, which means the appointment of a qualified journeyman to assist and teach the boy the principles and practices of the trade. The "Big Brother" is kept informed of the progress of the student. Copies of letters sent to the apprentice are frequently mailed to the "Big Brother," so that he may be kept fully informed of the progress made by the boy under his care.

Since January 1, 1925, it has been necessary that an apprentice in the printing trades desiring full membership in the union must show a certificate as having completed the course of lessons as provided by the bureau of education.

Without a desire to disparage in any way these other great planks in the structure of the International Typographical Union, which embrace a generous mortuary benefit, a pension of $8 per week, and a home for the sick and superannuated, for those features are unique in the mission of organized labor and cannot be belittled, there is not one of them of more intrinsic value to the organization than our effort to make the printer of the future not only a credit to ourselves, but to the "art preservative of all arts," as well.

In closing, I desire to compliment highly the splendid work you members of No. 100 are doing to assist in educating the apprentice of today—the printer of tomorrow. Director Chambers especially charged me to thank Secretary Neibert and the other officers for their splendid co-operation and assistance in advancing our educational program.

DUWELLS SCORE HIT BY CLEARING ICE

The ever progressing Duwells advanced Sunday another step in their efforts to provide entertainment for the people of Norwich by turning out in a body early in the morning and working on their skating pond located on Fox Hill all day.

At night they had pretty well cleaned away the four inches of snow that fell on Saturday.

Headed by an efficient committee composed of Charles Dickinan and Edward Dunn they have made it possible for the lovers of this great outdoor sport to enjoy the smooth ice and good skating conditions which this convenient pond provides.

At the last meeting of the club it was voted to keep this pond in good condition and the skaters of the city may rest assured that as long as the weather is favorable they can always go over to the East Side for good skating.

A minute on the weekly calendar of the Central Baptist church Sunday read: "We are glad to welcome back Miss Fuller, after her trip abroad."

SENATE COMMITTEE FAVORS THE HOUSE REVENUE BILL

All Vital Rate Reductions Were Accepted—Democratic Program Calling For a Total Tax Reduction of $500,000,000 Was Rejected—Several Changes Were Ordered in the Bill as It Came From the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Vital rate reducing provisions of the house revenue bill, including the important income tax schedules, were accepted today by the senate finance committee in rejecting the democratic program calling for a total tax reduction of $500,000,000.

Bi-partisan support was given the reductions in normal income tax rates and the increased personal exemptions approved by the house measure, and to some alterations voted in the bill, but the committee divided on strict party lines on the three propositions by which the democrats planned to increase the total reduction by $170,000,000 over the $330,000,000 already provided for.

The following changes in the non-partisan house bill were ordered:

Repeal of the capital stock levy of $1 for each $1,000 of stock in excess of $5,000.

Increase of th ecorporation tax from 12 1-2 per cent to 13 per cent on taxes paid in 1926 and to 13 1-2 per cent thereafter.

Increase of the admission tax exemptions to apply to tickets costing 75 cents or less, instead of 50 cents the present limit.

Elimination of house provision allowing exemption from the admission tax on tickets sold for the "spoken drama."

Restoration to the bill of a 2 per cent tax on automobile trucks. The house had voted to repeal the present 3 per cent levy on trucks.

Further reductions in the taxes on cigars selling for five, eight and fifteen cents.

Increase by double the tax applying on foreign built yachts and motor boats.

The following provisions of the house bill were accepted:

Reductions in the normal income tax from 2 to 1 1-2 per cent on the first $4,000 of taxable income, from 4 to 3 per cent on the net $4,000 income, and from six to five per cent on the remainder.

Reduction in the maximum surtax rates from 40 to 20 per cent with readjustment of the surtax rates applying on incomes between $44,000 and $100,000, above which the maximum would apply.

Increase in the personal exemptions from $1,000 to $1,500 for single persons and from $2,500 to $3,500 for married persons.

Reduction of the automobile passenger cas tax from five to 3 per cent.

Repeal of the excise taxes on jewelry, automobile tires and parts, cameras, photographic films and plates, firearms and shells, smokers' articles, coin-operated devices, and mah-johng sets.

Repeal of the taxes on works of art, brokers, tobacco manufacturers, bowling alleys, pool and billiard tables, shooting galleries and riding academies, automobiles for hir, and use of domestic built yachts.

Reduction of the $3 tax on dispensers of narcotic drugs to $1.

Reductions in the taxes on other classes of cigars.

The committee has yet to take action on the inheritance tax, which Chairman Smoot will seek to have repealed.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Cardinal Mercier Improves

BRUSSELS, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Cardinal Mercier showed some improvement today and felt strengthened because he was able to take more nourishment than usual. He was cheered and gratified by a message which Ambassador Phillips carried to him from Secretary of State Kellogg expressing the deep regret with which he learned of the serious illness of the cardinal and hoping he would triumph over his sickness "in the interests, not only of Belgium, but men of good will in all countries."

DISASTROUS FLOOD IS THREATENING IN MEXICO

NOGALES, Ariz., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Another disastrous flood of the Santiago river in the state of Nayarit, Mexico, is feared.

Reports reaching here say warnings have been issued by Governor De La Pena to residents of the Santiago valley.

Lake Chapala, the origin of the river, is said to be 25 feet higher than any time in history. The water level is momentarily expected to reach the danger level which will send the waters rushing into the Santiago river.

The state of Nayarit is experiencing unusually cold weather in the wake of the floods which already have exacted a heavy toll in life and property.

The cold wave has added to the misery of survivors in the stricken district where the bodies of seventy victims of the flood waters have been recovered.

Inundated areas of Nayarit are still isolated from the outside world.

Tuxpan and Rossmarla, two villages, are reported to have been totally wiped out by the flood, with not one inhabitant of either place surviving.

Urgent calls for aid haye been sent out by Governor De La Pena and donations are being received from the other Mexican states.

COMMITTEE HEARINGS ON AGRICULTURAL BILLS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The drive for farm relief legislation by the current session of congress moved today toward a full stride, with hearing on agricultural bills getting under way in the house and farmers' representative gathering for the national co-operative marketing conference and for discussions with administration officials.

The house agricultural committee took up, for first consideration among the numerous pending measures, a bill by its chairman, Representative Haugen, republican, Iowa, to establish a division of co-operative marketing in the department of agriculture.

Secretary Jardine endorsing the bill, told the committee that the co-operative idea was "fundamental sound" but the farmers' organization should stop "fighting among themselves" if they expected to reap the benefits. Something must be done immediately, he declared, to stop "agricultural mortality."

He also conferred an hour and a half this afternoon with Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, and one of the leaders in the movement for farm relief, Sam Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau federation and Aaron Sapiro, attorney for co-operative marketing associations.

HINDENBURG DETERMINED ON COALITION GOVERNMENT

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—(AP)—President von Hindenburg has given the party leaders until Thursday morning to consider among themselves the possibility of forming a coalition government with a wide political base in the Reichstag. He will call for their reports at the time and if they are not in agreement he is determined to resume the initiative and himself choose a man to form a government.

The new government is to replace that of Chancellor Luther who resigned early last month following the signing of the Locarno treaties in order to give way to such a coalition.

Prospects for the formation of such a cabinet appeared brighter today, with the social democrats showing a more conciliatory attitude. The moderate wing of this party came out flatly in favor of the coalition.

The president consulted Konstantin Fehrenbach, former chancellor and leader of the centre party, and Erich Koch the democratic leader, both of whom refused last month to form a cabinet.

MEMORANDUM SUBMITTED BY THE GREEK DEBT DELEGATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The Greek debt delegation has submitted a memorandum to the treasury suggesting that, before a funding arrangement is made, the United States turn over to its government the remainder of a credit established by Secretary McAdoo.

The Greek debt to this government is placed at $15,000,000 on the treasury's books, while the original credit for that nation totalled approximately $48,000,000. While there was no official comment in advance of a conference with the Greek commission, official intimation was given that the treasury failed to understand the position its memorandum indicated.

Mr. Mellon, as chairman of the American debt commission, plans to call his colleagues together as soon as possible to consider the Greek debt question. The secretary, however, has found nearly all members of the commission busily engaged with other urgent matters, and no date for the meeting has been fixed.

The structure which housed more than 500 pupils, was practically doomed from the first, and the firemen bent their endeavors to protect nearby property.

Langley Resigns From the House

Follows Refusal of the Supreme Court to Review Conviction For Violation of Prohibition Law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The resignation of Representative Langley, republican, Kentucky, was received and accepted today by the house. It was tendered in a letter after the supreme court had refused to review his conviction for violation of the prohibiton case.

The resignation was sent some time ago to Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, who headed a special house committee to investigate the charges against him, to be tendered immediately if the court should render an adverse decision, and was presented to the house by Speaker Longworth.

The Kentucky member reiterated in the letter that he was innocent of the charges against him and predicted that time would vindicate him.

Ill health coupled with a desire not to cause "my colleagues and embarrassment" prevented his personal appearance, it said.

LANGLEY TO LEAVE FOR ATLANTA TODAY

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Jan. 11—(AP)—John W. Langley, who today resigned his seat as representative in congress from this district, is planning to leave tomorrow or Wednesday for Atlanta, to begin serving his two-year sentence in the federal penitentiary for violation of the liquor law, it was learned tonight.

Mrs. Langley, his wife, a candidate for representative to succeed her husband, will accompany him to Atlanta.

SQUANDERED STOLEN MONEY IN BRIGHT LIGHT DISTRICT

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Charged with squandering among the bright lights of Broadway the proceeds of a stolen letter of credit and travelers checks Arthur C. Daly, 18, who said he came from Boston, was arrested today in an apartment which he had equipped luxuriously to suit his idea of the proper home for a rich young man.

Daly was arrested as the thief who made away with a $2,500 letter of credit and $1,200 travelers checks from a stateroom on the Leviathan occupied by William L. Butler, of Wilmington, Delaware, shortly before the vessel sailed last month. He had $1,200 in his possession when he was found today, the police said. Abraham Diamond, a Brooklyn youth was arrested as Daly's partner. Daly was said to have gained access to the Leviathan's cabins when he went aboard asking for employment as steward. Mr. Butler did not discover his loss until after the ship had sailed.

INVESTIGATING SINKING OF THE SUBMARINE S-51

BOSTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The United States attorney's office today began an investigation of the sinking of the submarine S-51, which went down off Block Island last September in collision with the steamship City of Rome. Thirty-three of the submarine's company lost their lives.

U. S. Attorney Harold P. Williams instructed George R. Farnum, one of his assistants, to look into the case and to take such action as might be warranted. The probable nature of the proceedings was not indicated.

A naval board of inquiry in a report made public Saturday found that the City of Rome was at fault for the collision. The U. S. steamboat inspectors are trying Captain John H. Diehl and Third Officer Timothy Dreyer of the City of Rome on charges of inattention to duty.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW HAS OPENED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Against an Italian setting, automobiles of almost every color of the spectrum rivalled the costumes of society and stage celebrities tonight at the twenty-sixth national automobile show entertained a capacity crowd.

Refinements to give greater beauty luxury and comfort were the feature of the new models of 50 makes of automobiles and the accessories shown by 211 exhibitors.

Among the innovations exhibited were a device to prevent escape of carbon monoxide, a wheel market which attached to the steering wheel indicated the position of the car's front wheels, side bumpers and an onyx electric light bulb attached to the top of the gearshift lever for aid in night driving.

Some of the more expensive makes of cars were fitted with inlaid rare woods and with handles, and card, clock and cigarette cases of silver or gold plate. Most of the models showed a tendency towards slim, graceful lines.

NEGRO TAKEN FROM OFFICERS AND LYNCHED

OCALA, Fla., Jan. 11.—(AP)—A band of masked men took Nick Williams, negro, from two officers late today, bundled the prisoner into an automobile and lynched him at a lonely spot 13 miles from here.

The negro had been jailed here on suspicion in connection with an attack on a white woman near the spot where his captors lynched him. When seized he was being taken by officers to a hospital to be identified by the woman.

As the officers neared the hospital building with their prisoner, the band of men is said to have closed around the automobile, tore open the storm curtains and covering the guard with pistols, demanded that the negro be surrendered.

THREE PERSONS WERE KILLED AT GRADE CROSSING

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Three persons, George H. Smith, of Haverhill, Massachusetts, his wife and an elderly man, thought to be I. H. Boles, of the same city, were killed today when a large touring car in which they were riding was struck by a Chesapeake and Ohio passenger training, near Tearman, a village forty miles north of Richmond.

Clothing found in the demolished car led to the belief that a child also had been killed in the crash, but searching parties had been unable to verify this tonight.

Rail Rate on Busses Of New Haven Road

Commutation Tickets Will Be Accepted on All Busses Substituted For Former Rail Service.

NEW HAVEN, Jan 11——Motor bus operation in this state will be provided by the New England Transportation company on those routes which were recently licensed by the public utilities commission at the same rate of fare as is now in force throughout the system of the New York, New Haven, and Hartford railroad, according to President E. G. Buckland of the New Haven road. While this fact was brought out at hearings before the public utilities commission, concerning the New England Transportation company, which was organized by the New Haven road for the specific purpose of conducting its motor bus business, it has not become generally known.

Mr. Buckland's statement concerning the adherence to the present rail rates on the new bus routes is as follows:

"Ordinarily, busses can command increased fare rates over trains or trolleys. In the operation of its busses, however, the New England Transportation company will charge the same rates of fare as are now charged by the railroad wherever the busses parallel and substitute for train service. The reason for this is obvious Commutation tickets will be accepted on the busses which will be substituted for former rail service. The same rates must apply. And if a man purchases a ticket in New York, New Haven, or any other large city on a main line, to a destination served by the railroad company, he is entitled to be transported to his destination as rapidly as he wishes to go, whether it be by rail or bus, and at the same rate of fare. It would be impossible to segregate the two forms of service.

"Our books show that in some cases branch line rail service costs us $1.25 per mile, while our revenue on the same line is only 35 cents a mile. The institution of busses, may not increase our gross revenue, because our rates of fare will be the same as before, but it will cut down our expense. 'A penny saved is a penny earned' applies as well to railroads as to people. Net income is the difference between gross revenue and operating expense, and a saving in operating expense increases our net income just as much as an increase in gross revenue.

"The adherence to the rail rate of fare on the part of the busses, is a policy of providing the same, or better service than has been provided by trains, without increase of cost to the people who do not happen to be located on or near the main lines of the railroad."

REVIVAL OF MARRIED TEACHER QUESTION

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 11—(AP)—The married teacher question, dormant in school circles for about a year, was revived this afternoon by Superintendent of Schools Carroll R. Reed. His resolution on the matter was tabled for thirty days by the board of education in regular session.

As a partial solution to the problems brought about by married school teachers, Superintendent Reed submitted the following resolution of the board: "After this date whenever a married teacher requests a leave of absence for maternity reasons such leave of absence shall not be granted for a period of less than two school years, or twenty months."

Requests of two married teachers for leave of absence, which were also laid on the table, was the direct cause for introduction of the resolution. Several similar requests have been received and granted since Mr. Reed became superintendent, it is understood.

Appended to the resolution was a brief explanation of the board's action, should the resolution be passed. It was: "The board appreciates the inalienable right of an infant to a mother's care and lays down a general rule that a baby shall not be sacrificed that its parents may enjoy superfluous luxury."

ENTOMBMENT OF BODY OF DOWAGER QUEEN MARGHERITA

ROME, Jan. 11—(AP)—The Pantheon, noted temple of the eternal city, received today the body of the Dowager Queen Margherita. The ceremony of entombment beside her husband, King Humbert, in the presence of her son, the King of Italy, was beautiful in its religious solemnity and regal splendor.

As the king and queen, princes and princesses, Italy's most distinguished men and women and representatives of nearly all the nations stood in the huge round temple in saolute darkness, a single cone of white light beamed down upon the catafalque in the middle of the room. One clear voice singing the "Subvenite," broke the silence then a group of cuirassiers, with helmets and breastplates, strode slowly into the circle of light, carrying the coffin, which was placed on the catafalque, the light reflecting their steel helmets and the solid gold crown resting on the bier.

The royal chaplain Monsignor Beccaria intoned the services, accompanied by the choir of Saint John Lateram. After the ceremony the king led the procession to the streets where huge throngs awaiting to pay their respects.

COAL NEGOTIATORS SEEM TO BE HOPELESSLY AT ODDS

No Material Progress Has Been Made—Miners' Leaders Yesterday Rejected a Plan Submitted by the Operators That Included a Provision For Arbitration—Statement Made by President Lewis of the Mine Workers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Another plan popped up in the anthracite wage conference today and was promptly knocked flat.

The conference made no material progress and adjourned until tomorrow morning.

The new plan was presented by the operators and embodied, according to them, "the utmost concessions that can be made and still preserve the essentials of a workable agreement."

The miners, in rejecting it, placed on the record a statement detailing their opposition to arbitration. In the statement, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, declared that "in a final desperate effort" to break up the conference the operators had again offered a plan of arbitration of wages alone.

"They have stubbornly resisted," he asserted, "every suggestion of the mine workers that they arbitrate their profits upon the inflated capitalization of the industry and that they arbitrate the price which they charge the anthracite consuming public for coal."

"The mine workers chose to refuse to accept the operators' brand of arbitration, because it is obvious that it is not to the advantage of the mine workers to do so," he said.

He said that "the right to refuse to arbitrate has been clearly established in our country by such men as E. H Gary, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and other dominant figures in American industry, who have always refused to arbitrate with their employes when they considered it detrimental to the interests of the corporations which they represent."

Mr. Lewis also declared that the anthracite coal carrying railroads, "owned by the security holders who own the anthracite coal producing properties," in 1922 and later refused to arbitrate with the federated shopmen employed along their line.

"The same interests," he added, "now offer to arbitrate with the United Mine Workers of America because they realize the weakness of their position and their inability to lower wage standards or to crush the mine workers' union by ordinary methods."

"The operators," he concluded, "occupy the hypocritical position of desiring the arbitration of human rights while resisting any suggestion that there be arbitration of property rights."

The latest plan to end the hard coal strike, now in its fifth month, called for a five year agreement, with the right of either side to request each year the reconsideration of the wage scale. In the event of a deadlock the plan provided that former Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes, or the time general counsel for the United Mine Workers, "or some other of similar standing" name three persons to whom the differences would be referred for adjustment.

The new proposal combined many of the features of the proposition offered by the operators or the miners, rejected by one side or the other.

CHILEANS GIVE ANTI-AMERICAN DEMONSTRATION

ARICA, Chile, Jan. 11.—(AP)—A summary hearing was held today at the residence of General John J. Pershing, chairman of the Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission, as the result of a demonstration in which about 400 Chileans took part and which assumed an anti-American character. The Chilean delegation on the commission was represented at the hearing.

The demonstration began when an American named Lambert, employed by the Peruvian delegation aboard the transport Rimac, came ashore this morning to sell copies of the newspaper published aboard the Rimac. Near the residence reserved for the American delegation he was stopped by a group of Chileans who asked what his nationality was. On learning that he was an American, the crowd, which increased rapidly, raised loud protests against what they termed "American participation in Peruvian propaganda."

While the demonstration was at its height an American photographer attempted to make a picture of the scene but was prevented by the Chileans, who said they feared the photographs would be used for Peruvian propaganda.

The departure of Lambert and the arrival of police caused the crowd to disperse. It is reported, however, that William C. Dennis of the American delegation was addressed in a disrespectful manner by Jorge Silva, head of a local patriotic society, when Mr. Dennis passed the scene of the demonstration while it was at is height.

"We had a bad smashup. Escaped by a miracle. Some bruised but still in the ring. Will see you tomorrow morning." The message was sent from Peoria, Va.

Although several other telegrams were received they related to business. Mr. Murphy pointed out that Mr. Durant is particularly anxious to reach New York to keep important business appointments, and that there is no truth in the rumor that he is being rushed for medical attention.

MISSING PORTLAND GIRL FOUND IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Shortly after noon today Patrolman Kasperack, of the Second Precinct station, accosted Rita Gerber, the eighteen year old Portland, Me., girl who has been sought for the past week. Her mother is very ill and her dying wish was that she might see Rita once again.

She was living at 280 Willow street under the name of Retina Gibson and was working at the Connecticut Lace company. She said that she had read the articles about her mother and had all intentions of going home today.

The local bureau has telegraphed to Portland authorities and officers will come to this city to take the girl home.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT IN REGULAR SESSION TODAY

PARIS, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Parliament meets tomorrow for the regular session of 1926.

The situation as respects the government will be the same, notwithstanding the victory of Premier Herriot over the dissident radicals just before the end of the last session. Influential members of the cabinet for the past two days have been active in the lobbies of the chamber advocating postponement of action on electoral reform, which is one of the principal features of M. Briand's programme.

The socialist and radical members of the finance committee remain hostile to the government's measures of financial restoration; they received M. Doumer's explanation of his project before the finance committee this afternoon with significant coldness.

The developments today indicate that the coalition of the left is likely to fight the government on both financial measures and early consideration of electoral reform. Finance measures are elaborated by the groups of the left will be offered as substitutes for M. Doumer's bills, and the first class is likely to come on the finance committee's report.

Friends of the government declare that M. Briand is sure of about thirty majority, even if the radicals and socialists combine against him. This optimism is not shared by certain groups in the chamber, where it is remarked that the government bills have not the entire support of the conservatives and moderates.

The groups of the old national bloc are inclined to reject M. Doumer's idea of raising 2,500,000,000 francs a year for new taxes for a sinking fund; they prefer the idea of a national lottery, which it is estimated would produce one billion francs yearly and would wipe out the three hundred billion franc debt in three generations.

M. De Selves will be re-elected president of the senate without opposition, while M. Herriot is considered equally certain to be chosen again as president of the chamber.

MEMORIAL MEETINGS FOR WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(AP)—The memorial the William Jennings Bryan Memorial association plans to erect in Washington, D. C., will take the form of a Bryan commons, with suitable, useful structures for the service of the people. It will include a central chimes tower and the prospective cost is $1,000,000.

That was the decision reached today by a meeting of Josephus Daniels, president of the Bryan Memorial association, and a group of seven state leaders.

There will be another meeting in Washington next Saturday at which a committee from the association will confer with a committee appointed in Washington to work out the precise form the memorial to the great commoner shall take.

The exact method of financing the memorial has not been determined, but Mr. Daniels said that 48 state organizations had been formed and that the other five would be organized soon. The work of obtaining the funds will be carried on by the state organizations divided into units along the congressional district and county lines.

The former secretary of the navy also said that memorial meetings throughout the country will mark Mr. Bryan's birthday next March 19.

PLAN RUBBER PRODUCTION UNDER AMERICAN CONTROL

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP)—A detailed plan for production under American control of the bulk of the crude rubber needed by the United States will be considered tomorrow by the board of directors of the Rubber Association of America.

The subject was broached today at the regular meeting of the board and, after extended discussion, was put over until the next session when proponents of the program were to be prepared to submit fairly comprehensive data on area, scope and cost of the undertaking.

While none of those participating would comment tonight, it was learned that Sumatra, and the Philippines, among other sites were under consideration for location of plantations. There was no disposition at the meeting to see in the plan any hope for alleviation of the present rubber price levels since several years would be required to bring the plantings to maturity, but rather as a future protection against foreign monopolistic control of an essential raw material.

PICKED MEXICAN TROOPS ARE PURSUING BANDITS

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 11—(AP)—Through the bleak mountain fastnesses of the state of Michoacan, Jalisco and Guerrero, four thousand picked federal troops are in pursuit of twenty bandits who on Saturday night carried out the most cold-blooded slaughter in Mexico's history.

Boarding a passenger train in disguise and with weapons concealed under their cloaks, the bandits without warning suddenly sprang upon the guards with knives and butchered them to a man. Then they opened fire on defenseless Mexican men, women and children. The number of dead will probably never be known, but the estimates runas high as fifty.

They wrecked and burned the train, cremating dead and wounded alike, looted the town of Yurecuaro and escaped with their loot on the engine.

The troops, operating under the direct orders of President Calles, will return in disgrace or else bring back the bandits—dead or alive. Few persons in Mexico City are so credulous as to believe that any of the bandits will ever be returned alive.

OPINION OF EDITOR OF THE JEWISH ADVOCATE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Alexander Brin of Boston, editor and publisher of the Jewish Advocate in an address here tonight attacked the "Jewish professional missionaries who have been fortunate enough to behold the light of Christianity, but who are at the same time making an easy and very comfortable living by extracting money from well-meaning Christians for the holy cause of saving the Jews."

"In the annals of Apostates," he said, "there is no character more despicable than the religious renegade, who, having turned his back on religion, put on the mantle of piety and endeavors to mislead his own people. Let those paid hirelings who are peddling Christianity learn once for all that Christianity is more than 1925 years old. It commenced as a Jewish mystical cult with the Essenes, who were Jews. It culminated in Jesus. Jesus was a Jew; John the Baptist was a Jew; most of the early Christians were Jews."

TWO YOUTHFUL RAIDERS KILLED BY POLICEMAN

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Two youths, victims of Patrolman Daniel Candow's quick aim, were identified late today by their sister as Frank and John Maruchio, Cleveland.

For his alertness, Candow, an officer only since last May, was promoted to the dective bureau and was given the official congratulations of the city.

Candow declares he owes his life to the fact that is a "south paw."

As he was about to search the pair as robbery suspects, one drew a revolver. Striking him on the jaw with his right, Candow, with his left hand was able to reach his revolver and fire in the same movement. He turned in time to avert an attack from the second man who had come from behind.

One died instantly. The other succumbed an hour later.

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 11—A banner meeting is expected Tuesday evening when the members of the Chamber of Commerce will meet in G. A. R. hall, at the town building, with Governor John H. Trumbull, as a guest and the speaker of the evening. The fact that the chamber auditorium is being occupied by the Windham National bank which was driven from its quarters by fire some time ago, is responsible for the change of meeting place. Governor Trumbull's talk will be on subjects of interest in the state government and relative to Chamber of Commerce circles. Several members of his staff will accompany him to this city and will occupy seats of honor at the supper which will be served at 6:30 o'clock.

An address on the present water supply and distribution situation with suggestions for improvement will be delivered by City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell. Another talk will be given by James B. Fullerton, general sales manager of the stock campaign for the Goyer Manufacturing company, which got under way Monday evening. A talk of civic interest will be delivered by Edwin J. Donnelly. Judge Otto B. Robinson, chairman of the programme committee, will present the speakers and President A. Linn Weatherhead will preside over the meeting. The occasion will be Governor Trumbull's first visit to Willimantic since his election.

As the day of the opening gradually approaches, interest in this community is likewise centering about the new Capitol theatre. With the beginning of this week beautiful new draw curtains are being installed. They carry a black and gold color scheme with massive side pieces which hang in rich folds and form a beautiful setting to the stage. The curtains are of silk texture. The curtains are a modern design created by the Pic-Ric studios and the set is similar to one recently installed in the Metropolitan theatre in Boston.

Local ice dealers, which, incidentally, includes the city of Willimantic, began to harvest the annual ice crop on the various ponds and rivers in this vicinity Monday. Sunday and part of Monday, one of the city auto trucks with a snow scraper attached, was driven onto the pond at Mansfield and cleared the ice of snow. Similar work was being done at Ayer's cove on the Willimantic river, and Eaton's pond, in Mansfield. The ice averaged between ten and twelve inches in thickness and is of fairly good quality. Superintendent of Water Works H. S. Moulton and L. W. Ives are supervising the harvesting of ice at the municipal ice plant in Mansfield. It is planned to cut about 6,000 tons from the pond. The proprietors of the old Eaton pond are planning on 16,000 tons. Six thousand tons is the expected crop at Ayer's cove.

The flock of six wild geese which was recently seen flying over this section going north in the forenoon and returning in the afternoon is said to be the same which has been seen on frequent occasions in Windham center. The flock apparently became stranded from a larger V of geese on the southerly journey last fall. The geese have been making Windham a winter residence and have often been seen feeding in the rye field of the Richard O. T. Watrous field, leaving there every night presumably to seek open water. The group consisted of seven at first, one member having since disappeared.

COMMON COUNCIL CONSIDERS MANY ROUTINE MATTERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan 11—Much business, the majority of which was of a routine nature, was transacted at the Monday meeting of the common council held in the town building, Monday evening, with Mayor John C. Tracy presiding. All of the aldermen were present. The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock. Frank P. Rafferty asked that parking be restricted in front of his place of business at 41 Church street. Cars parked there for the entire day hindered the loading and unloading of his truck. Alderman Beebe said that he had heard previous complaints. Alderman Jackson moved that the ordinance committee draw up a set of parking restrictions for that street with a view of mitigating the inconvenience to the merchants. William J. Grady presented his bill of over a $100 for his services in caring for the light of the silent policeman at Ash and Main streets. The bill was for over one year's work at $.40 per day. The matter was referred to the claims committee.

The report of the chief of police showed 48 arrests during the month. The expenses of the street department were $1,324.53. Fire Chief Kelly reported one box call and 25 still alarms. The resignation of Arthur E. Taylor as captain of Truck company, No. 1, of the fire department was accepted and on motion of Alderman King, Amos L. Lewis was appointed to succeed to the position. A petition for a street light on Walcott street was referred to the committee. Sidewalk applications for Dr. W. P. S. Keating and Edgar W. Hodgdon, of Potter street were read. The weekly salary of the street superintendent was increased to $40 per week on motion by Alderman Beebe, the increase being $5. Irvin M. Ford is the incumbent of the position.

The following resolutions were then read and acted upon as indicated: Street light at the corner of Prospect and Hewitt streets and on Valley street near Normal school steps, by Alderman Beebe, referred to light committee, to terminate the occupancy of the building on Summit street, by Hose company, No. 2, of the fire department, by Alderman King, adopted to make a resolution adopted on June 8, 1925, relative to installing sewers on West Main street effective and give a hearing to property owners on Feb. 23, by Alderman Jackson, adopted; to arrange for the sale of the Hilltop Hose company, No. 2, building on Summit street and the Montgomery Rose company, No. 4, building on Jackson street and establish a new fire headquarters in the fourth ward, by Alderman Jackson, referred to fire committee with power; to have the fire committee reorganize the call member company of the fire department, by Alderman Jackson adopted; to install a street light on Windham street near Model school and a street light on Holbrook avenue and two street lights on Wilson street by Alderman Jackson, referred to light committee; to call a hearing of property owners for the acceptance of Willard street as a city street, by Alderman Beebe, adopted and hearing set for Feb. 23; to survey Quarry street and Mansfield avenue with a view of accepting same as city streets, introduced by Alderman Jackson, referred to street committee and hearing set for Feb. 23; to investigate the petition of John James, of Columbia avenue, to cut down trees, referred to street committee; to authorize the mayor to borrow $10,000 to defray current expenses, adopted.

The application of Albert F. Monty of Chestnut street, to become a supernumerary member of the police department, was referred to the police committee. Mayor Tracy read a New Year message in which he made a series of constructive recommendations for the welfare of the city especially stressing the present water situation in taking up police matters Alderman Jackson derided the past methods of appointing officers on the force to further political purposes and stated that this message would not be adhered to during the present administration. He desired that the police committee, of which he is chairman, investigate the qualifications of every applicant before he is appointed. His motion that the city clerk forward to the chief of police a written course for making applications was adopted.

City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell reported on his investigation of the overflow of water from the culvert on Bridge street some time ago which flooded the Guldnick-Windham Manufacturing plant, causing damage estimated at $2,000. He was authorized to make a survey in order that corrective measures might be taken. In view of the fact that the purchasing committee will have considerable work to do this term Mayor Tracy increased the committee by appointing Alderman Aime J. Martineau as an additional member. Mayor Tracy designated the following streets for coasting purposes, Summit, Mansfield avenue and Mountain. Police protection will be given on these streets and sliding on other streets will be prohibited.

The following menu was enjoyed:

Oyster Cocktail
Vegetable Soup
Celery Sweet Mixed Pickles
Roast Vermont Turkey, Giblet Gravy
Mashed Turnips Mashed Potatoes
Creamed Onions Cranberry Jelly
Parker House Rolls
Pineapple and Walnut Salad
Cream Dressing

The business session was called to order by President Frank L. Furness. He said that the Pawcatuck Board of Trade was a civic and not a political organization. Efforts were being made to widen the West Broad street underpass of the New Haven railroad in Pawcatuck and that a petition to the Connecticut state board of public utilities had many signers and opportunity was now given for more to sign requesting the improvement.

Amendments were voted to the by-laws, whereby ten members in place of fifteen were to constitute a quorum for a regular meeting and five members of the board of directors in place of a majority become a quorum, the board number being reduced from 15 to 10 members.

Karl G. Stillman, member of the school committee, said that the West Broad street teachers had formed a club similar to the Westerly Teachers' association and asked for co-operation of the board of trade, in assuring success for entertainments of high order in January, February and March sponsored by the teachers. With a seating capacity of 600 and accommodations for 800 it was the intention of the school authorities to get as many Pawcatuck residents as possible into the school building during the coming month.

Judge William A. Wilcox stated his belief that Pawcatuck needed a town clerk's office, "the one in Stonington being the poorest in New London and Washington counties." As a result there will be incorporated in the town call a resolution that there will provide a town hall in Pawcatuck.

"—AS COZY AS ONE CAN WISH"

Bowdoinham, Maine.

Dear Sir:

With a Perfection Oil Heater in the house as a supplement, any corner may be made as comfortable and cozy as one can wish in a surprisingly short time.

It serves so many purposes. It makes a cozy corner for the invalid; heats an extra kettle of water for any purpose whatsoever; pops the corn for the party of young people, without a long wait for the fire and the discomfort of the extra heat in the house; sitting close by the dining table, it serves for the quick, hot toast, and you don't wait long either; it keeps the vegetables from freezing when the thermometer races many degrees below zero, and not the least of all, it keeps baby chicks as cozy as can be, when old mother hen has become a back number.

Very truly yours,

MRS. EDWARD B. SPRAGUE

DANIELSON

ROD AND GUN CLUB HOLD AN OPEN MEETING

DANIELSON, Jan. 11—For this year's annual gathering of the Danielson Rod and Gun club, scheduled for Wednesday evening in the Majestic theatre, a special program of entertainment for the members and the friends they invite has been arranged. It is to be a big free show of motion pictures dealing with bird and animal life, these pictures made under the supervision of one of the foremost sportsmen's publications in the country.

The reels to be shown will deal with Bird and Animal Life in Yellowstone park, Square-tail Trout, Hunting the Grizzly Bear, Mallard Duck on the Illinois River and two reels showing fishermen using barbless hooks, a stunt that is becoming popular with many sportsmen.

The club has extended a special invitation to farmers and landowners over whose holdings club members roam during the hunting and fishing seasons to come in and see the pictures.

Weather conditions permitting, half a hundred men will this morning begin filling the houses of the Quinebaug Lake Ice company. Preliminary work was being done Monday afternoon and everything will be in readiness this morning to start harvesting the approximately 5,000 tons that will be housed. Monday afternoon the ice was about 9 1-2 inches. It is of excellent quality.

There was considerable satisfaction to the general public over the fact that a concern that has a contract for flagging Danielson's business section got right back on a long neglected job after Warden Walter Anderson gave them a short time limit for doing what they had agreed to do or suffer cancellation of their arrangement here. The holes left in the sidewalks for weeks were regarded as a nuisance and a menace to safety.

On a line operating between Providence and Danielson and points farther west it is now possible to make a round trip between Danielson and Providence for 2. This is a dollar cheaper than the rates that were in force prior to the first of the year. Having seen two lines of motor coaches running east and west through Danielson cut their rates between Danielson and Providence, the public now complacently awaits still further reductions, not that the present fares are unreasonable, but because they figure it is just going to happen.

Down at the Alvah Pierce farm on Squaw Rocks road Mr. Pierce's son, Amasa, has upwards of 6,000 eggs in incubators and between 600 and 800 chicks hatched. Mr. Pierce has orders already on hand that will require deliveries of all the chicks that will be produced from the eggs that are in the incubators. He started hatching chickens a few years ago on a small scale and has rapidly increased his operations to their present proportions. There should be some classy basketball here this week when the Service battery and Danielson Town teams get together. These two teams are made up of fast and experienced players. It may be said that they are very evenly matched, each having perfected good team play and each having brilliant individual players. Of course, there is wide cleavage of opinion as to which is the better team.

The man with a sleigh has a tough time of it in these modern days, especially if he ventures out on a state highway. This has been demonstrated time and again the past 48 hours. Sleighs are not so numerous these days, but there are some in use. That busy trunk line highways may be kept in good condition for motor traffic, snow is removed from them. That's where the troubles of the man with the sleigh originates. Coming out of country districts where a sleight really goes along very nicely, he finds himself riding the very edge of a state road seeking sufficient snow for the runners. And if by chance he has a sled with a load of cord wood aboard, he is truly out of luck.

A ruling of the Connecticut company has put an end to the carrying of packages or parcels on its motor coaches operating through this territory for fees. This, of course, does not apply to hand baggage or to parcels carried by patrons, but to packages that were despatched, as on the trolley cars, in charge of the coach operator and for a fee to be delivered to someone at some point along the route. The accommodation no longer existing was frequently used by business men for fast delivery service between points along the line.

JEWETT CITY

ONLY TWO OFFICIALS TO FIGHT FOR ELECTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 11—The borough of Jewett City furnishes a somewhat unique situation, in that neither the democratic nor the republican party were able to recruit a quorum at the caucuses held for the purpose of placing in nomination a list of borough officers, to be voted upon next meeting.

The slates have been made up by the two borough committees and the ballots will read as follows: Warden, Matthew Geary, on both tickets; burgesses, Edmond Jodoin, dem., Ernest French, rep.; clerk and treasurer, Edwin M. Gray, on both tickets; bailiff, Hector Sibelland, rep., Alfred Bacon, dem.; collector of the borough tax Ulderic Jodoin, on both tickets; auditors, George H. Prior, rep., Louis Morey, dem. Another peculiarity of the election, will be noted in the fact that, with the exception of one of the bailiffs, every name on the two tickets is elected before the vote is cast.

The new board of borough officers will be: Warden, Matthew Geary; burgesses, Thomas McBroom, rep., John McDermott, dem., Edmond Jodoin, dem., Ernest French, rep.; clerk and treasurer, Edwin M. Gray; bailiff, Hector Sibelland, rep. (?)) Alfred Bacon, dem. (?); collector, Ulderic Jodoin auditor, G. H. Prior, rep., Louis Morey, dem.

Mr. McBroom and Mr. McDermott were elected in Jan. 1925, for a two-year term.

CONDITION OF EARL GRAY REMAINS ABOUT THE SAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 11—Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Gray received a letter this week, from their son, Earl, a patient at the United States Veterans' hospital, at Outwood, Ky. The young man is a native of Jewett City, 29 years of age, and a member of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. & A. M. His war record of two years' service in the navy, according to his discharge papers, was A-1.

Having developed tubercular symptons he has been assigned to this hospital for a year's expert treatment, by the government.

His father says that although his letters written home are of the cheerful sort, yet he dislikes to learn that he is confined to his bed a good part of the time. Home friends would be pleased to learn that he had won out.

Old Cluey Watson was over to town Sunday, and in response to the inquiry of many friends, said he was feeling fine and fit. The hardy woodsman declared that the Mt. Misery trapping season could now be said to be formally opened, Monday, he said, when he makes his regular trip over the long trap line, a brook that has heretofore been closed this winter, will be open wide, and all the doings and movements of his wood-folk friends will be made plain. The light in the old man's eyes resultant from the challenge of the clear bright morning, and the three-inch blanket of newly fallen snow, was fine to see. Cluey was much interested in a recent short item in the Danielson column, telling that mink still exist in small numbers in some of the wild sections around Brooklyn. Now and then trappers in parts of the eastern wooded parts of Griswold, are able to add a mink skin to their bundle of furs, and it only needs a few to swell the trapping receipts for the winter to a fancy figure. Strange happenings and interesting stories are always being told to the students of the woods

Old Cluey, a few weeks ago, caught a great horned owl and a field mouse, at the same time, in a trap set for mink. The mouse evidently had been prowling about the bait, but its weight was insufficient to spring the trap. When the owl struck the mouse not noticing the trap, the extra weight and momentum released the spring, and both were taken together.

Few winter attractions in this section receive the patronage that is given to the annual ice cutting exhibit.

All days Sunday a big force of men, with power operated scrapers, were busy removing the 3-inch fall of snow from Dorrville pond.

Monday noon the cutting began in earnest, and this (Tuesday) morning the two harvesters will have 75 men at work on the job. With the snow removed, the ice is fine and clear, averaging 10 1-2 inches thick.

Miss MacDonald, a specialist on home nursing, in the farm bureau extension work, is to meet the group of Griswold women at the home of Mrs. W. A. Richardson, on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Fire of mysterious origin damaged the North Attleboro, Mass., new Junior High school the extent of $30,000.

DEMOCRATIC BLUNDERING

Such efforts as are being made by a few of the democrats in the senate in behalf of a tax reduction bill of their own promise to get no where. They are casting to the winds the efforts which have already been put forth in behalf of a non partisan tax bill and the acqnowledgment on the part of their committee members who participated in the hearings by the house ways and means committee that a bill had been drafted that deserved to be approved.

There are always those who seem to have a superior knowledge as to how legislation should be drafted, or at least they think they do, and who are willing to waste the time in getting their ideas presented even though there have been reasons to believe that they would simply cause delay and in the end would be defeated.

It has been clearly set forth that a tax reduction is justified but that there are limits to which such reductions should be restricted. It is folly to try to cut taxes in such a way that there will be a deficit just for the purpose of trying to gain some additional political benefit therefrom. For political purposes the democrats fought the last tax reduction measure and insisted upon going contrary to sound and scientific adjustment. After the law had gone into effect the results showed the mistakes they had made in refusing to accept advice based upon a knowledge of the situation.

The lesson of that experience had been learned by many of the democrats and even among the leaders of that party it is known that the move being made to upset the house bill is frowned upon. That being the case those who are proposing it should realize that they are engaged in the wasting of time and threatening to delay the tax reduction bill to the point where it will not be a law by the middle of March when the taxes are due. This, in the face of the nationwide demand for tax cutting, indicates more of the same tactics that characterized the last congress and which the country has long since become disgusted with.

COOPERATE FOR SAFETY

Getting the best possible use out of the street by both motor vehicles and pedestrians is the big problem of the day. The larger the community the greater the problem. Right at the very start it is well to realize that conditions which governed the streets in years gone by, when the horse drawn vehicle was the chief menace in the highways, do not exist. There has been a decided change. There has always been insistence upon avoiding the dangers of the highways but those dangers have multiplied many times in the last quarter century. There is far more vehicular travel than ever before, and it is traffic that moves quietly and fast. It is thus incumbent upon the pedestrians to look well to their own safety. This doesn't mean that they haven't rights, or that their rights have been decreased, but it is folly to try to plead something different from what actually exists.

The situation has its serious aspects but it will be far better met by giving the cooperation that is required. The time has come when the dangers of the streets must be given full recognition. They are no longer safe places to play. It is not a good practice to attempt to cross them without looking to see whether an auto is coming, and this in particular if stepping into the street from behind another car.

Where there are large volumes of traffic on sidewalks as well as in the highways there has been resentment and opposition displayed to the regulation of pedestrian traffic. Some persist in doing as they please and taking chances that are unjustified. Regulation is undertaken because of conditions and for the purpose of safety. It is time that this was realized and full appreciation felt for the protection that is being provided when guidance is accepted. Vehicular traffic must be kept moving quite the same as the pedestrian and in the light of the knowledge concerning present day conditions there should be an eagerness on the part of both to furnish the cooperation that will eliminate the needless accidents.

POTATOES

Has the resistance which was set in motion by certain organizations against the potato shortage some weeks ago accomplished its purpose? Not much has been heard about the inability to supply the demand because of short crops. The talk about the scarcity has dwindled and apparently the rush to get in a supply has ceased on the advice of those who were in a position to know that such was not necessary and would only contribute to the boosting of the prices.

Potatoes are of course subject to the influence of substitutes quite the same as coal. The use of such is what organizations of women have been urging. If persisted in it may have the effect of breaking the determination of the potato raisers of Aroostook county in Maine to hold their crop of something over 27,000,000 bushels until they can realize $40,000,000 from them.

There is no reason to deny the farmer a proper return for his labors. He works hard and is entitled to fair recompense quite the same as the next fellow. Perhaps it will be possible for the Maine growers to realize all that they expect from their crop, but if they have to take less they will be doing no different than mill owners and workmen in the other lines do when conditions make it necessary.

If the potato growers can hold out against an insistent demand their goal may be reached. If the product from other fields is thrown onto the market in such quantity as to supply the requirements under a restricted use of potatoes the Maine growers may view the situation in a different light.

Naturally the question arises as to whether the Maine potato crop could not be sold at a good profit even though it was impossible to get the $40,000,000 that is desired. It is easy to establish a goal but it is not always as easy to reach it. Because a goal is fixed does not necessarily mean that it is justified. There are those, apparently who figure that the Maine demands are such as to call for resistance and it is entirely possible that a restriction of the potatoes in the diet will prove a grand good thing for those who eat too many of them.

COMBATING STORM EFFECTS

There are always those who can put up a strong argument to the effect that the winters are not what they used to be, that the storms are not so severe and that the snowfall is not so heavy. They can tell about the holdup of transportation, difficulty in getting from place to place, the long use of sleds in hauling wood and the fact that roads would not be open for long periods, it being necessary many times to go through lots in order to get to one's destination.

That that is all because the storms of the early years made such a deep impression and it is much easier as adults to meet conditions than it was as children is also open to debate, but there is no getting away from the fact that even if there are storms the present day transportation is not blocked for long. And present day transportation is decidedly different proposition from what it was 25 or 50 years ago. The motor vehicle isn't able to surmount the difficulties and clear their own paths any better than the horse drawn vehicles of years ago, but under the present highway systems the roads are cleared of the snow by those forces which are engaged otherwise in maintaining the roads in good condition. The state roads are depended upon for every day business activities and it is necessary that they should be in shape for use, storm or no storm.

It takes an unusually hard storm to interrupt traffic in these days. This doesn't mean that it cannot happen but the trucks pushing plows and the forces of employes are always on their job at the first signs of a storm. The main thoroughfares are not only relieved of their drifts and any fallen trees, but they are cleared of the snow so that there is little obstruction to travel. This doesn't affect the severity of storms but it helps greatly in overcoming the effects of them.

VINDICTIVE HIRAM

Time serves to modify the hard feelings that have been caused. That is it does in some instances. Some reflect on the folly of harboring grudges and forget about the treatment they have received from others. They take a different view of conditions as they get away from the sting that has been experienced and do not consider it worth while to continue to seek vengeance.

Not so however with Hiram Johnson, senator from California and erstwhile candidate for presidential nomination. Senator Johnson hoped to get the nomination from the republicans at Chicago. He had some supporters but it was apparent after a while that he could not get it, for there were too many who wanted someone else. This became evident to some of those who had been voting for him, but among those who had been persistently voting against him was Judge McCamant of the Oregon delegation, the primary of which state endorsed Johnson Judge McCamant was a Wood supporter, and when the time came for nominating the vice president he named Calvin Coolidge.

In looking about for a judge to fill the vacancy in the ninth Oregon district, the president decided upon Judge McCamant and nominated him. There is no questions as to his qualifications, but Senator Johnson remembers back six years ago and the fact that the nominee did not vote for him so he has made up his mind that he will do his utmost to prevent the president's appointment from becoming effective. Senator Johnson has a personal reason for displaying his opposition and he is allowing that to influence his judgment with no apparent sign of erasing it from his memory while serving as a United States senator. With him personal feelings come first and country afterward.

Once more the weatherman seems to be headed in the direction that pleases the icemen.

In connection with resolutions for the new year there are not supposed to be any reservations.

One week it is January ice and the next January mud, and someone is displeased all the time.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—At the republican house caucus Congressman John Q. Tilson was reelected chairman of the Connecticut delegation and also as the Connecticut member of the republican house congressional election committee. Tilson will continue as the eastern manager of the latter committee with headquarters in New York during the fall campaign, where he was also in charge of the eastern speakers bureau. With this national election work added to the heavy duties of majority floorleader, Tilson, who is dean of the Connecticut delegation will find a strenuous summer and fall mapped out for him when congress adjourns.

Tilson has inaugurated a new method of floor leadership that bids fair to give able republicans a chance to help carry out the party program. He called a conference of chairmen of all committees that will present measures of importance to congress this session, urged them to unite in team work and do their part to carry out the legislative program without undue delay. In this way Tilson expects to have full cooperation of the ablest republican leaders of the house, instead of making the leadership a one man job as has sometimes been the case. The cordial response of the chairmen showed Tilson to be on the right track.

There seems to be much misunderstanding about the working of the so called alien citizenship law as affecting the citizenship of American women who marry foreigners.

The matter is too complicated, in the different phases of the bill to admit of more than a touch on the highlights unless the entire bill is analyzed.

Briefly summed up the late John Jacob Rogers, member of congress from Massachusetts, was largely instrumental in pushing through congress a measure under which an American woman carrying an alien does not automatically lose her American citizenship as was the case before the bill was passed last year. The bill is known as the Cable bill, taking the name of a member of the naturalization committee, which passed upon it, but it is practically the same as that framed and introduced by Rogers.

The point most often misunderstood seems to be that other nations do not recognize the laws of the United States as applying to residents of foreign countries. That phase is reciprocal, for the United States does not recognize the laws of foreign countries as applying to its own country under circumstances similar to the alien citizenship law.

The alien laws of this country now permit an American woman citizen to marry an alien, who is eligible to citizenship in the United States, but not a citizen, to retain her American citizenship if she so elects and makes formal announcement before a proper court.

Or she may assume allegiance to the country of her husband without such formality. If she elects to remain an American citizen she may live abroad with her husband for a space of from two to five years according to circumstances, but must not hold continuous residence abroad longer than that space of time, without forfeiting her American citizenship.

All that is very plain so far as the United States is concerned but we find that Great Britain, Italy, France and all other foreign nations do not recognize the laws of the United States as binding on them, and in their eyes the American woman has automatically become a citizen of the country of her husband, and is amenable to all its laws, restrictions, and punishments, exactly as if a native born citizen of that country. So long as she resides in the country of her husband's allegiance she is not under the protection of the United States.

This comes about through the old law running back to feudal days when territorial control and personal control rarely conflicted.

Territorial law makes every dweller within its limits amenable to its laws except under treaty, the rules of warfare, or by diplomatic courtesy. This is recognized by every civilized country in the world.

Therefore an American woman marrying an alien, and who commits a misdemeanor, or crime in that country is subject to being taken into custody, convicted and punished to the full extent of their existing laws, exactly as would be done to a native born citizen of that country. The only time when the United States would interfere or protest, would be if the woman was subjected to punishment more severe than would have been meted out to a native born citizen of that country.

So it behooves every woman marrying an alien to watch her step for she cannot rely on the United States to protect her outside the limits of its territorial authority.

A second section of the Cable bill, now a law, gives alien women marrying native born or naturalized American citizens a decided advantage over a male alien. The latter are required to live five years in the United States before they can acquire full citizenship, but a married alien woman, under the same conditions, can, if qualified, obtain full citizenship in one year, and without filin intentions.

Under the former law an alien woman marrying an American citizen automatically became a citizen, even though not speaking or understanding the language, or filling any of the required qualifications.

The new measures works both ways—it gives an American woman opportunity to retain her American citizenship, and it takes from the alien woman her automatic acquisition of citizenship.

It will be recalled that during the war naturalized American citizens of France, Italy and Great Britain were recalled and placed in the armies of their native countries without protest on the part of the United States. That was done under recognition of territorial law.

And the American woman, who has retained her citizenship, though marrying an alien, will do well to remember that the United States owes her protection only within its own territorial limits, and then only in case she has fully complied with the several restrictions set forth in the Cable bill.

Senator Moses of New Hampshire has introduced a bill for creation of a national police bureau in Washington which shall be a sort of clearing house for comparison of criminal records, and which will furnish information to states, cities and towns that will be of aid in putting a stop to the crime wave now sweeping the country. The Moses bill calls for a commissioner to serve a term of six years who will be appointed by the president and be subject to confirmation by the senate.

The National Police association strongly endorses the proposed bureau.

Old Horseshoes Now Knives

Horseshoes by the tons have been collected in the United States and shipped abroad, especially to China, where they have been made into all forms of knife blades. China is making a big industry of this and many knives for boys displayed in the United States now were a year or so ago piles of horseshoe junk.

DOG DAYS AND NIGHTS

"I hope you people have a pleasant summer," sighed Mrs. Simmons' niece as she sank into a chair. "It certainly has been a hectic one for George and me."

"I am sorry to hear that," said Mrs. Simmons sympathetically. "I had hoped that you might have a delightful season, now that the baby is old enough to play in the sand and things like that. He looks so cute with his little pail and shovel."

"Oh, the baby's a darling," her niece agreed with enthusiasm. "It was the dog that spoiled our summer."

"The dog?" repeated her aunt. "I didn't know you had a dog."

"We haven't, thank goodness," said her niece feverently. "But we did have.

"You see, one summer when mother was away she left the canary in the care of the Dallens and it seems they have never forgotten that they had the bird to look after for a whole month. It was years ago, but I think they have just been sitting around waiting until they could find a chance to return the favor, which they have now done with interest. I might have suspected something of the sort when Mona Dallen called me up, away back last May, to ask whether we were going to the springs this summer. I foolishly told them we weren't and added, in a burst of confidence, that George was so happy at the office that we didn't expect to get away anywhere all summer."

"You ought to have known better," laughed Mrs. Simmons. "When you are as old as I am you will understand that it is wise to say that you aren't sure yet what you are going to do, when anybody inquires. It leaves you a chance to change your mind if you want to, without having people say they understood you were going to the mountains instead of the shore and what happened to alter your plans. So, next time don't tell just what you plan to do, until your tickets are in your purse, and not then if you can help it."

"Well," said Mrs. Simmons' niece dolefully, "Along in July I received a special delivery letter from Mona Dallen saying that they were leaving the city and were shipping the dog to me to look after for the summer. She said she knew I'd be perfectly willing to take him in and was sure I'd enjoy him as much as they did the canary mother had once asked them to look after.

"The dog came and, of course, he had to stay. For five nights George and I were up most of the time trying to get him to stop howling, but the sixth night we brought him into the living room, where we made him a bed and he didn't howl once. The trouble with him was that he would run up to our bedrooms and wake us or the baby every morning at dawn and George would have to get up and put him back in bed and shut the living room door to keep him there.

"The first time he tore a magazine to shreds, the second time he knocked a vase off the window sill and smashed it and the third time he scratched the door trying to get out until the woodwork was a sight to behold. After that we put him down cellar again, where he howled so that the neighbors complained and a big-burly policeman came over to see what we were going to do about it.

"Fortunately, just then George had a chance to go up into Wisconsin and we put the dog in his basket and took him along. We found that the hotel up there wouldn't let us bring the dog in, so we boarded him out with a farmer and began to enjoy ourselves."

"Well," said Mrs. Simmons, "it was about time."

"That isn't half," declared her niece. "That dog ran away from the farmer twice and George had to go hunt for him once in a pouring rain and the other time pay a big reward for his return.

"When our little trip was over we were completely worn out and no mistake, for it was like that all the time. It wasn't any better when we got home, especially as we had to pay for damages he did to the neighbors' things.

"I was thankful to send him back home but just this morning Mona wrote me a note saying that the dog had caught some kind of illness while with us and she knew we'd be glad to pay the doctor's little bill of $7 which she inclosed."—Exchange.

Stories That Recall Others

Topsy-Turvy

Eleanor, age three, and her older sister went to spend the night with a small cousin. They romped and played through the evening and before they had hardly begun, bedtime came. The fun of all sleeping in the same bed, however held an attraction. The bed was not wide enough for all three of them to lie in it, so aunty tucked them in all lying the other way—crosswise. Next day Eleanor's mother came and at once was told of the great experience.

"Oh, mother," said Eleanor, "we slept wrong side out last night."

Not Dead but Sleeping

Bob is a popular young man, and a pretty lively young fellow in his waking hours.

He has a room in a house where there are many other roomers. One morning death claimed one of the men in the house and an undertaker was called to remove the body. He was directed where to go, but through some misunderstanding went into the wrong room. Bob, whose work keeps him out all hours of the night, had just got snugly settled in the arms of sweet morpheus and did not wake easily at the undertaker's entrance. But he was soon awake and "a rarin' to go." Bob says it's a thrill that comes to but few men who are able to talk about it afterward.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin, who today retires from the pulpit of the Park Avenue Baptist church, New York city, is one of the best known Baptist clergymen in the metropolis. The church of which he has been pastor for nearly fourteen years is popularly known as "Rockefeller church," because John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is a member and trustee and the elder Rockefeller attended services there for many years. Dr. Woelfkin is sixty-seven years old and a native of New York city. Forty years ago today he was ordained in the Baptist ministry and since that time his pastoral activities have been confined almost wholly to New York city and its immediate vicinity with the exception of a six-year period spent as a member of the faculty of the Rochester Theological seminary. In 1917 he was honored with the presidency of the Baptist Foreign Missionary society.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

Adrien Baillet Who Worked 19 Hours a Day!

"Labor vincit omnia!" ("Labor conquers everything!") says an old Latin proverb—and it is very true. The man who is willing to work can almost have the world for the asking but he must be willing to wait as well as to work, impatience has killed success many, many times. Still, one need not work as hard as did Adrien Baillet, a Frenchman who lived nearly 200 years ago.

"The man never rests!" said those who knew him. "I swear, he works all the time! He doesn't even eat!" That was almost true. Adrien Baillet often did go without eating at all—because he forgot all about it! He went without sleep—because he was so interested in his study that he forgot to become tired.

Like Napoleon, he seemed able to live with little sleep, and so he worked 19 hours a day, day after day, year after year, and had a good time! He had been born a very poor boy. Near his home there had been some kindly-disposed monks who amused themselves by talking to him in Latin. The boy became interested. "Teach me Latin," he said. So they began to teach the youngster Latin. Here was real fun—a boy who wanted to study Latin! Who would rather study Latin than to run and play! The monks enjoyed themselves and Adrien learned Latin free of charge. Through his good friends, the monks, he went on to a good school, gained a real education, took holy orders and when he was about 31 found himself no longer an ignorant and poor boy but one of the learned men of France. The rest of his life he spent in great libraries working over books.

He wrote histories and biographies and criticisms and philosophy—so many great books—and all without a typewriter or a stenographer—that it seems miraculous that one man could have done so much with a quill pen! He gained a great reputation among learned men and was looked upon with the utmost respect. Perhaps he shortened his life by his hard wife, for he died at 57; but he at least played the game and played it hard.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Prisoner of Jack Frost

Joy, despair, or maybe sorrow
May be ours on the morrow.
—Mrs. Grouse.

Mrs. Grouse is one of those who believes in the old saying "early to bed, early to rise." She gets up with jolly round bright Mr. Sun and she is very regular in her habits. As usual she awoke early the morning after her escape from Terror the Goshawk. She was very warm and comfortable. Over and around her was a blanket of snow. Right away she remembered how she had plunged into the snow the afternoon before to escape Terror the Goshawk. She chuckled.

"If he waited for me to come out he had a long wait," said she to herself. "Probably he will look for me this morning, so I guess the best thing for me to do is to get out early and eat breakfast before he comes around. One thing I like about nice deep soft snow is that always there is a place to hide no matter where I may be. If I were to be surprised right out in the open I could plunge out of sight in the snow. Yes, sir, I do like it. I do so. Well, I'm getting hungrier every minute, so here goes to see what I can find for breakfast."

Mrs. Grouse gave an upward jump, as is her way, using her stout wings and expecting to send the snow flying as she sped away. But she didn't send the snow flying. She didn't speed away. She bumped her head and bruised her stout wings against something hard something that kept her right down there in the snow. Instantly Mrs. Grouse knew what it was and the fright of her discovery made her quite helpless for a minute or two. She just sank right down in the snow. She was caught under the crust which had formed in the night. She was the prisoner of Jack Frost. She had been caught that way before and she knew just what it meant. She knew that it must have rained while she knew nothing about it, and then Jack Frost had come along and made that crust. She knew that unless the weather should turn warm and that crust melt very soon she would be almost certain to starve to death. From other enemies she always has the chance to escape by the use of her stout wings and quick wits. It was dreadful enough to have to fly for her life as she often had had to do, but that was nothing compared with the dreadfulness of being held a prisoner under the crust by Jack Frost. Do you wonder that she felt quite helpless?

"If he waited for me to come out he had a long wait!" said she to herself

Then Mrs. Grouse did the most foolish thing she could do, a thing that she knew was foolish because she had done it before. She began to beat against the crust. She beat and beat and beat, but only hurt herself. Finally she had to stop to rest. She was tired out. Later she tried pecking at that crust. But it was difficult to peck straight up and she couldn't do much

Once as she was feebly picking at that icy crust she heard a scratching sound just above her. She stopped pecking instantly and crouched motionless in the snow. She knew that Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote or Yowler the Bob Cat had heard her and was trying to scratch a hole to get to her. Right then she was glad that crust was so thick and so hard. But whoever it was didn't waste much time trying to scratch a hole through that crust. They had no intention of wearing out their claws that way.

After a while Mrs. Grouse tried working her way along under the crust and trying it at different points in the hope that she might find a weak place. But working through that snow was slow work and hard work and she was so very hungry that it seemed to her that she must, she simply must get food or her strength would fail.

Poor Mrs. Grouse was almost hopeless, but not quite. She had been caught that way before and escaped. Farmer Brown's boy had found her and set her free. Perhaps something would happen this time.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any druggist.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble when you can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't [illegible] a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 239 N. Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Gargle Aspirin for Tonsilitis or Sore Throat

After he was despatched from the telegraph office with the message, the news had spread about Washington that Lincoln had been shot and the militia took control of the streets. Mr. Boozang had much difficulty in trying to get to the white house and back.

SPOKE BEFORE BROTHERHOOD OF UNITED CRURCH

The regular meeting of the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church was held Monday evening at the Community house, with a supper at 6.30 served under the direction of Mrs. William P. Wade. There was an attendance of over 50.

Following the business meeting, Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, the president, introduced as the speaker James L. Case, president of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, who gave the Brotherhood men an inspiring talk upon "Your City and Mine," for which he was given a rising vote of thanks at the close.

Mr. Case spoke of his pleasure in speaking before a group of men who were interested in achieving the best things for the city, and went on to ask his audience to consider what Norwich will contribute in the days to come towards building a greater and better Norwich. He referred to a number of the well known names of other days, Huntington, Gilman, Tracy, Blackstone, Norton, Osgood, Buckingham and Foster, men who had played notable parts in Norwich history, and were joined in the present day with the names of Congressman Higgins, Ex-Mayor Lerou and Alderman Bliven, members of the Brotherhood. Norwich had never been a selfish city, he said, as witness the names of Slater, Backus, Gale, Osgood, Sturtevant, and Norton, who had made large gifts towards charitable and educational objects. We can be proud of our schools and industrially our products reach to the ends of the earth.

The Chamber of Commerce, he said, is animated by this desire for bigger and better things for Norwich and its programme includes many aims towards that end. In this connection Mr. Case mentioned that one of the objects named in the programme was an aviation field and he said that Governor Trumbull had promised to fly here and dedicate the field if it should be secured while he is governor.

Mr. Case spoke of character as a prime essential for every citizen and urged that as we stand on the threshhold of 1926 each one resolve to give his best, to do his best, and be his best, in order that we shall build towards a city of which we can all be proud.

President Campbell spoke in appreciation of the work that is done by Mr. Case as president and John J. O'Rourke as secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. O'Rourke being a guest at the supper.

Following the address an interesting moving picture of the paper industry was shown. This was secured through the courtesy of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., being a picture that has been made by the General Electric Co.

POLICE CARRY WOMAN TO SAFETY FROM FIRE

One woman was literally carried to safety from the third floor of the building at 9 1-2 Thames street, another woman escaped unaided from the third floor and Charlie Yip, Chinese laundryman, was forced to flee from his sleeping quarters when fire of unknown origin badly gutted the grocery store on the ground floor conducted by Nicolas Sterges shortly before two o'clock this (Tuesday) morning. The fire was discovered by Officer Frank Gwizdowski as he was making his rounds.

He pulled in box 14 and then hurried back to the burning building, waking Charlie Yip from a sound slumber and then rushing up to the third floor where he found the women asleep in their smokefilled rooms. Mrs. Estelle Miller, about 60 years of age, was carried from the building by Officer Gwizdowski and she found refuge in the building across the street. When Charlie Yip was awakened his sleeping quarters and laundry were filled with smoke. He made a hurried exit.

The fire department made a quick response and on arrival found the store a mass of flames. Two lines of three inch hose and a line of inch and a half hose were quickly laid and a chemical line were run to the building.

The plate glass windows crashed onto the sidewalk from the heat and water and in a few moments the flames, which were shooting out across the sidewalk were squelched. The recall was sounded a few minutes after two o'clock.

The cause of the fire had not been determined up to press time. Chief Howard L. Stanton said he was satisfied that the fire was not caused by the stove in the store. It evidently started back of the counter on the left hand side of the store and the flames worked to the front of the store and into the show windows. The interior of the grocery was badly gutted.

The building is owned by Israel Goldberg.

THE BOY FRIEND TAKES SUSIE OUT BOWLING AND TO SEE INDOOR CIRCUS

The boy friend initiated Susie into the intricacies of bowling last week and Susie writes her impressions of the game. The girl also took in the indoor circus at one of the local theatres and what she has to say about it is told in the following letter:

Dears Sports Editor:

Well, here I is agin. O yes, I feel a lot better'n I did when I writ that last epistol, my head ain't goin' round like it was then. But I got other aliements just the same. The Boy Friend took me bowlin' the other night and I ain't got the kinks outa my systems yet. Gosh, that bowlin' is a great games if you don't weaken, but I guess I musta weakened.

Well, me and the boy ain't got nothin' heavy on the other nights so's he says let's go bowlin' and I says let's and we did. That bowlin' is the most deceevin' game I ever saw and I don't mean perhaps. We get down to them allies early so's we wouldn't get left and we gets a ally. I ain't figgered why they call 'em allies 'cause they ain't like no allies I'm useta, no tin cans and rubbish laying round in 'em nor nothin' like regalar ally. Well as I writ, we got a ally and we gets goin'—that is the boy do, 'cause I ain't started yet. The feller what's runnin' the allies hollers to a kid down to the other end to set up them pins in No. 1. The kid snaps outa it like he was goin' to a funeral, and he puts some wooden things in a bunch down to one end o' the board walk what the balls rolls on. Them thinks looked like wooden home-brew bottles but they ain't got no resemblence to pins as far's I can see.

Then the boy friend starts to tell me 'bout the games. His explanations is just as clear as city water an' I sees threw 'em quick like. He says the object is to knock down as much pins with the least balls as possible in ten boxes. I gets him as far as the boxes but I don't see no boxes so I says I guess the feller musta forgot to bring 'em on. He says don't be so dumb an' I says so's your old man. Then somebody in a other ally says "Strike" and I says "Mind your own busyness I ain't goin' to hit the kid." The boy says "Shut up he ain't talkin' to you, he means he just gotta strike." "Oh, I sees" say I, "now if he gets two more he's out." "No, he says, "the more strikes he gets the more he wins." Gosh, I guess I musta got my baseball all tangled up with my bowlin'.

Then the boy says "You want me to roll first or is you goin' to?" "Well, I says with a kinda Ritzy look, "you can roll if you wanta but believe me I ain't goin' to get down on that dirty floor and roll in these rags if I never learns to bowls." "I means roll them round balls down the ally and knock them pins down, has I gotta draw you a pictures?" says the boy. "How you goin' to draw pitchers when you can't write yet" I comes back. Well, he starts to throw them balls down the ally and knocks down some pins, then he knocks some more down and then its my turn. I thinks its easy so I grabs a ball an' heave it down on the boards but it rolls offa the ally into them grooves but I don't knock down know pins. "Keep em outta the gutter" says the boy. Then I noes why they call 'em allies. Its 'cause they is got gutters, all good allies is got gutters.

Well I rolls a other balls and I hits the pins in the same place as with the first ball, but I ain't discouraged an' I heaves a other with the same suppising results. About then I gets kinda peeved and I picks up two more balls and lets 'em drive. Seems you can only roll three balls and then the kid at the other end rolls 'em back. I didn't no this and just as them two balls was whizzin' down the middles of the allys the kid steps in front of 'em. Bang. Them balls hit the kid and down he goes among them pins. I thinks I done something great an' I says "How's that, don't that count a lot? The boy says "You better get out 'fore you kill somebody." Ain't that just like man? Well, we keeps on bowlin' an' after we been there a hour my score is 25 but if I keep on maybe I'll be a champeen too and bowl them Barber and Dugas fellers, if they live that long.

When we gets outa them allys we goes down to the theatre where they is havin' them indoor cirkus. They is a big gang there but we is lucky and we gets a coupla seats. Gosh it was some show, all them rorin' lions and ephalants and ponies and a mules. Oh, yes they hadda feller what ties hisself all up in nots while he's hangin' from a trappeas. Gosh I wish I was as limber as that feller 'cause then it would be easy to hook up them corsolets of mine what hooks in the back.

Well we laffs and laffs and then a feller comes out all drest up like waiter and tells the folks that he will give $25 or $50, I fergets which, to anybody what rides the mule. Well a lotta fellers get up and starts for the stage and the boy friend also starts but I grabs him and drags him back. I know mules and they ain't no fit playmates for boys, specially if they's friends of mine. I mean the boys not the mules being friends of mine. Nobody never made no friends with no mule.

They was a lotta fellers on the stage and the feller brings on the mule. Then the fun begins First one feller makes a grab for that mule and the mule makes a healthy swipe at the boys' pants. I kinda think them fellers belonged with the show 'cause they's pants looks like they were stuffed with something besides boy. I don't blame 'em none either 'cause when you goes monkeying 'round the business end of a mule you gotta have some protection besides what nature give you. Well everybody takes a crack at hoppin' on the mules back but the mule ain't goin' to be rid if he can help it.

Then a feller what lives up in Yantic takes a crack. Right away I sees this feller musta been 'round mules a lot 'cause he don't make no bones about it a tall. He just walks right up to that steed and lays hold of the bridal and then grabs a ear and hops on his back just like Tom Mix. When he is on he grabs the other ear and thats all they is to it for he rides that mule 'round the stage just like Napoleon at Valley Forge. That fire'eatin' animal is just as gentle and peaceable as old Dobbin. I guess that feller had that mule hipnotized all right. When the feller what's promised the money see's it he turns kinda green like he's sick and then he sqawks that the kid has been rouch with the animal and it ain't fair. He says he ain't goin' to pay the kid but the kid says "Gimme that money what you promised I rid that mule and I'se on him now." But nothin' doin' that feller hates to let go of them shekels. The crowd is cheerin' for the boy and when the feller goes to make a speech the crowd goes" zzzz zz zz" like a engine blowin' off steam. Bime by they gets a cop and he talks to the boy and its all over. I don't know if the kid gets the money or not but if he didn't he auta.

That ain't know way for them cirkus fellers to do, to promise something and then crawl outa it. It looks bad for the theatre but I don't think Mr. McAvoy of the theatre had anything to do with it 'cause he's to good a sport. If he said he was gonna give something away he'd do it I guess, even if he has gotta Scotch name.

Well I hope the kid gets his money if he didn't. And I hope them Barber and Dugas fellers gets to bowlin' 'cause I wanta see that matches and see if they is as good as I.

Yours truelev.

SUSIE.

BALTIC TO TAKE STRONG TEAM TO JEWETT CITY WEDNESDAY

Wednesday evening at Jewett City, Baltic will endeavor to make it two straight from the Jewett City Pros, Baltic having copped the first encounter at Baltic a month ago. However, Jewett City is determined that Baltic shall suffer defeat and as Baltic won by a small margin in the first engagement this game should be close and thrilling from start to finish. Baltic's "white hope," "Red" Charron, sometimes called by loyal Baltic fans the "Red" Grange of basketball has been primed for this event and it will take a lot to stop this hard playing, accurate shooting son of old Baltic. But Jewett City with their new motto, 'a team that wont be beaten can't be beaten," is confident of victory.

Other Baltic stars will include Coady, a big boy who can travel with the fastest, the Robitaille brothers, two lively stepping performers that are hard to stop, and Provencher and Andrews two youngsters of recognized ability, thus rounding out a team that on paper is second to none in this vicinity but Wednesday night will determine their court strength.

Jewett City will announce their lineup in tomorow's paper. In the opener the Plainfield Buddies, without doubt the fastest preliminary team in eastern Conn., will attempt to lower the colors of the Jewett City Seconds, a team that is going great guns at present, having forced the Celtics of Taftville into overtime last week only to lose by a close score. As there is no love lost between these two clubs the game should prove another humdinger.

PROPOSE BOUT BETWEEN CARPENTIER AND STRIBLING

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Promoters of the National Sportsman's club of Newark, N. J., conferred with Jack Curley, Georges Carpentier's American representative today, concerning a match between Carpentier and Young Stribling, Macon, Ga., light-heavyweight.

No definite date was discussed by the promoters but they intimated they would like to stage the match as soon as Carpentier could work off his "sea legs." The colorful Frenchman is scheduled to arrive in this country Wednesday morning and Curley refused to close the deal until Carpentier sanctions the match.

Primarily Carpentier is coming here as the advance agent of Paolino, the Spanish heavyweight. Francois Descamps, who manages the business affairs of both Paolino and Carpentier, will arrive later with Paolino.

Tex Rickard said today he expected to have Carpentier appear at Madison Square Garden but he refused to say against whom he would pit him. Rickard is interested in the American invasion of Paolino and he already has said he will offer the Spanish heavyweight a match with either Hary Wills or Gene Tunney.

Jess McMahon, matchmaker at the Garden, is seeking matches for January 29 and Feb. 5. He intimated that he is trying to sign Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo and Frank Moody of England for Jan. 29 while Johnny Dundee, former world featherweight and junior lightweight champion and Joe Gluck, New York junior lightweight are being considered for Feb. 5.

Battery Forfeits Game

The game scheduled for 6:30 at the Armory between the Battery B and Nutmeg indoor baseball teams in the Norwich Indoor League was forfeited to the Nutmegs as the Battery team failed to put in an appearance at the scheduled time while the Nutmegs had their entire squad ready to begin play at 6:30 Umpire Malcolm forfeited the game to the Nutmegs at 7:15, just as the majority of the Battery team arrived ready to play; three quarters of an hour after the regular time to begin play.

Senators Have Extensive Schedule

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—An extensive pre-season exhibition schedule has been arranged by the Washington Americans, including 13 games with their 1924 world series rivals the New York Giants. In addition to these contests, the Washington team will meet the Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia and Cincinnati clubs of the National league, and several minor league teams.

TAFTVILLE TO PLAY BALTIC FIVE AT PARISH HALL THIS EVENING

This evening at the Parish hall, Taftville the Baltic quintet will clash with the Taftville five in the second game of the series. In the initial game at Baltic last Friday night the local aggregation handed the Baltic five their first defeat of the season and romped Coady and "Fargo" Robatille will act as gin of one point.

The defeat was a hard pill for the Baltic fans to swallow as they had anticipated an easy victory for their hoopsters owing to the fact that several of the local regulars were unable to play, due to injuries, but the capable substitutes came through at opportune moments and before the Baltic team itself could realize it the game was over and the locals had snatched away the victory.

Tonight's battle has every indication of being a duplicate of last Friday's performance and a large number of fans are expected to turn out to witness the encounter.

Pastiming in the forward positions for the visitors will be "Rabbit" Robatille and "Chick" Andrews, "Red" Charron will do the hopping while Coady and 'Fargo" Robatille will act as guards. The local five will present their strongest lineup and all the regulars will be on hand to end the series tonight. Rabbit Gauthier, Mondi Normandi or Jim Murphy will take care of the forward berths "Ed" Murphy will jump at center with Tom Coleman. "Bus" Murphy or Eccleston as guards

In the preliminary game the Taftville Celtics will clash with the Jewett City Seconds.

WALKER MAY GO TO ENGLAND TO BOX

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Prevented by the New York State Athletic commission from defending his world's welterweight title here against Tommy Milligan, English champion, Mickey Walker today announced he has taken under consideration an offer to stage the bout in England.

Walker and Milligan were signed to box on Jan. 22 in Madison Square Garden, but the match was cancelled by the commission ostensibly because Walker complained of infection of a toe on his right foot. Failure of Walker to agree to terms for the match to be staged at a recent Christmas fun show was claimed to have figured in the board's action, however.

In the event Walker elects to go to England, to meet Milligan, it will mark the first time in more than a decade that an American titleholder has gone abroad to fight in defense of his title.

Willis Ritchie took the lightweight title abroad to risk it against Freddy Welsh in the last memorable European battle between an American titleholder and an outstanding challenger.

Ritchie lost the crown on a decision which was disapproved by Americans who witnessed the match. They claimed that Ritchie won decisively and he later outpointed Welsh here in a return contest. Willie never regained the title, however.

Since Ritchie's experience, American champions have been reluctant to risk their crowns in foreign rings.

MANY PLAYER DEALS EXPECTED AT MINOR MEETING

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 11—(AP)—Scores of player deals promise to be completed at the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues, which opens tomorrow afternoon on Catalina Island, for which some 200 baseball men were gathered here today. Upwards of 200 others, representing organized baseball east of the Rockies, both major and minor, are expected to arrive at Wilmington tomorrow, there to embark for Avalon, the isle convention city.

Deals contemplating the sale or exchange of players are in various stages of negotiations and are expected to be closed during the three day session.

General indications of the re-election of M. H. Sexton as president of the association and J. H. Farrell, as secretary-treasurer, left but two other issues likely to cloud the atmosphere of the session. They are the discussion in the change of play option rule and consideration of a plan permitting pitchers the use of resin.

Many of the delegates left for the island today and others, including Commissioner of Baseball K. M. Landis, have set their departure for tomorrow morning.

LOS ANGELES BUSINESS MEN WILL SPONSOR DEMPSEY BOUT

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 11—(AP)—A group of Los Angeles business men today announced their willingness to underwrite the Dempsey-Wills heavyweight championship bout to the extent of $2,000,000 and hold the affair in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The members of the group promoting the proposed fight today laid their plans before Jack Doyle veteran fight sponsor of Vernon, and asked him to undertake the management of the affair.

Doyle said that he was willing.

Backers of the plan would like to hold the bout next spring, but this is believed impossible owing to Dempsey's disinclination to enter the ring home with a victory by the scant margin.

Under present tentative arrangements, the bout would be a daylight affair, going ten rounds, the limit to a decision under the state law.

BIFF JONES APPOINTED COACH AT WEST POINT

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 11—(AP)—The appointment of Lieut. Lawrence M. (Biff) Jones, as head coach of the Army football team for 1926, succeeding Captain J. J. McEwan, was announced today by military academy authorities.

Lieut. Jones has served for the past three years as line coach at West Point under Capt. McEwan, who resigned recently to accept the position of head coach at the University of Oregon. The new Army mentor played on the Cadet teams of 1914, 1915 and 1916. He was elected captain of the 1917 team but because of the war and early graduation lost his chance to lead the eleven.

Indoor League is Ended

The Indoor Baseball league ended Monday evening with Faber's All Stars and the Battery B team in tie for first place.

The All Stars challenge the Battery team for a game next Monday evening for the championship for fun, money or marbles.

Their lineup will include Faber, West, Cimikoski Bros., Gilbert, "Zeke" Laffingwell, Gaudette, Normandin and a couple of others, unknown at this time. Answer through this paper.

ONLY KNOCKOUT IN AMATEUR BOUTS AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Boston won three of eight trial bouts in the N. E. A. A. U. inter-city amateur tournament in Mechanics hall tonight. The only knockout was by Arthur Sullivan of Boston, scored against Brooks Labaugh of Philadelphia in the 147 pound class preliminaries. All the bouts were three-round affairs.

The first to use the toe hold in wrestling was Frank Gotch, the Iowa grappler, who made use of it to win the world's heavyweight championship from Hackenschmidt, the "Russian Lion."

Pal Reed, who has quite a reputation as a light heavyweight boxer, is a Sunday school teacher as well as a battler.

The first 100 yards in 9 4-5 seconds was run by John Owen, who performed the feat in Washington, D. C., in 1880.

Freddie Welsh, former lightweight champion, is said to be the only vegetarian who ever won a world's boxing title.

The Powderhall track in Edinburgh, Scotland, is generally credited with being the fastest running track in the world.

At 62 years of age, Mrs. Caleb Fox, the Philadelphia golfer, defeated Miss Glenna Collett, the national champion, twice in one season.

Rogers Hornsby, the sensational batsman of the St. Louis Nationals, now has a grand average of .363 for his eleven years in the National league.

Holy Cross college, at Worcester, Mass., has graduated more star baseball players into the big leagues than nearly all other colleges put together.

In the season of 1912 the Washington Senators distinguished themselves by winning the first entire Western series away from home, consisting of 17 straight games.

When the National A. A. U. indoor track and field championships are held in Chicago on March 6 it will be the first time that the title meet ever has been held in the Western metropolis.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Building continued slack during the past week in Norwich although it did show some indications of activity in the near future. At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton, three building permits were granted, one for a new dwelling, one for a garage and the other for alterations to the Fay building on Franklin square. The total valuation of the work as described in the building applications is approximately $5,000.

The snow of Saturday is holding up the exterior work on some of the projects in Norwich but work is being done on many of the alteration jobs and jobs where the construction work is now confined to the interior.

The building applications granted by Fire Marshal Stanton are as follows:

To Sygmond Lajkowicz, to erect a one family frame bungalow on Howard street. The building will be 28x44 feet with stone foundation and cement cellar. The house will be of frame construction throughout with hardwood floors and trim. The exterior will be in shingles.

To P. F. Sweeney, contractor, to make alterations to the building on Franklin square owned by Samuel Goldberg. The alterations are for the Far East Co., which will include putting in large windows in the front of the building and changing the partitions and reinforcing with steel beams and reinforcing with steel beams.

To Leon P. Shelton, to erect a frame garage on Spring Garden Ave., for Michael Maguire. The garage will be 20x20 feet and will accommodate two cars.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the first week in January there were no real estate sales recorded while a year ago the sales numbered 13. There were no mortgage loans recorded during the first week of the present year in Norwich but during the first week in 1925 the mortgage loans were $15,400.

In New London during the past week there were 2 sales of real estate as compared to 5 sales for the first week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $40,900 and $10,750.

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT FOR BUILDING IN 1926

Another great year of building activity and business prosperity is predicted in a review and forecast of construction and real estate financing prepared by G. L. Miller, president of G. L. Miller & Co. President Miller says: "Another great year of building activity in the United States seems assured for 1926. While I do not believe total construction will attain the record-breaking proportions of the last year, I do think that available data indicates a fairly close approximation of the 1925 figure—totaling in 1926 probably between $5,500,000,000 and $6,000,000,000. Above is the answer I have given to the questions asked of me scores of times: 'Now that the biggest building year in history is passing, what is to come?' Is the shortage made up? Is there broad enough and strong enough support for another peak year? Or will we witness a decline of major importance?' To answer these questions requires consideration of many factors. In the end the answer is just an opinion based upon conditions as they now exist or are forecast.

"Building costs seem well stabilized and there is little indication that they will show any divergencies either way from their present levels as long as a high degree of building activity is assured. Neither do I look for any material reduction of rentals, especially in the case of well situated buildings, properly constructed according to modern standards. Rents may be affected locally but not generally."

Shortage Overcome.

"What remained of the wartime building shortage has probably been wiped out by the tremendous construction volume of the last few years. The boom is over and we have for some little time faced stabilized conditions and the problem of supplying our increasing normal building requirements. Speculation will find little to thrive on. Good judgment, caution and careful moving must now be the watchword of the building industry. The time has passed when we can think of building demand in terms of shortage. We must consider it strictly in terms of growth, requirements, population trend and industry. Of course it is true that in some localities there is an unsatisfied demand for housing and other types of buildings; but taking the country as a whole, the building problem is one of meeting the local requirements; taking care of annual growth in population, which alone requires, it is estimated, approximately 450,000 new buildings of various kinds; replacing and remodeling structures affected by fire, decay, obsolescence and other causes. Estimates from private sources have placed the value of construction to meet normal needs at approximately $4,000,000,000. This would mean that the average annual building requirements of the nation, together with other contemplative building, would be sufficient to keep the construction industry going full speed ahead during 1926."

Building Permits in State

Building permits issued during the past week in the leading towns and cities of the state reported in these columns numbered 141, as against 140 in the like week of last year and 188 in the like week of 1924. The cost of new construction for this week was $2,290,077, while the cost of new buildings in the like week of 1925 was $823,300, and in 1924 $714,540.

New London.

At a meeting to be held early this month plans for a new Masonic building on Huntington street will be discussed by representatives of Union and Brainard lodges. It is the desire of the local Masonic building committee to enter upon a building project with the local lodges acting jointly. A discussion of the building plans at previous meetings has favored the erection of a new building rather than making alterations to the present building, as was originally considered.

Local contractors have been awarded the contract for a cottage at 93 Lower Boulevard for James W. Eckford. The house will be of frame construction, two stories high, arranged for one family. The cost will be about $6,000.

Plans for the proposed alterations to the Pequot Casino property on Pequot avenue for Waldo E. Clarke and Mrs. Clarke have been revised. The revised plans are now being figured.

The contract has been awarded to Edwin Cruise for a house at 640 Williams street for Raymond H. Stearns, 674 Williams street. As reported before in these columns, the plans were prepared by Mr. Cruise and call for a frame house 30x30 feet with an ell 11x20 feet. Mr. Cruise has finished George MacLaughlin's house on Squire street.

The contract for the erection of 110 bathhouses in the rear of Dyke street and Stewart avenue for Abraham Rakosky, 65 Federal street, has been awarded.

Work has been started on a garage at the corner of Bristol and Walker streets. The building will be 28x54 feet, of frame construction, one story high. The cost will be about $4,000.

Carl E. Burgess has the contract for a store building at 99 Bentley avenue for S. Litvin and others. From private plans the building will be 32x18 feet, one story high, of frame construction.

Building Permits.

Gordon B. Crossley, store and tenement, 244 Pequot avenue, $4,000.

S. Litvin et al., store, 99 Bentley avenue, $500.

Agnes Aitchison, garage cor. Bristol and Walker streets, $4,000.

James W. Eckford, cottage, 93 Lower Boulevard, $6,000.

Number of permits issued for the week, 5; estimated cost of buildings, $14,550.

STONINGTON.

The contract for the installation of a heating plant with an oil burner in the residence of Eugene Atwood, in Stonington, being completely remodeled, has been awarded. The contract also includes the installation of a vacuum cleaning system. The general contractors have received bids for the plumbing and electric wiring. The new construction is now being roofed in.

NEW LONDON BOOTLEGGERS RECEIVE HEAVY FINES OR SENTENCED TO JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 12—If the bootleggers and liquor dealers in other ways suppose they are crafty enough to outwit the state and local police and thus carry on their business undetected, they are likely to change their minds after their experience today. Five of them were convicted and paid fines of $200 each with costs that totalled some $30 besides, and another, Maggie Polizzi, was fined $40 and appealed, while half a dozen others were sent to jail as they were unable to pay.

The police court was in session from 8:30 this morning till 3 o'clock this afternoon. There were few trials, but these were long-drawn out by the taking of testimony. Gaspero Piscatello alone of the taximen, half a dozen of them, sought to get out of the mess he was in. He claimed an alibi, but did not prove it. He represented that he was in Willimantic where he had taken a man who arrived on the New York train, and thatw hile he was there he spent the day with his sister-in-law. Piscatello made the best defense he could; but it was apparent to the court that he was accused and identified by men who alleged they bought liquor from him in the entrance to the Union railway station, and that he took the booze from the pocket of his coat to supply them. They paid him $3 a pint for the stuff they bought. Gaspero also endeavored to show that the men who accused him did not know him and held that they were mistaken in identifying him. He turned his back and his face for identification, and each time he was picked out as the seller of the booze.

He received a $200 fine and paid. Joe Farino was given the same fine, but he didn't ask for a trial. A. Davidson was also fined. One Tyrayman, colored, the janitor of a State street building was likewise fined $200. He settled and promised to go out of the game. Howard Peckham of Howard street, was fined $200. He lost a still he was operating also.

Maggie Polizi was dealt with more severely than was any of the accused. She was fined $400, as she had been an offender before and then promised to abandon the business. Mrs. Victoria Carman was fined $200 and went to jail.

The men who secured the evidence against the accused are George Hoyle and Elias Jennings, both of this city. They are brothers-in-law and worked out of the Groton police barracks, receiving, they testified $10 for each conviction they secured. They said that if they failed to convict they did not receive compensation for their work. They are young men. Hoyle has been a truck driver for Louis Lubchansky, a junkman, and has also driven for the Howard Street Coal and Grain company. They reside now on Stoney Hill, whence they removed from East New London. Mrs. Carman made a determined effort to escape conviction and declared that both Hoyle and his mother had been at her home and that they brought booze which was drank there. She accounted for a five-gallon alcohol can found in her home by saying that her little son picked it up on the dump and that she intended to use it to hold kerosene for household purposes.

A glass gallon jar found at her home had a very small quanity of cider in it and that she claimed to have been the original contents of the jar. Some coloring she had, was said by her to have been used to color gravy. Mrs. Carman works in the Troy Laundry and at hotels as dishwasher at night.

Hoyle and Jennings are housed and fed at the state police barracks when they are not searching for liquor law violators during their engagement with the state police.

Several of the cases were continued to tomorrow and others, a greater number, were continued till Saturday. Rock Diptula and John Quinn, both many times offenders, are to come to trial Saturday. They are represented by attorneys and say they propose to make a contest.

The court room was filled with spectators during the trials, for the interest in the cases is keen. The quantity of beverages captured by the police department on search warrants is such as filled the room adjoining the police station and occupied much of the space in the basement of the police building. A still that is in the possession of the police is an elaborate affair and is calculated to re-distill denatured alcohol that the stuff may be used for beverage purposes. There are quantities of home-made beer and liquors of various grade, some of it showing alcohol of 160 per cent.

The raids were so thoroughly worked up and so well carried out that proof seemed to be abundant as to the guilt of the accused. The men who obtained the liquors are well acquainted about the city and had a list of places where they were to seek liquor. They bought of men who were their school mates in years long since departed and they had the others "on their list" so that there was little doubt as to what was going to happen.

Whether Judge Prince will bind any of the accused over to the superior court that they may be in line for going to state prison is not known, but their offenses are such that they may be thus treated. Diptula and Quinn are what might be called calloused offenders for they have been accused several times each and both have served jail sentences. Each has but recently been released from jail. There were twenty-six cases on the docket when the court opened and a comparatively small number of them were disposed of.

Aubrey Garvin, an employe of the Lyceum Taxicab company, Church street, who declares that he was held up by two thieves, both alleged to be sailors attached to the submarine base, Saturday evening, being robbed of $13, at the Church street garage, is unable to identify the robbers should they be apprehended. Garvin declares that the money was taken from his vest in the garage lavoratory by the uniformed men. Sergeant John Cavanaugh continued his investigation into the reported robbery today, but with Garvin being unable to identify the thieves the investigation has been dropped.

Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church, at the Crocker House Sunday evening, the ceremony being witnessed by a larg number of relatives and intimate acquaintances of the couple. Richard M. Purinton, Lincoln, Ill., brother of the groom, was best man, and Miss Marian Silva, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Dr. and Mrs. Purinton will reside in Boston upon the conclusion of their wedding tour and in which city Dr. Purinton is a practicing dentist.

Dr. and Mrs. Gerard E. Jensen, 51 Hall avenue, are entertaining Miss Matilda B. Brandall, Norwich.

Miss Eleanor G. Starr, 121 Hempstead street, is spending a few days in New York.

Rev. Herbert B. Hutchins, South road, Poquonoc Bridge, is confined to his home as the result of injuries he suffered Saturday afternoon by being struck by an automobile, owned and driven by Collector of Internal Revenue W. Ellery Allyn, Waterford, on Poquonoc road, Groton. Rev. Mr. Hutchins sustained numerous lacerations and bruises.

Charged with cruelty to animals, John Colver, Poquonoc Bridge, was arraigned in the Groton town court this morning and drew a fine of $10 and costs. Judge Cornelius C. Costello in imposing penalization stated that he would remit the fine, but that the payment of the costs would be mandatory. Even then Colver could not pay the required amount, $4.76, so he was given until next Monday to make payment to Prosecuting Attorney Warren B. Burrows. Colver was arrested last week by State Humane Agent Frederic H. Weyant, Norwich and District Agent John Sweezy, this city, upon complaint of neighbors. It was alleged that Colver had allowed two horses to roam at large four days without providing the animals with proper food, nourishment and protection from the weather.

Frank McCabe, John McLaughlin, and James McNeil, strangers in the city, were taken into custody this evening by Patrolmen Braxton Hill and Michael Dorsey charged with intoxication and begging. They were locked up and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. McCabe claims to be an agent for Irving Berlin, the noted song-writer and who recently eloped with Ellin Mackay, New York heiress, claiming to promote the sales of Berlin's songs by singing them in public. McCabe gave a demonstration of his vocal ability after he was placed in a cell and he does possess a voice which would be more adaptable to one of culture and refinement instead of using it to solicit alms while under the influence of liquor.

Frank Blinderman, employed by the Go-Gas company, Pequot avenue, complained to the police this afternoon that crooks had broken the lock on the entrance to the station, besides smashing the lock on one of the gas supply tanks. Blinderman could not assert whether any gas had been stolen or whether anything of value had been removed from the station.

NEW LONDON NEEDS NO PATROL WAGON SAYS MAYOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 11—The city council this evening was one of much discussion, the subjects covering a wide range of topics. On motion of Councilor Scott the city manager was authorized to secure bids for new apparatus for the Pequot Hose company. The manager will do that. Councilor May suggested that the city provide a new police patrol for the city, saying that he heard the present vehicle coming along Montauk avenue apparently on one cylinder and making a speed of about two miles an hour. The motion did not receive favorable consideration by the councilors associated and it got no farther than a suggestion. City Manager Holt expressed the opinion that there was no use for the patrol except for trucking purposes and that the speed car of the department answered all purposes. Council May declared that all other cities had patrol wagons and taht New London should have one. Mayor Fox pointed out that New London was ahead of other cities and had done away with its police patrol. Councilor Whitty suggested that the city manager might go into the whole sale purchase of autos if the city felt that that could be attempted. The May motion was then abandoned.

The council authorized the city manager to enter into an agreement with Pasquale Gilotti for land on Church street at a cost of $500 for the widening of that street. The city is to move a building back somewhat and make changes in in it.

Councilor Streeter was not favorably disposed toward the project, but he did not oppose it and it was adopted.

Councilor Scott reported that the committee on public safety had considered the contract with the Connecticut Power company for lighting the city and that it had come to the conviction that certain changes were necessary in the contract. He called a meeting of the committee to follow the council meeting when the matter was to be still farther considered.

Councilor May asked that the extension of Green street should be attempted without delay. He pointed out its necessity and said that he moved for the extension of Washington street to Howard some time ago, but the matter was not proceeded with and that since a building had been erected on land over which the proposed extension should go, he said that the longer the extension of Green street was deferred the more costly would be the undertaking. "That work has to be done sooner or later," he said, so the council should be thinking about it and "thinking hard." Mayor Fox represented that the matter was now in the committee of which Councilor May was a member and that it should be reported from that committee.

Councilor Streeter called attention to the growing need of sewers and in reference to the fact that sewers were to be asked for in the Pequot section, the vicinity of the Connecticut college and elsewhere. He advised caution in proceeding with the sewer asked for in the second of Broad street where Sidney Sulman is to erect garages. He asked that Mr. Sulman should be invited to lay his whole plan before the council that the members might know just what he was contemplating doing. He said that it might be that the sewer would be extended along land that would not develop and that the cost of the sewer might not be paid and that then the city might lien the property to collect its cost of the sewer and not get what the sewer would cost. He asked that a meeting of citizens should be called to listen to what the plans and purposes were. Mayor Fox said the charter gives the council authority to lay sewers for the public convenience and when necessity exists for them. He believed this was that sort of case. Mr. Streeter replied that if the property along which sewers are laid has no value that the city is laying out a lot of money needlessly. Mr. Streeter said his purpose was to protect the citizens for too hasty action in the matter of laying sewers. Mayor Fox said the councilor had advocated the laying of the sewer to benefit nearby property. Councilor May declared himself in favor of the plan and said the sewer would bring a lot of taxable property in to the city's tax list. Mayor Fox declared it to be his opinion that if the sewer was laid the city would have more taxable property.

Councilor Scott then moved for the purchase by the city manager of an automobile for the Chief Engineer of fire department and his assistant. The motion was adopted.

Lyceum Theatre, New London.

Helen Menken will be seen in "The Makropulos Secret" at the Lyceum theatre, New London, Friday and Saturday with Saturday matinee. This good news comes from Charles Hopkins, who, in association with Herman Gantvoort, is presenting the well known star in the new comedy by Karel Capek, remembered as the author of "R. U. R." and the co-author with his brother of "The World We Live In." The adaptation for the American stage has been made by Randal G. Burrell.

The fascinating drama of a woman that lived three hundred years won tremendous success both in Prague and in Budapest and, with the central character played by Helen Menken, it will undoubtedly be one of the most significant productions of the present season in the theatre. The author has so woven his fantasy into the actualities of human experience and chics that it becomes a matter of vitality for the mind as well as for the imagination. What would you do if you had the secret of living three hundred years? Would you use it or——?

Miss Menken heads a distinguished cast including Ullrich Haupt, Donald Duff, Lester Vail, Harry Davenport, William B. Mack, Joanna Roos, Fritz Williams, George Spelvin, Erin O'-Brien Moore, Grace Halsey Mills and Eric Johns.

Broadway Theatre.

Positively the most novel and greatest entertainment ever offered on a local stage, opens a limited engagement at the Broadway theatre Thursday.

Credit should fall where due and Norwich no doubt will turn out for this great celebration, for it is that, in full strength and the writer feels sure that there will be a premium on seats for the three days and that the management will receive full credit and benefit for his endeavors.

Just read what the Hartford Daily Courant has to say in the issue of Monday, Jan. 11, 1926:

(Special to The Courant.)

Plainfield, Jan. 10.

The Broadway theatre of Norwich, an independent concern, will be the first vaudeville house to profit by the appearance of "Uncle Joe" Shippee, New England champion old time fiddler. A. B. Davidson, manager of the Broadway, motored to Plainfield this afternoon and made arrangements with Mr. Shippee to appear next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at two performances daily, at the figure of $175 and all expenses. When asked why he had accepted this offer and turned down one made yesterday by B. F. Keith, for $400 a week for his appearance in the Hippodrome, New York, "Uncle Joe" replied, "I want a little stage practice near home before I go to them big cities." Mr. Shippee will play for an old-fashioned dance at the Plainfield Community house next Wednesday night, where it is understood Captain Jack Mullen of East Providence, who appeared this week in Albee's theatre, Providence, in connection with the contest, will be present and act as prompter. Mr. Shippee received over two hundred letters of congratulation in today's mail.

Breed Theatre.

Imagine! The Merry Widow, directed by Erich von Stroheim, with Mae Murray in the title role and John Gilbert opposite her as Prince Danilo.

Never before has such a perfect combination of story, director and cast been assembled for the screen. And behind them have been the resources of the largest studio and producing organization in the world.

There has been only one aim in the making of The Merry Widow, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, now at the Breed theatre, and that was to give the public the most fascinating screen entertainment in motion picture, and to say that the aim has been achieved does not begin to describe it.

Von Stroheim, with his subtle touches, his cleverness, his supreme finesse, his intimate knowledge of the European setting; Mae Murray, beautiful, captivating, the very spirit of romance and gayety; John Gilbert, handsome, dashing, personable, every inch a prince; Roy D'Arcy, as new von Stroheim "find," a fascinating, villainous figure as the crown prince, who proves a perfect foil for Danilo; Tully Marshall, George Fawcett, Josephine Crowell and Dale Fuller, all sterling actors, contribute to the picture that threatens to smash all records for entertainment value.

Erich von Stroheim adapted and wrote the scenario of The Merry Widow in collaboration with Benjamin Glazer, from the famous stage play by Victor Leon, Leo Stein and Franz Lehar, presented by Henry W. Savage.

Palace Theatre

She's My Sweetheart so starts the old Annie Rooney song and she is indeed everybody's sweetheart as she is portrayed by Mary Pickford in Little Annie Rooney. We have seen many pictures that are filled with pathos and as many more that depend on comedy for the entertainment value but no artist on the screen other then our Mary could bring pathos and comedy into play as this little lady, who it seems will never grow old, does in Little Annie Rooney. First as a Tom Boy of the East Side who the gang is warring on, then as dainty a little miss you could meet in a days walk are the roles that Mary plays. Outside of Mary's role, the next best in the picture is that played by a little freckled faced celtic, Spec O'Donnel as Able whose family take Mary in when her father, a gallant police officer of the East Side, is shot in a gang war. When Able tells Mary they have something special for her for dinner, namely ham, and then when Able is caught by his orthodox father sneaking a bit it is one of the scenes in the picture that brings a laugh from the audience that fairly make the rafters ring. It's truly a family picture and every family will be better by seeing it. It will be shown two days more and if you are unfortunate to miss it you are going to miss one of those gems of the screen that comes only once in a blue moon.

The vaudeville bill is one the management feels well proud of. The Seven Anderson girls, all sisters off the stage as well as one, offer one of those classical gems with a sprinkling of jazz that just makes you wonder how they ever got into a popular priced house. Good dancing with an assortment of vocal and instrumental numbers well routined, it's nothing short of a beautiful offering. De Witt and Gunther who might be billed as the long and short of it offer a comedy surprise that is just overflowing with laughs. Vail and Crane, a pair of boys offering harmony numbers, offered a routine of songs that kept the audience calling for more. The yoddling by one of the team is exceptionally good and the dramatic number offered by his partner is equally as good. The opening act, The Eric Phillips trio is on the same par as the Three Victors and The Four Casting Aces that recently played this theatre and that is saying enough to satisfy the most critical fan. It's a good all around bill and one that's worth going twice to see. The picture is shown at 2:35, 7:35 and 9:25.

WHEN YOU WANT to put your business before the public, there is no medium better than through The Bulletin.

New Discovery Banishes Sleeplessness, Quiets Nerves and Stops Headache

The most wearing-out process which could afflict a person is that which is caused by lack of sleep. Fitful, insufficient slumber tears the nervous system to pieces and causes much of the weakness, irritability and susceptibility to disease which is often blamed on other causes.

Lack of sleep ages one, destroys beauty and certainly shortens your life. And yet it is so easy to have the deep refreshing slumber of childhood. A sleep that will make you feel like a new person and add five years to your life—a slumber that will banish the "blues" and give you the strong, healthy nerves which mean a sunshiny, cheerful outlook on life. And you can get all these benefits from a new, harmless, easy-to-take preparation called Neura.

Neura contains no opiates or habit-forming drugs. The results from the use of Neura have been so remarkable, however, that it is now dispensed by Lee & Osgood and druggists everywhere with a guarantee to return the small cost if you are not amazed and delighted with the results from the use of the very first package. Get a good night's sleep tonight, by taking Neura today.

POETRY

Starlight To A Blind Poet

I have known the stars of half the world—
Watched them rise on far and foreign seas,
Traced the Northern Wain, the Southern Cross;
And often I beheld the Pleiades
Flashing in the tropic dusk, through the mango-trees.

Over shores that rim the China Sea,
Over almond gardens of Japan,
I have seen the glory of the stars,
Older than the oldest race of man—
With their names like music—Altair—Aldebaran.

I have known the stars of half the world—
Yet in your skies are planets dark to me:
Shall we not share our visions for an hour?
Look with my eyes upon the starlit sea—
Behold Blue Vega burning and sad Alcyone!

And with the brightness of your inner eye,
With all the wonder of your dreamer's sight,
Teach me to know the stars that burn for you—
The constellations wheeling through your night—
The music and the dreams that bring you light.

—Agnes Kendrick Gray.

To Hamlet, A Collie

Light is the rush of a collie's feet,
Swift-flung his challenge to stranger tread,
Alert the lift of his delicate ear,
Golden plume and proud-poised head—
And all of these lovely things are dead.

I remember a day when grief
Called my name, a stern command,
And tender voices said wise, brave things.
But they could not comfort nor understand.
Then a cold nose gently touched my hand.

Only a collie, how could he know
A grief too deep for aching tears?
His wistful amber eyes abrim
With dumb desire whose yearning hears
Faint tones to frail for human ears.

The memory of an eager love,
A lonely heart that longed to give.
A trust unfailing, a fine keen faith
For our blunted striving too sensitive—
And all of these lovely things shall live.

—Elizabeth Whittemore Keith in Boston Transcript.

At the exposition of decorative arts in Paris a good deal of attention has recently been stirred by the addition of a new and strange musical instrument, which the inventor has called the "Orpheus violin." The sound is a combination of violin, alto and cello, and music written for any of these instruments may be played on it. The peculiarly rich timbre is obtained by fifty-eight sonorous sound emitters, each composed of a copper blade beating on the end of a noselike tube, fed by an air reservoir under a thirty centimeter pressure produced by electrical blowing.

RESOLUTIONS

At the regular meeting of the directors of The Merchants National Bank, held January 11th, 1926, the following resolutions on the death of Joseph Hall were adopted:

The announcement of the death of Mr. Joseph Hall is received by the directors of this bank with profound sorrow and regret. We feel that we have lost a valued counselor, a man of sound judgment, and one who merited well of the respect and esteem of his fellow citizens, and who held a high place in the affairs of business throughout the community.

Mr. Hall had been a director of this bank for seventeen years, having been elected in January, 1909, and served the bank faithfully in this capacity, being senior member of the Board at the time of his death.

Aside from our business relations, we shall sorely miss his genial companionship, and for many years will cherish the memory of his long association with us.

It was voted: That this resolution be spread on the records of the bank, and that a copy be sent to his surviving family.

It was also voted: That the officers and directors attend the funeral in a body.

Attest
H. F. POWERS,
Secretary.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our relatives, friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy shown us during our recent bereavement and for the many beautiful floral tributes.

BREAK IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Extreme nervousness characterized the trading in today's stock market which underwent a sharp reaction on selling precipitated by professional speculators for the decline. Closing quotation disclosed a long list of net declines ranging from 1 to 8 points, interspersed with a much smaller number of corresponding gains. Total sales ran close to two and one quarter million shares.

The reaction was influenced to a large degree by the circulation of rumors, later proved to be unfounded, that W. C. Durant, automobile magnate, who is reported to have amassed millions in paper profits on the long side of the market in the last 18 months, had died as a result of injuries received in a train wreck in Florida yesterday. United States Cast Iron Pipe, in which Mr. Durant is known to have acquired a large interest, broke 15 points to 193 and then rallied to 198. Speculative uneasiness over the Mexican situation, the heavy calling of loans to correct the large deficit shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement and commission house advices suggesting a lightening of long accounts also were factors in the day's selling.

The unexpectedly large increase in the December unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, made public after the close Saturday, had brought in a fairly large volume of work and buying orders, the execution of which imparted a firm opening to the market. Heavy selling of the motors set in around mid-day followed by a drive against some of the high priced industrial specialties. The low prices of the day were generally reviewed around the end of the fourth hour, moderate rallies taking place in most sections of the list just before the close.

Commodity markets were mostly lower. Wheat dropped 1 to 2 cents a bushel on scattered selling due to reports of poor export business. Cotton receipts declined 17 points on Wall street selling after a relatively firm opening. Coffee options were bid up 5 to 15 points on reports of a smaller Santos crop and firmer Brazilian exchange. Raw sugar was unchanged.

Special strength developed in some of the Eastern coplers despite pessimistic reports emanating from the center of miners and operators. Lackawanna was bid up six points to 132, the highest price since the declaration of a 10a per cent. stock dividend in 1923, on reports of an early distribution of its Glen Alden Coal company holdings. Reading showed a net gain of 1 3-4 at 89 1-4 and Lehigh Valley closed 1 3-4 higher at 84 3-4.

Standard industrials were reactionary. United States Steel closed 1 3-4 lower at 134 1-2 after fluctuating between 136 5-8 and 133 1-4. American Can closed with a net loss of over six points at 245 3-4 and American Ice, American Smelting, Gulf States Steel, Nu-Pan-American issues, Punta Alegre sugar gears Roebuck, Sloss Sheffield steel, United Drug, United States Realty, Woolworth and Youngstown Sheet and Tube all showed net recessions ranging from 2 to 5 points.

Motors were under pressure during most of the session. Hudson collapsed from 119 1-2 to 111 1-2 and then rallied to 114 3-8 for a net loss of 4 3-8. Mack Trucks dropped 4 1-4 to 148 1-2 and General Motors closed 2 3-8 points lower at 120 1-2.

There were a few independent strong spots scattered throughout the list. American Brake Shoe and Foundry jumped five points to a new high price at 157 and Schulte Stores reached a new top at 137 5-8. Radio Corporation was bought in large blocks, closing 3 1-2 points higher at 43 1-4.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent. and advanced to 4 1-2 on the heavy calling of loans by out of town banks. Time money was slightly easier, some choice maturities being reported available as low as 4 3-4 per cent. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges held firm in quiet trading. Demand sterling was only slightly higher around 4.85, and French francs relied practically unchanged around 3.82 1-2 cents.

BAD BREATH

Dr Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

DISPLAYED NORSE TAPESTRIES IN LECTURE BEFORE ART ASSOCIATION

Norse Pictorial Weaving was the subject of an intensely interesting and highly instructive lecture given Monday evening at the monthly meeting of the Norwich Art Association at Slater Hall by Mrs. Oskar W. Bergh of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Bergh's lecture followed a brief business meeting over which Mrs. Edwin E. Higgins presided. The usual reports were heard and accepted. Miss Alif Stevens and Miss Audrey Gernon were appointed to serve on the committee for the preservation of trees in Norwich and of which committee Miss Nancy Lucas is the chairman. Miss Eunice Gulliver made a report for the docent committee, stating in her report that this year promises to be a very successful one for the committee's activities.

Mrs. Oskar W. Bergh of Brooklyn, N. Y., an authority on old Norse pictorial weaving and tapestries, was introduced as the speaker of the evening. Mrs. Bergh, who is a very interesting speaker, said that in ancient days the people did not know how to paint so they wove pictures of historical events they wished to preserve.

These weavings took the place of doors in the houses and consequently they had to look as well on one side of the tapestry as on the other. Both sides of the tapestries were the same, as there was no back or front side to the weavings. Norway, Mrs. Bergh said, is the oldest tapestry producing country in Europe. In Viking ships which have been dug out of the sand and which dated as far back as the fourth century examples of tapestry work were found.

Mrs. Bergh said that when she came to this country in 1903 she stated at a prominent art gathering that Norway was the oldest tapestry producing country in Europe. Her assertion was questioned and in order to back up her statements she went back to Norway to secure examples of old time tapestry weaving. After considerable trouble she secured one large tapestry from Frieda Hanson and later, on permission of King Oscar of Norway, she secured copies of two other valuable and ancient tapestries. These were brought to this country and exhibited. Mrs. Bergh had these three tapestries, together with a fourth tapestry, her own handiwork, on exhibition during her lecture to the members of the art association.

The great similarity of the stitches used in the old Norse tapestries and in ancient Chinese tapestries was stressed by Mrs. Bergh, this fact going to show that Norse tapestries dated back many hundreds of years ago. This art in Norway lay dormant after the 6th century and consequently dropped from sight to a large extent.

It was in 1883 that Frieda Hanson decided to make a study of old tapestry work. She unraveled a small section of a tapestry and then tried to replace it. After ten years' incessant study she had mastered all the old stitches. She heard of a loom reputed to be 600 years old and bought it. She was a born artist and made all her own drawings. Madame Hanson decided that she must have the old vegetable dyes in order to secure the delicate shadings characteristic of the old weavings.

In 1900 Madame Hanson sent two tapestries to the Paris expositions and it was said that she was the foremost tapestry weaver in the world at that time. Her handiwork has also been exhibited at other expositions.

The wonderful transparency of the tapestries was illustrated by Mrs. Bergh through the aid of an electric light in the rear of the larger of the weavings shown. When the lights in the hall were turned out the wonderful brilliancy and beauty of the tapestry were plainly apparent. At the close of her lecture Mrs. Bergh answered a number of questions regarding the process in making weavings, the yarn used and the method of securing the proper color shadings.

UNITED PALESTINE APPEAL OPENS WITH $3,000 RAISED

With a banquet that was attended by about 250, filling all the available space in Odd Fellows hall, the campaign in the United Palestine appeal was successfully opened here Sunday night and after a stirring address by Abraham Goldberg of New York, a member of the Zionist administrative committee, the cash and pledged contributions amounted to $3,000. Of this sum, $1,000 was in cash and $2,000 in pledges for this year.

An excellent chicken supper was served at 7 o'clock by the Norwich Chapter of Hadassah, with Mrs. Michael Levine as general chairman, and girls of the Young Judaeans as waitresses.

Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg, local chairman presided, and introduced the speaker who gave a thrilling recital of what he had seen of the progress made in building Palestine as the Hebrew homeland.

The united Palestine appeal, he said, was for a fund that would be used for buying land in Palestine, for settlement purposes, for electrification, for the medical unit and for the university established at Mt. Scopus.

Those who have been foremost in the restoration of Palestine are finding at the present time one of their greatest sources of satisfaction in the fact that Palestine is the only peaceful country in that part of the world. So significant is that that it has been favorably commented upon by the League of Nations which has observed the Palestine movement bringing thrift, industry and peace. Palestine has become the haven of refuge for the Jews from Europe, who have been going in at the rate of 4,000 a month, or about 50,000 yearly. American money is what will make possible a great expansion in the programme for receiving more refugees. If enough money is provided by the Jews of America, the programme could be expanded to receive 100,000 annually in Palestine, thus absorbing completely the numbers that used to come to America before the application of restrictive emigration. At that rate the Jews would be the dominant population in Palestine in ten years.

Speaking of what had been accomplished, Mr. Goldberg said that in the past year 500 small industrial plants had been established and electric plants had been built in Jaffa, Tiberius and Haifa. Agriculture and fruit culture are attaining great importance. Last year over a million boxes of oranges were shipped and a million dollar investment has just been made in a plant for manufacturing olive oil and soap. Two weeks ago a two million dollar investment was made for a cement factory.

The modern town of Tel-a-viv has been built, growing 5,000 population five years ago to over 40,000 at the present time. A brick factory has just been started there.

A revival of the Hebrew language is being accomplished, both through school and college education and through the publication of periodicals. A well balanced life of all-around development is being fostered, and it can be said with truth that Palestine as a Jewish homeland has passed from the experimental stage to a condition of reality. The ultimate triumph of the effort is assured.

Fined in Montville Court.

Two motor law violators were fined in the Montville town court before Justice Oscar Church Friday night. Fred Herman of West Main street, Norwich, was fined $25 and costs on a charge of reckless driving. William C. Stewart was fined $10 and costs on a charge of speeding. Both were arrested by State Policeman Joseph Bobnick at Montville.

Under a new responsibility law Herman will be required to post a $10,000 bond before he is again given a license to drive a motor car.

Tuberculosis Commission Met

The state tuberculosis commission met on Monday at Uncas-on-Thames, holding a business meeting in the morning and having dinner with Dr. Hugh B. Campbell. Routine business was transacted, the plans for the new buildings were looked over, and an inspection tour of the grounds and buildings made after dinner.

The members of the commission are Wallace S. Allis of this city, Arthur R. Kimball, Waterbury; Stephen J. Maher, New Haven; and George L. Allen, Middletown.

New Britain Dental Hygienist

Miss Bessie Rubin has left to resume her duties as dental hygienist in the public school of New Britain, after spending the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rubin of Grant court.

FLETCHER POST AUXILIARY HEARS ANNUAL REPORTS

The Woman's auxiliary to Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, met Friday evening at the home of Mrs. William L. Bogue, newly elected president. The meeting was in charge of the old officers of the auxiliary, President Mrs. Henry Liepold, in the chair.

Annual reports were submitted, the secretary's report showing a substantial gain in membership during the past year; that of the treasurer showing the finances to be in excellent condition; while the report of the welfare committee showed much activity for the year, this report covering visits made to the various hospitals, the annual donations and extra gifts to disabled veterans in local institutions and the recent entertainment provided for the patients at Uncas-on-Thames.

Reports were also given concerning the recently joint installation of state officers of the American Legion and auxiliary, held at New Britain.

The auxiliary received an invitation from Fletcher post, to meet with the post next Friday evening, for a joint installation of officers. State Commander Jackson, of the American Legion, will install the officers of the post and it is possible that some state officer, or a past president of the auxiliary, will install the new auxiliary officers.

The new president, Mrs. Bogue, announced her committees as follows; Welfare, Mrs. Henry Liepold, chairman; entertainment, Mrs. Frank Kimball, chairman; publicity, Mrs. John B. Qat, chairman. Three new applications for membership were received and acted upon.

Following the business session the members enjoyed their annual Christmas party. A beautifully decorated tree had been arranged by the hostess and each member receiving a gift from the tree. The gifts had been interchanged and as the presents were opened no little amusement was afforded.

Assisted by other members of the auxiliary the hostess served refreshments of coffee, doughnuts, cake and candy, at the close of the meeting.

Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 Robert D. LaPre pleasantly entertained several of his little friends at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Delphis S. LaPre of 65 Asylum street in honor of his fourth birthday. Various games were played. Teddy Bruckner winning the prize on the jelly bean hunt while Dorothy Moone captured the prize in the donkey game. Arthur Sylvia pleasingly recited Jack and Jill, while Teddy Bruckner delightfully rendered two solo numbers entitled, Pal of My Cradle Days and When You and I Were Seventeen. After awarding the prizes, all marched to the artistically decorated dining room in the center of which was a huge dome from which radiated gay festoons and streamers. The color scheme used was pink and white. Occupying a prominent place on the table was a mammoth birthday cake which proved to be the feature attraction. For favors each received a fancy surprise package and gayly colored box of assorted candy. Refreshments consisting of cocoa, sandwiches, dainty wafers, assorted cake and candy were served by Mrs. LaPre assisted by the Misses Blanche LaPre and Julia Holdridge. Little Robert was the recipient of many lovely and useful gifts. All joined in wishing the charming little host many happy returns of the day. Those present included Florence Belt, Dorothy Moore, Peggy Bruckner, May Kingsley, Arthur Sylvia, Jason Kingsbury and Wesley Kingsley, Robert and Donald Paul La Pre.

Other cities and towns reporting ten or more cases were: Fairfield, 25; Stratford, 23; Westport, 11; Manchester, 14; Wethersfield, 21; Windsor, 12; Meriden, 10; Milford, 32 New Haven, 29; Waterbury, 10; Colchester, 15, Norwich, 19.

Chickenpox is also prevalent, 113 new cases being reported to the department last week. Other communicable diseases in the state remained at practically the same totals as the previous week.

Franklin Hen Overloaded With Eggs

Sunday, a Franklin poultry man observed one of his fine R. I. Red hens not feeling well. On examination, he thought she had broken an egg inside her so killed her. On dressing the hen he found his supposition correct and there were also eight eggs with shells on and four large yolks which would have been normal eggs in a short time. All these were causing great discomfort to the hen.

CALL FOR MEETING OF THE MINERS' SCALE COMMITTEE

Members Have Been Summoned to Assemble at Hazleton, Pa., Thursday Afternoon—Policy of the Mine Workers Will Be Considered—New York Conference Ended Yesterday With the Declaration by Both Sides That the Next Step Must Come From the "Outside"—Gloom Spread Over the Anthracite Field, as 158,000 Men and Boys Are Deprived of Work.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—Fruitless discussion for many days on ways to draft a new wage contract brought an end to the anthracite conference today and indicated the continuation of the strike of 158,000 men and boys for an indefinite period.

At present there appears to be no way out unless the federal government steps in and tries its hand at mediation. Outwardly there has not been the slightest indication that Washington is ready to step in.

The negotiations that came to an abrupt end today were initiated by Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, through the mayors and burgesses of the anthracite regions. Tomorrow the governor is expected to lay before the Pennsylvania legislature in extraordinary session his views on the strike situation as it now exists. Whether the Pennsylvania executive has any definite plan to bring the miners and operators together again was not known here tonight.

The miners and operators left for their homes and no move will be made by either side to end the industrial struggle that is now in its fifth month. The next step, both sides indicated must come from the "outside."

The miners before separating issued a call for a meeting of the anthracite scale committee at Hazleton Thursday afternoon. A report of the sub-committee that has been negotiating, with the conduting of the strikes and the policy of the United Mine Workers, will be considered.

The disruption of the conference, which had been imminent for a week, came rather unexpectedly. There appeared to be a better feeling despite the fact that the operators yesterday indicated that they had said their last word when they presented a new plan as the "utmost concession" they could make.

When the conferees met today Chairman Alvan Markle, who has no vote in the conference, submitted some communications giving suggestions for ending the strike. Letters and telegrams of this character have been streaming into the conference for days.

It was soon evident that neither side had anything further to present. After some desultory remarks, Jesse B. Warriner, one of the operators' representatives referred to the proceedings of last week when the miners were said to have told the operators they lacked courage to end the negotiations. This led to some sharp remarks.

Mr. Warriner said the operators had the courage to adjourn the conference sine die and challenged any of the international officers of the union to second the motion. He said he preferred one of these officers to second the motion because it was they who called the strike. This reference to calling the strike was resented by the miners.

Finally George Hadesty, of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron company, the largest producing company in the anthracite fields, made the motion to adjourn without delay. The miners refused to second it, stating later to newspaper men that they were present to make a contract, and the motion was seconded by Thomas Thomas, of the Lehigh Valley Coal company. The motion was put and was unanimously adopted. Thus came to an end negotiations that were started in Atlantic City on July 9, broken off on August 4, and resumed in New York on December 29.

The announcement of the break up was left to the press representatives of the operators to make. It came in a dramatic way. A large number of newspapermen who had courteously been given headquarters in the Union League club, where the meetings were held, were waiting for word from the conference room when the Rev. J. J. Curran, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., appeared and announced that he was submitting a new plan to the miners and operators. As he was writing a note to the congress requesting an audience, the operators' representative suddenly appeared and simply said:

"The conference has adjourned for the day."

Instantly the news was flashed in all directions and Father Curran threw up his hands and exclaimed, "This is terrible."

John J. Lewis then appeared and with his stenographer at his side dictated a statement to the newspaper men placing the responsibility for the failure of the conference to agree and for the continuance of the strike on the operators. Then the operators issued a statement in which all the blame for failure to settle was heaped upon the shoulders of the miners' leader, the employers stating that his position was one of "rule or ruin," and that he wanted his "own way or nothing."

The operators declared Mr. Lewis in conference had said that the producing companies might raise the price of anthracite five dollars a ton as long as he got what he wanted.

This statement was denied by Thomas Kennedy, international secretary of the miners, in behalf of Mr. Lewis.

It was understood tonight that both miners and operators, if summoned to Washington, would respond. In fact Major W. W. Inglis, head of the operators' group, said his committee would be glad to respond at any time to any invitation of the president.

The action of the grievance committee of the Pennsylvania Coal company at Pittston, Pa., today in favoring the calling out of maintenance men because of the break in negotiations, probably will be disapproved by the miners' scale committee. It was pointed out by one of the leaders that the miners and operators have an agreement that maintenance men remain at work during the period of suspension. Maintenance men, it was stated, would be called out only where the agreement is violated and then only from the mines of the company breaking the compact. Maintenance men are contributing one day's pay out of their semi-monthly pay to the relief of needy miners.

The statement of President Lewis today was supplemented tonight by a more detailed explanation of the miners' position. In this statement Mr Lewis stated that the settlement of the strike is being resisted by a very small minority of the anthracite producing companies.

Yearly Production of Coal

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—The yearly production of anthracite during the past 10 years, given by the federal bureau of mines, was as follows:

1925—55,000,000 (estimated).
1924—78,500,000.
1923—83,338,000.
1922—48,824,000 (five months strike).
1921—80,780,000.
1920—79,998,000.
1919—78,653,000.
1918—88,238,000 (war year.)
1917—90,939,000 (war year).
1916—78,195,800.
1915—29,460,800.

GLOOM SPREAD OVER THE ANTHRACITE FIELD

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 12—(AP)—Gloom spread over the anthracite field today with the announcement from New York that the representatives of the miners and operators had broken off their negotiations looking toward the termination of the hard coal strike which has kept 158,000 men and boys in idleness since September 1.

Relief organizations, which have established soup kitchens at a number of points, and charitable bodies, which have aided the families of the strikers in various ways, made immediate preparations for extending their work in the belief that the strike may continue until spring.

Among the rank and file of the miners the hope was expressed that either President Coolidge or Governor Pinchot would find a way to send the men back to work.

A movement to completely tie up the mines by the removal of the maintenance forces was launched at Pittston today. Resolutions urging that all maintenance men be called out were adopted by the grievance committee of District No. 1, United Mine Workers, previously had taken similar action.

There are approximately 10,000 maintenance men in the entire field, including pump runners, firemen, hoisting engineers, watchmen and others, whose presence is necessary for the protection of coal company property, chiefly to guard against the flooding of the mines. Under an agreement reached before the suspension began these men were permitted by the union to continue at work should the operators attempt to reopen the mines prior to the signing of a new wage scale local union leaders said it was almost certain the maintenance men would be called out.

HARTFORD, Jan. 12—(AP)—Leonard H. Healey, deputy state commissioner of agriculture, was re-elected president of the Patrons' Mutual Fire Insurance company, at the thirty-ninth annual meeting held today at the Hotel Garde, in connection with the annual session of the Connecticut State grange. Other officers elected were: Vice president, J. Arthur Sherwood, Long Hills; secretary, H. C. Dunham, Middletown; treasurer, W. H Carrier, Glastonbury.

The report of Secretary Dunham showed that the company is carrying approximately $1,100,000 in risks insured by 500 members of the grange. Last year's fire loss was but slightly over $400, it was reported.

The following county directors and directors-at-large were elected:

Treat, Bridgewater, and C. T Davis, Middletown.

WILL OPPOSE COALITION GOVERNMENT IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Jan. 12—(AP)—The parliamentary group of the socialist party, which is the strongest individual delegation in the Reichstag, definitely declined tonight to join the big coalition which President Von Hindenburg has been trying to organize since the resignation of the Luther cabinet in December.

The president yesterday announced that he would give the party leaders until Thursday to consider among themselves the possibility of forming a coalition government with a wide political base in the Reichstag. If agreement was not reached in that time, he himself would choose a man to form a moderate leaders the proposal to take government.

REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF ASSESSORS IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Jan. 12—(AP)—Mayor Nichols will insist that city employes earn their pay. He made this plain today when he ordered six second assistant assessors dropped from the municipal payroll on the grounds that they were not giving the city adequate service for the $1,300 salary which each received.

Mayor Nichols' direction to the principal assessors was that all members of the staff who were not reporting regularly at the office for duty should be dismissed. Six of the 14 assistants were the ones selected to go.

Discord in France On Financial Policy

Radical Group of Deputies Will Fight Stamp Tax to All Business Transactions.

PARIS, Jan. 12—(AP)—The war between the government and the principal group of its majority in the chamber of deputies broke out again today even before the chamber organized for its new session. The radical group, whose representatives in the cabinet approved M. Doumer's financial measures just before New Year's, repudiated them this morning and declared they would support the substitute measures unless the minister of finance abandoned his bill applying a stamp tax to all business transactions.

The finance committee, which is dominated by the radicals and socialists, rallied to this declaration of hostilities by deciding to report in favor of maintaining the provisions of the Locheur bill whereby the three billion francs new taxes levied in the measures adopted just before M. Loucheur resigned were to be held strictly as a guarantee for the retirement of the new banknotes issued at that time. M. Doumer had proposed that this revenue be applied to the regular budget.

Besides taking issue with the government on these important features of its financial bills, the finance committee rejected M. Doumer's idea of balancing the budget and renovating finances at the same time. The committee voted to defer action on the bill for a sinking fund until the budget is out of the way. The coalition which has furnished the government majority since June, 1924, is thus squarely lined up against its own government.

The significance of the attitude of the radicals and socialists was emphasized by the ovation given M. Herriot when he was declared re-elected president of the chamber this afternoon. The maneuvre as commented on in the chamber lobbies appears to be to tire Premier Briand out by opposition on the details of the important measures endorsed by the cabinet and oblige him to resign and make way for the return of M. Herriot.

This plan is rendered more difficult by the refusal of the socialists to go into a coalition government, but it is understood that M. Herriot has the promise of the socialist leaders to give him the same support in the chamber as during his first ministry.

M. Doumer, it is expected, will refuse to be overthrown by the finance committee of the chamber, and with the backing of M. Briand, will insist that the issue be fought on the floor of the house. The socialists, who at an early hour this morning, voted against participation in the government, felt the first reaction from their decision this afternoon when one of their vice presidents of the chamber, M. Mistral, mayor of Grenoble, was defeated for reelection.

RUTHLESS CAMPAIGN IN MEXICO AGAINST BANDITS

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12—(AP)—Federal troops today continued a ruthless campaign of extermination against the bandits who held up the Guadalajara-Mexico City passenger train on Saturday night and murdered an estimated total of 50 persons, including passengers, train crew and train guards. Death is being dealt without mercy, to the bandits and their accomplices alike.

The war department issued a laconic communique today saying that unknown numbers of the bandit gang have been killed in a fight and eight prisoners executed, but behind this, according to dispatches from other sources, there is a story of swift and uncompromising retribution by the federal soldiers.

A detachment of troopers belonging to the fiftieth cavalry trailed the main group, including about 20 bandits, in a northwesterly direction from Os Reyes, in Michoacan into the state of Jalisco. The bandits were surrounded at a ranch called Quitupan. There the cornered outlaws fought desperately and most of them died fighting. Eight were taken prisoners, are said to have confessed participation in the robbery and were summarily executed. Loot from the train was found on every one of the bodies.

Federal troops are still pursuing straggling groups of the marauders and appear to be executing all who are shown to have been accomplices in the robbery whether they participated actively or not. It is said the government is determined to give such a stern lesson that the outlaws will fear to attempt any repetition of the outrage.

ORDINATION CONDUCTED IN THE SIGN LANGUAGE

BOSTON, Jan. 12—(AP)—At a silent service conducted in the sign language of the deaf, Rev. James Stanley Slight today was ordained to the Episcopal priesthood in Trinity church, since June Mr. Slight has acted as minister of St. Andrew's silent mission, a congregation of deaf persons from New England parishes. To many in the church today, it was the hands of the interpreter, instead of the voice of the clergyman, which pronounced the words of the ordination service.

It was a service without music which nevertheless had a quality associated with a choral ritual. The stillness was only broken by the solemn and reverent voices of bishop and the clergy. A deaf "choir" in cassocks and surplices took part in the service and one hymn was given silently by an interpreter.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS TO DELVE INTO GILPATRIC CASE

HARTFORD, Jan. 12—(AP)—A decision to engage an eminent firm of public accountants from outside the state to carry on the investigations," of G. Harold Gilpatric's transactions as state treasurer, "without any possibility of any prejudice whatsoever in the matter," was reached by the governor's investigating committee at its initial meeting today in the executive chamber.

Former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb was elected chairman and Charles G. Morris, of Newtown, secretary of the committee, which was in session about an hour. Morgan B. Brainard, of this city is the third member. Another meeting will be held next Monday when steps looking to the appointment of the accountants will be taken. A statement of what transpired at the meeting was issued after its adjournment.

To Assure Public Supplies of Rubber

Appropriation of $10,000,000 Made by National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—American automobile manufacturers today approved a plan looking to assurance of a domestic-controlled supply of crude rubber.

The national automobile Chamber of Commerce, in session here, authorized appropriation of $10,000,000 to be expended in establishing additional sources of supply and approved the creation of a subsidiary organization to produce, purchase and deal in rubber.

Charles Clifton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, announced the following committee to take immediate action on the plan: John J. Raskob, vice president of General Motors corporation; C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors company; A. J. Brosseau, president of Mack Trucks, Incorporated; Roy. D. Chapin, chairman of Hudson Motor Car company; Alvan Macauley, president of the Packard Motor Car company; Arthur T. Waterfall, vice president of Dodge Bros., Inc., and A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation.

The plan provides that all automobile manufacturers will be permitted to take stock in the corporation on the basis of their production in 1925. Several of the largest producing companies immediately announced they would take their allotment of stock.

The action today, Alfred Reeves, general manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said, was the result of the abnormal price of rubber which ultimately is paid for by the American consumer, as 70 per cent. of the world's production is used in this country. Safeguarding the future supply of rubber to meet the normal increasing demand for motor transportation and prevention of excessive prices will result, Mr. Reeves said.

Following the director's meeting, representatives of the leading automobile manufacturers went into active session to reduce the plan to a definite form for immediate action.

Mr. Reeves said it was likely that some plantations in far corners of the world would be acquired.

Small producers of rubber, not held by the British monopoly, he said, could be reached and would sell their rubber if assured of a centralized shipping point where the material could be pooled.

Just where the plantations will be bought or started, Mr. Reeves was not able to say. He asserted that the future supply of rubber must be assured and that the plan probably would be the entering wedge that would aid in the final break up of the existing exorbitant prices and monopoly by foreign agencies.

MERGER OF OIL COMPANIES IN MID-CONTINENT FIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—The first step in a huge consolidation of oil companies operating in the mid-continent field was taken today when the Barnsdall corporation completed the acquisition of the Waite Phillips company. The transaction was engineered by the New York banking house of Blair and company, which recently purchased the Waite Phillips properties for more than $20,000,000 and will sponsor a $25,000,000 bond flotation for the Consolidated company tomorrow.

The enlarged corporation will have total assets of approximately $70,000,000 and will operate over 281,500 acres of land in 13 oil producing states. Negotiations are understood to be pending which may draw the Simms Petroleum company, the Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil company and other properties into the merger, eventually swelling its assets to around $200,000,000.

Matthew C. Brush, president of the American International corporation has been elected chairman of the Barnsdall corporation and E. B. Reeser, associated with the company since 1904, has been made president in charge of operations. The new banking interests will be represented in the management through the addition of Elisha Walker of Blair and company and E. R. Tinker, of the Chase Securities corporation, to the board of directors.

New financing announced for tomorrow consists of $25,000,000 15-year 6 per cent. debenture bonds which will be offered for public subscription at par. The debentures will constitute the only outstanding funded debt of the Barnsdall corporation and will bear detachable warrants entitling holders to purchase 20 shares of class "B" stock at $25 a share for five years. The shares were quoted on the New York stock exchange today around $29.

Additional working capital will be provided by an offering of 227,738 Class "A" shares to present stockholders in the ratio of about 25 per cent. of their holdings.

The Waite Phillips properties embrace a complete unit of producing, refining and marketing facilities in the mid-continent field.

INCOME TAX UNIT EXCEEDED POWER IN ADMINISTRATION

Finding of Senate Committee Reported to the Senate—Charges Commissioner Blair Exceeded the Authority Delegated in "Compromising Taxes" and "Bargaining" With Taxpayers—Also With Delegating Too Much Authority to Chiefs of Divisions in Handling of Tax Matters—Report Signed by Senator Couzens, Republican, and Two Democrats.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Administration of the income tax unit of the treasury was sharply assailed on a number of counts in the first report of the majority of the senate investigating committee submitted to the senate today by Chairman Couzens.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair was charged with a "consistent policy to exceed the authority delegated to compromise taxes," with "bargaining" with taxpayers, and with delegating too much authority to chiefs of divisions in the handling of tax matters.

Contending that the senate had shut it off from a complete examination of the subject, the majority said that such investigation as we were able to make did disclose the fact that many of the allowances being made are in direct violation of the law and that there is no sound basis for many of the refunds, credits and abatements now being made."

Discovery of depletion in the case of mines and oil wells, amortization of war facilities and refunds were the principal subjects dealt with in the report, which was signed by Senator Couzens and the two democrats on the committee, Senators King of Utah, Jones, of New Mexico.

Senators Watson of Indiana, and Ernst, of Kentucky, republicans, withheld their signatures, but have not filed a minority report.

With respect to discovery depletion, the majorny said the tax saved on this to the companies amounted to approximately $37,500,000 annually, with the big oil producing companies getting the major part instead of the wild catter or prospector, as was intended by congress. It was recommended that this section of the law either be repealed or amended to confine the allowance to the discovery of an oil or mineral deposit.

Improper allowances totalling $210,000,000, an amortization of war facilities, was charged in the report, which placed the total of such allowances for purposes of tax deduction up to April 30, 1925, at $568,934,813. Some of the major allowances noted were:

United States Steel Corporation, $55,063,312; Aluminum Company of America, in which Secretary Mellon is a stockholder and which is now under separate investigation by the senate judiciary committee, $15,589,614; Bethlehem Steel Company, $32,103,942; E. I. DuPont De Nemours Company, $15,369,123; Federal Shipbuilding Company, $10,849,786; Midvale Steel and Ordinance Company, $9,330,440; and the National Aniline Chemical Company, $9,912,740.

Placing the total of tax refunds from July 1, 1921, to April 30, 1925, at $459,090,825, the majority held that "except in cases involving a refund of $50,000 or more, all of the authority vested in the commissioner of internal revenue is exercised by the head of a division, upon whose action there is no check, unless the taxpayer is dissatisfied."

"This investigation disclosed the fact," the report continued "that the chiefs of the metals, coal and timber sections of the engineering division were exceptional capable men, who have consistently tried to protect the government from the unsound bargaining policy which has been pursued in the income tax unit. Since the conclusion of our hearings, everyone of these men has been removed from the executive position he held."

Demanding publition of all rulings so they will be available to all taxpayers aloke, the report said:

"The proper publication of the bureau of rules and procedure will dispense with the necessity of employing the tax fixer."

The majority also held that the internal revenue bureau was steadily falling behind in the settlement of old cases and attributed most of the delay in disposing of old cases to bargaining instead of assessing taxes in accordance with published precedents.

Before the report was submitted to the senate, L. C. Manson, counsel for the committee, appeared before the senate finance committe considering the tax reduction bill, to present the amoritization section of the report. A. W. Gregg, counsel for the bureau, replied to his contentions at a later session.

A dividend of $10 per share was declared today on the outstanding common stock, payable February 1, 1926, to holders of record January 23. President Nash stated it was the hope of the management that earnings would permit the company to continue the payment of the same amount in dividends which would be at the rate of $2 per share on the new stock, the equivalent of the present rate of $20 per share annually on the old stock.

A sensational advance of 52 points to a new high record at 517, as against a low of 193 1-2 last year, took place in the stock of the New York stock exchange today. Total sales were only about 1,300 shares, one jump of 15 points taking place between sales.

ODDS BETWEEN CHURCH AND STATE IN ITALY

ROME, Jan. 12—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's careful manoeuvring with the object of healing the historic breach between church and state, constituting one of fascism's most important policies and one of Mussolini's pet ambitions, has suddenly encountered an unexpected, and perhaps serious obstacle.

A Vatican statement apparently expressing the Pope's attitude and intimating that the Holy See would not be satisfied with anything short of absolute freedom of action, has brought forth a storm of controversy, in which it is clearly seen that the fascists will refuse a concession of such magnitude. The government remains silent, but the fascist press "regrets" that the statement has been printed.

MRS. OUELLETTE BOUND OVER ON THEFT CHARGES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 12—Mrs. Lillian Ouellette, twenty year old mother of two children, was placed under arrest in Andover Tuesday morning when it was found that she was implicated in thefts in that village. She was charged with breaking and entering and theft and when taken before Justice of the Peace Charles B. Faulkner she pleaded guilty. The young woman was bound over to the next criminal term of the Tolland county superior court and bonds of $500 were named. The youthful mother disclosed a sordid career Tuesday. The theft mentioned in the warrant was committed in a house which was owned by Christopher C. Rose of Windham street this city, and which was recently purchased, completely equipped, by O. R. Lamphear a Hartford real estate agent. Her accomplice in the theft was Henry Kelliher alias Henry Ryan, of Andover, who is now being held on the charge of theft of an automobile in Springfield, Mass. Bedding, clothing, curtains and other articles of furniture and attire were taken from the Lamphear house and most of it recovered at the home of Mrs. Emma Welcome in Andover where Kelliher, Mrs. Welcome's son by a previous marriage and Mrs. Ouellette and her two children have been staying. A warant on a charge of theft for the same offense as that held against the woman is held against Kelliher and will be served on him after disposition of his case in Springfield has been made.

Mrs. Ouellette staid that she married Edward Ouellette, who came to this city from Fall River, Mass., when she was 15 years and six months old. A child was born through their union. About one year after her marriage her husband left her to join the army and he has never contributed to the support of herself and child since. A few years ago her husband returned here and had a local man arrested for paying too much attention to his wife. Some two years ago Mrs. Ouellette met Kelliher and they lived together. They went to live with the man's mother in Andover and one year and one half ago another child was born, the woman claiming that Kelliher is the father. At various times Kelliher and Mrs. Ouellette lived in Springfield and Deerfield, Mass. They they came to live on the Daggett place in Andover with Mrs. Welcome acting as a housekeeper. In telling her story Tuesday the girl intimated that Mrs. Welcome has had a bad influence over her and encouraged her to steal. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Gladue, resides in the vicinity of the Stone Row in this city but at present is visiting in Cohoes, N. Y. The girl could not furnish a bond and was taken to the Tolland jail to await trial.

The disclosures of thievery which followed the arrest of Henry Kelliher of Andover for stealing a Ford sedan in Springfield and later the arrest of Mrs. Ouellette of Andover for being an accomplice of Kelliher in the theft of household furnishings from the former G. C. Case property, now owned by O. H. Lamphear of Hartford, led to the solving of the mystery of the theft of chickens in Andover. Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover considered that a good joke had been played on him the day before Christmas when he went to select a few chickens for his Christmas dinner and found them missing along with several other choice hens of his flock. When he made mention of the loss of his chickens to Mrs. Ouellette and how he had missed them for his holiday dinner the woman informed him that they were very delicious. She and the family she resided with had enjoyed them. She then confessed to assisting Kelliher in stealing chickens in the vicinity. Three different allotments were taken to Hartford and sold there.

RAILROAD CHANGES AFFECT WILLIMANTIC

A resolution to give full moral support of Mayor John C. Tracy and his administration in a movement to free the city from the vicious and demoralizing influences and practices which now exist here was unanimously adopted at the January meeting of the Willimantic Ministers' union held Monday. Rev. F. Stanley Sellick, pastor of the Congregational church of Lebanon read the paper of the day, his subject being Relation of the Doctrine of Original Sin to Religious Education, which he ably handled. Respectful attention was paid to the talk but members of the ministers' union expressed pointed views on their consideration of the Army as far as its activities in Willimantic is concerned. The Army is asking for a budget of $4,000 which was pointed as the average sum asked for by any clergy for a year's work. The suggestion was made that this sum divided among the churches would produce greater results than are apparent through the army. Rev. W. C. Norris was in charge of the meeting. The February session will be held with Rev. A. S. Muirhead at the Methodist Episcopal church.

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 12.—Governor John H. Trumbull was guest of honor of the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce at its January meeting held in the G. A. R. Hall, town building, Tuesday evening. In his address he told of the possibilities of making a city and state grow through the work of a chamber of commerce and gave a review of the functions of the state government, commending the work of the various state departments. Governor Trumbull signified his intentions of placing the state government on a business basis in which plan he has already met with a marked degree of success. He was given a rising vote of thanks at the conclusion of his talk.

The meeting was called to order at 6:30 o'clock by President A. Linn Weatherhead, who, with Governor Trumbull and other speakers and officers of the chamber, occupied the head table. A chicken pie supper was served by members of the Woman's Relief Corps. Grace was said by Rev. Henry E. Quinn, of St. Joseph's church. Group singing was led by Harry W. Standish. A three-piece orchestra, Ralph H. Gibson, violin, Clifford Donnelly, piano and Aylord Matthewson, saxophone, furnished music. During a brief business meeting Secretary C. H. Morrill read the application of Edwin J. Donnelly for membership and an affirmative vote was cast in favor of the applicant. About 125 members were present.

After brief announcements by President Weatherhead the meeting was turned over to Judge Otto B. Robinson, chairman of the entertainment committee. The latter read a letter of service and then presented City Engineer Robert E. Mitchell, who gave an enlightening talk on Willimantic's water supply and of its needed improvements. He pointed out that the city was saving nearly $30,000 annually by owning and managing its own water supply system.

Edwin J. Donnelly gave a stirring address of endorsement of the coming membership drive and urged the citizens to unite for progress. Chairman Robinson then presented His Excellency Governor Trumbull. Conveying his greeting as chief executive to the audience, Gov. Trumbull, who is a native of Ashford, a town neighbor to Windham, proclaimed his familiarity with this section of the state. He gave a summary of the forward movement in New England to restore abandoned agricultural areas to a producing basis, in order that the eastern states would not continue to depend on other sections for 85 per cent. of food products, which represent an annual expenditure of over half a billion dollars. "As for your own town of Willimantic," he said, "you can make it grow; it is well located, has wonderful resources and is attractive in every way. If it does not grow, it is not the fault of the city, but rather with the people in it. It is up to you as citizens and members of the chamber of commerce to lead in the forward march."

Regarding the state government and matters of progressive interest, Gov. Trumbull continued, "we have the most desirable form of government ever devised, but there is always an insidious movement to tear it down and wave the red flag of socialism over the land. It is up to us to maintain a liberal government by believing in it, backing it in its every efforts and in taking a never-failing interest in governmental affairs. Keep faith in our parties and elect officials and department heads who have your best interests and those of your town, state and nation at heart. I believe that such an administration is serving your state at present. As chief executive my aim is to apply the same ethics found in a successful private business to the government and to serve for the benefit of all citizens, regardless of political affiliations, provided, of course, that they are of patriotic nature. In the application of business principles to your government I strenuously oppose the issue of bonds for highway work and in fact, opposed any form of bond issue which would place the state helplessly in debt, unless, perhaps, a form of serial bond issue for permanent improvement. A good business concern pays its bills as it goes. This is the basis upon which this administration plans to place the state of Connecticut. Pay as you go is the slogan. After all the government is a business and a tremendous one.

"And in mentioning the heads of your various state departments, I wish to say that their efficiency and general qualifications are most commendable. In fact, their success, in their respective lines is outstanding and is a model to which other states point with envy and strive to attain by borrowing ideas and methods used in Connecticut. Connecticut has more square miles of improved highways than any other state in the union. Its educational department under Dr. Meredith is unparalleled. The motor vehicle commissioner and the tax commissioner are unequalled in efficiency.

"There remains one more phase of activity to be developed, that is, aerial transportation. Commercial aeroplanes are now being equipped with three motors, any one of which is sufficient to keep the plane from crashing to the ground in case one or two of the motors become faulty, are fast reaching a maximum of safety. In fact, air transportation is nearly perfected for business and pleasure purposes. All that is lacking now are the facilities for making general use of this service. Every town should go into the aviation project, secure a field, beacon lights, supply station and other essentials for an aviation base. And that is just one more accomplishment for a chamber of commerce.

"In conclusion I wish to endorse the membership drive which, I understand, you are about to inaugurate. There is a splendid opportunity for every worthy citizen to benefit his state, his town and himself by becoming a member; your chamber of commerce in Willimantic should double in size."

VELIE

WHAT THE VELIE HAS MEANT AND WHAT IT MEANS TODAY

A Record of Consistency

From its first appearance eighteen years ago to the present, the Velie car has consistently maintained a reputation for Value—for the finest Value to be obtained at the price. That reputation was its original aim and, achieved at the very start, has always been jealously guarded. That it has remained untouched and has, in fact, been steadily increased, is a record that not many have equalled and one of which the Velie Corporation is justly proud.

Today, with new resources permitting ever more progressive policies behind the Velie, it is our intention to enhance that reputation still further—to maintain the thought that Velie and Value are almost interchangeable words.

WILLYS-KNIGHT

GREAT SIX

The only engine that improves with use

Your own experience has proven that all poppet-valve motors wear out. Complicated and intricate valve mechanism ultimately yields to the incessant demands to which it is subjected. Carbon eventually gets in its destructive work on the finest of cylinders.

The experience of 275,000 Willys-Knight owners proves that service actually improves this sleeve-valve motor. No valves to adjust—two silently-moving sleeves—and that is all—control the intake and exhaust operations. Carbon serves but to seal compression hence to build up its efficiency.

When the finest of poppet-valve engines are worn out, the everlasting engine of your Willys-Knight is just coming into the full manhood of its power.

EVENING GROSBEAKS ARE WINTERING IN DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 12—Numbers of evening grosbeaks are spending the winter in Danielson. These pretty birds, said by ornithologists to be natives of the Sierras, have migratory habits and are said to leave their homeland to wander across British Columbia and onward to Labrador, then turning south again in their transcontinental wanderings. They were unknown hereabout until a few years ago, though rose-breasted grosbeaks and other membres of this finch-like species have been found in eastern Connecticut for many years. The evening grosbeak is something after the style of a stocky robin, has several shades of feathers and a particularly stout bill. Several of them are fed daily by Mrs. J. C. Witter of Cottage street and are about that vicinity most of the time.

HARVESTERS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE WHEN ICE SINKS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 12—A long procession of ice cakes wendered their way from Quinebaug lake into the four houses that were being filled there Tuesday by the Quinebaug Lake Ice company. Fifty men were engaged in the harvest, which will require four or five days, depending on how smoothly things go. When the hoisting apparatus was working to capacity during Tuesday cakes were going up the runway at the rate of 20 a minute or 1,800 per hour. This capacity is not regularly maintained, however, and it is probable that no more than 1,500 cakes an hour were being housed during Tuesday. The ice is 9 1-2 inches, and as good as has been harvested at the lake in years, being clear and entirely free from snow. It is interesting to know that there will be 8,000,000 pounds of this ice in the houses when the work now underway is completed, maybe considerably more than that.

An unusual happening at the lake Tuesday morning was the sinking of a big ice field on which a motor drivern saw was working. The field had been sawed one way of the lake and the cross cutting started when the ice suddenly began to go down—a big area of it. A warning shout to the man operating the power-driven saw allowed him to escape with his machine in the nick of time and in the meantime a few men who were on that section of the lake were emulating that great "across the ice" scene from Uncle Tom's cabin. Snow that later would have been cleared from the ice is believed through its weight and the water that was mixing with it to have caused the sinking. Wet feet for one or two men was all the damage that was suffered.

How Clarence Dillon, head of Dillon, Read and Co., became a banker and has risen to his present fame through a chance street meeting with an old friend, William A. Phillips, formerly of Danielson, is entertainingly told in a feature story just published in New York.

Happening to be in New York, Mr. Dillon encountered Mr. Phillips on the street. They were old "prep" school chums but had not met for years. During the course of their talk Mr. Phillips inquired "What are you doing nowadays?" Mr. Dillon answered that at the moment he was not doing anything in particular.

"You should get into the banking business," said Phillips, who had been following that calling for a number of years: "come on over and meet Read—he is a man worth knowing."

So they crossed the street and walked a block or two, finally climbing the flight of worn steps leading to the old-fashioned portal of William A. Read and Co., on the first floor of a familiar corner on Nassau street.

As the result of the conference that followed between Read and Dillon, the latter decided that he might be interested in banking. He had a splendid business experience in other lines of endeavor, but had never given a thought to banking. These events took place in the spring of 1914. Mr. Dillon stayed on, rapidly developing a special keenness for finance and eventually was made a member of the firm, as is Mr. Phillips. Six days after Mr. Dillon was admitted to a partnership, Mr. Read died. Shortly thereafter the other partners came to Dillon and suggested that he act as head of the firm. Their selection has been fully justified. Mr. Dillon has become a towering figure in the world of finance, attention again being called within the past two days to his achievement of bringing common stock of the National Cash Register company into the market for the public to buy after it had been closely held for years and of the sale by his firm of $55,000,000 worth of it, the amount being heavily over-subscribed. Mr. Dillon first became a truly national figure by his activities in the reorganization of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, a $100,000,000 deal, and his later handling of the Dodge Brothers' motor car business, this little affair involving $146,000,000.

Messrs. Dillon and Phillips were at Worcester academy together and later at Harvard.

Mr. Phillips was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Phillips of Danielson. He is a graduate of Killingly High school.

Tuesday morning the funeral of Joseph Brouillard, Jr., of Moosup was held from the home of his parents with a funeral mass at All Hallows church at 9 o'clock, Rev. J. E. McCarthy being celebrant of the requiem mass. Burial was in All Hallows cemetery, schoolmates of the dead boy acting as bearers. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Radio fans continue to complain that "grounds" from lines of wire service companies in Danielson are largely destructive of the pleasure they might have from their sets were the troublesome noises cleared up. There has been more or less complaint for several months about these grounds, and the fans are appealing to the companies having lines to be good sports and make an effort to clear them up. It can be done.
